POLICE POUNCE ON "MOON" MASH IN RAID LATE SATURDAY

Three Sacks of Spirits in [illegible] Found by Chief of Police in Dwelling on South Duluth Avenue.

Upon information furnished the police a few days ago, Chief Erickson and his force late Saturday made a raid upon a dwelling at the corner of the 400 block on South Duluth avenue and found every evidence that its former habitues had been doing business on a fairly large scale and that their ramifications thrived best "by the light of the moon."

Three sacks of corn mash were found in an upstairs room by the officers and several other articles of paraphernalia common to the moonshine industry were discovered. The articles and mash were taken to police headquarters, where they are now a component part of the gallery.

The owners of the contraband were not apprehended, and eluded the officers and made a getaway. However evidence is being collected and it is expected enough will materialize to cause arrests within the next few days. The stench of foul mash and fusel oil almost knocked the raiders off their balance but they rallied sufficiently to gain entrance to the premises. Nothing much of furnishings or anything else was found on the first floor, but filth was discovered aplenty. The floor, according to the officers, probably hadn't felt a broom since moonshining had become a profitable business and this is perhaps accounted for by the fact that cleanliness and the "moon" industry do not go hand in hand.

Upon climbing the stairway, however, lots of interesting and illicit goods were discovered. Three sacks of corn mash were lying upon the floor, a stinking, nauseating mass that almost required the services of a phosgene gas mask to approach, it is said. Enough spirits in embryo state were found to almost wipe out a regiment of Moroccans thirsty for poison.

In an interview with The Tribune yesterday, Chief Erickson was unwilling to make public the names of the pair suspected of manufacturing moonshine as it is yet unknown whether they sold their product on the open market and this rendered it difficult to secure evidence. As above stated, however, it is expected that arrests will follow within the next few days.

Attention has been attracted to the dwelling for several weeks past when neighbors have observed busy activities around the premises. Indications pointed more to a storage place for overflow grain than anything else and the operators were brave and bold in their operations, daring to brace forth in daylight with full grain sacks and other necessities inimical to hustlers—illegitimate and otherwise.

Whether the moonshiners had been tipped off to the intended raid is unknown and the officers were unable to ascertain whether or not the premises had been occupied for several hours prior to their assault. There were no indications that "moon" had been made there during the past few days.

Canadian Hunters Killed By Fierce Timber Wolves

Human Bones and Blood Covered Snow Mute Evidence of Fierce Struggle of Men.

A great roving band of hungry timber wolves has devoured three men, according to meager reports sifting in the first of the week to Port Arthur from the snow covered trails of the Sturgeon river country. These reports told of a losing battle fought by two Indians after a white trapper had been downed and killed.

Last Saturday an elderly trapper left his cabin in the woods, 70 miles north of Ignace to mush down to the settlement for his Christmas mail. He arrived in safety. There was no mail, however, and the old man said he would come back Christmas morning. At noon he had not arrived. The postmaster sent two Indians to follow the trail until they found him.

About two miles from the settlement the Indians found a spot pounded down in the snow and crimson hued. Bits of dog harness torn to shreds were scattered about. In the midst of them Indians found human bones. They hastened back to report their discovery.

The lure of the bounty on wolves however, urged the Indians to take the trail again with extra ammunition. They sped behind their dog team into the woods as the villagers waved good bye. They did not return.

Then a new searching party departed. They found another patch trodden in the snow about two miles beyond the first.

The two guns the Indians had carried were lying there and scattered about were bones, bits of clothing and empty shells.

The carcasses of sixteen dead wolves lay stretched in a circle about the trampled patch of snow.

Mahnomen Widow Is Given Compensation

Mrs. Alma Kreidler of Mahnomen, widow of Lawrence L. Kreidler, is awarded compensation of $15 a week for 300 weeks as a result of her husband's death from injuries received while in the employ of the Mahnomen Electric Light and Power Service Co., by action of the state supreme court.

Mr. Kreidler, an electrician, while in the employ of the power company, received electrical shocks which caused his death Jan. 23, 1919.

The company refused to pay compensation on the grounds that Kreidler was not a regular employe, but conducted business of his own. The widow brought suit in the Mahnomen county district court for compensation and it was awarded by Judge Grindeland, whose decision was upheld by the state supreme court.

Lorentson Selects Deputy.

Fred Lorentson, register of deeds, has appointed as his deputy Miss Helen Hunt of Red Lake Falls, who assumed her duties at the courthouse yesterday.

OLE LINSTAD RECEIVES 90-DAY SENTENCE FOR SELLING LIQUOR

One of Men Taken in Raids Last Fall Enters Plea of Guilty Before Judge William Watts at Crookston.

Ole Linstad, one of the men arrested on October 3 for manufacturing and peddling moonshine, went before Judge William Watts at Crookston last Wednesday and admitted his guilt. The judge gave him a jail sentence of 90 days and a $300 fine.

Linstad began serving his sentence at Warren yesterday. Linstad, who operated a still in Sanders township, is an old offender, this being his second jail sentence.

Linstad was arrested October 3 by Sheriff W. J. LaBree, a vast quantity of moonshine in various stages of perfection being found on his place in Sanders township. He is one of the men generally credited with responsibility for the generous supply of illicit liquor which has found its way to the bars of Thief River Falls. His arrest, however, failed to abate the nuisance locally, as recent events go to show that moonshine in large quantities is still being peddled within the confines of this city.

Just what motive Linstad had in pleading guilty just before the February term of court can only be conjectured, but it is presumed he did not relish the idea of having a Pennington county jury hear the sordid details of his offense. Five other men, including Bennie Vigen, whose place was raided two weeks ago, were arrested with Linstad, and present indications are that these men will stand trial in January.

Recent Visitor Here Is Struck by Auto at Forks

Albert Shulke, who recently was in Thief River Falls on a business trip and who for a time considered the purchase of Loken Brothers department store, was run down by an automobile at Grand Forks Sunday night. The following is taken from the Herald of yesterday:

"An auto driver who did not stop to see who he had hit or how badly his victim was injured, run down Albert Shulke of New Ulm, Minn., Sunday night about 9 o'clock at the Third street and Demers avenue crossing. Mr. Shulke was crossing Demers when an auto coming from East Grand Forks hit him and passed on. He was taken to the Deaconess hospital where he was found to have a scalp wound and other bruises none of which are expected to prove serious."

BIG BASKET SOCIAL.

The Sons of Norway will give a big basket social at their lodge hall Friday evening, January 5, the date announced last week being erroneous. The ladies are requested to bring baskets filled with lunch for two. The public is cordially invited to attend and a social dance will follow the sale of baskets and lunch.

When a man begins to slip there are always those who are there to put plenty of grease on the skids.

Sapero's to Have Department Store

Well-Known Local Business House to Enter New Field in Near Future.

Announcement Comes as a Surprise to Many Friends of Mercantile Firm.

Announcement was made this week by C. S. Sapero, local manager of the Sapero Company, ladies' ready-to-wear outfitters, that commencing some time within the next two months the Thief River Falls store will in all details and respects branch out as a department store of the first order.

Contrary to the belief expressed in certain quarters that the Sapero Company woul discontinue the Thief River Falls store shortly after the first of the year, the establishment will broaden its scope and expects to be in a better position than ever before to serve its patrons.

The decision of the Sapero Company therefore comes as a distinct surprise and indicates stronger than anything else the faith of the concern in the local field. The store was established here several years ago and has been known strictly as a ladies' and children's ready-to-wear shop, catering only to buyers of that kind of wearing apparel, and during its existence has built up an enviable reputation as handling only the latest and best in these lines.

The establishment of the department store will not in any way impair the service the Sapero Company has formerly afforded its customers in these lines but it will rather augment complete lines and give better selections. The store will continue doing business at its former location in the Citizens State Bank building, where its quarters are both neat and commodious, and it is believed that sufficient room can be found to handle all new goods that are expected to arrive within the very near future.

Tribune Awarded County Printing

County Dads Place Contract for 1923 Official Printing Yesterday.

This Publication Now Official for County, City and School District.

At a meeting of the County Commissioners of Pennington county at the courthouse yesterday afternoon, The Tribune was awarded the official county printing for 1923. This action on the part of the commissioners makes The Tribune the official newspaper for the publication of county, city and school district proceedings.

Under the bid of The Tribune, the delinquent tax list for 1923 and the financial statement will be published in all county newspapers for the price of one publication, thus giving the official printing the widest possible publicity at a saving to the taxpayers.

In addition to serving the public in this capacity, The Tribune will keep the closest track of the proceedings in the Legislature, the aim being to keep Tribune readers well advised upon all important measures, the votes of legislative members and giving the gist of all measures affecting this district.

SECURES BRIDGE CONTRACTS.

Isak Helseth of the Minneapolis Bridge company, returned to the city the latter part of the week from Cass Lake and Spooner, where he secured two very desirable bridge contracts. The bridge at Cass Lake, or about eight miles north of that town, will cost $23,000, while the Spooner job which consists of a bridge connecting Spooner and Beaudette, will cost approximately $44,850.

Sons of Norway Installation.

Snorre Lodge, Sons of Norway, will meet tomorrow (Thursday) evening for the installation of officers recently elected and announced in last week's Tribune. Following the meeting there will be a special meeting of the building corporation of the lodge. All the members and members of the building corporation are requested to be present.

Janitor Selected.

Paul Midderigh was reappointed as janitor of the courthouse by the board of county commissioners at today's session of the board.

Old Cotton Mather had a hunch that might well reach a lot of intellectual people of our day. He said: "Sirs, when you are called upon to be wise, the main intention is that you may be wise to do good."

McGinn Chairman of County Board

Succeeds Oscar Peterson, Who Retires Yesterday After Long Service.

J. S. Roy Is Vice-Chairman. Much Routine Business Is Transacted.

R. J. McGinn of this city was selected as chairman of the board of county commissioners, and J. S. Roy of St. Hilaire was made vice chairman when the new board organized at the courthouse yesterday afternoon.

Oscar Peterson, who retires as the chairman after serving for eight years in that capacity, was in the city yesterday for the final meeting of the old board. To The Tribune the retiring chairman stated he was glad to quit. If the new members can improve upon the work of the old board, they are entitled to all the credit, said Mr. Peterson. Similar sentiment was expressed by Mr. Naplin, who retires in favor of Emil Peterson.

Meanwhile the new board was struggling with the jury list in the auditor's office. The Tribune, being a respectable family journal, could hardly quote the language of one or two of the board members as they strove to live up to the present laws governing the selection of jurors, but we did hear one member say that certain members of the legislature should have their heads examined.

The board was busy approving the bonds of new officials, and transacted much routine business, an account of which will appear in the published proceedings next week.

This noon the board took an adjournment until January 24, when all unfinished business will be taken up.

Carl G. Olson of Rhoda succeeds Mr. Peterson on the board, while Emil Larson of Wylie succeeds Mr. Naplin. They proceeded with the county business like veterans at the game.

Farewell Banquet for H. O. Loken

Retiring Merchant Honored by Fellow Citizens Last Friday Evening.

Addresses by Senator Hansen, F. F. Haynes and Many Others.

The Evelyn hotel was the scene of a merry gathering last Friday evening when a large number of the business associates and friends of H. O. Loken gathered in the spacious dining room to bid the guest of the evening godspeed and farewell upon the eve of his departure for Madison, Wis., where he will re-engage in the mercantile business.

Dr. H. W. Froehlich acted as toastmaster, introducing in his happy style the various speakers of the evening. Senator C. L. Hansen in eloquent manner voiced the regret of his fellow associates over the leave-taking of Mr. Loken, describing the success which has attended the efforts of the Loken firm in the local field.

F. F. Haynes followed Senator Hansen, and paid tribute to the retiring merchant as a social worker and a church member, his general interest in the community and the energy which made him such a forceful factor in the community.

A number of other speakers were also called upon and all contributed sentiments of regret over the retirement of Mr. Loken and his family. Mr. Loken responded in a happy vein, recalling the ups and down which he has met with locally, and expressing the feeling that he did not leave Thief River Falls except with the fondest recollections of the friends he had made and hoping in his new field to find an outlet for the enlarged proportions of the mercantile establishment which bears his name.

The head of Pittsburgh university declares that America is rapidly becoming feminized, so many Americans oppose war in any of its forms. Well, if to be feminine means to have a slight sentiment of dislike for war, then for heaven's sake let's be feminized.

SHERIFF TAKES OFFICE.

O. L. Ihle, newly elected sheriff, assumed the responsibility of office on Tuesday. It is understood that A. W. Crown has been offered the position of deputy, but still has the matter under consideration.

MASS MEETING PASSES BUCK TO COUNCIL IN POWER MATTER

Odd Fellows Hold Session; Install Officers for Year

Young Pine Lodge, Independent Order of Odd Fellows, held their regular weekly meeting at the Odd Fellows hall last night, at which time officers for the year were installed and the regular order of business transacted, after which lunch was served and many remained to play cards and otherwise enjoy themselves. The following were installed: Sam McMann, noble grand; Leonard Hanson, vice grand; E. M. Bennes, chaplain; N. J. Anderson, secretary; Adolph Eklund, recording and financial secretary. All the other supporters to the noble grand and vice grand were duly appointed and assumed their new duties.

College All-Stars Humbled by 'Kids'

High School Basket Ball Team Ties Nose Bag on Former Dandies.

Pickup Quint Entirely Outclassed by Less Experienced H. S. Lads.

The Thief River Falls high school basket ball team "put the bee" on the college all-stars in stinging fashion in a game played at the City Auditorium last Tuesday evening, when the former chased the all-stars around the ball room to the painful but close score of 37 to 34.

The jump-off came at precisely 8 o'clock, but after jumping for a few rounds, condition and fitness commenced telling against staleness and reputation, and the high school athletes set up a pace to the all-stars that they couldn't even dog trot after. The two Sorensons made the roads so dirty and dusty that mud-lugs might have helped the all-stars. The latter quint commenced piling up a score that looked bad for the high school boys, but it was easy to see from the sidelines that drastic things were soon to fall on the challengers and the high school hooked basket after basket in rapid succession. The all-stars were sorely afflicted in the second quarter and Coach Holzknecht was compelled to make a flashy and perilous change in his lineup as soon as the high school got agoin'.

Soon after the start of the second quarter the score stood 12 to 11, but no one conversant with basket ball expected it to remain there for long. A few moments later the all-stars were sweating red corpuscles and when athletes get that way curtains generally come next. The latter fought back gamely, however, through the entire balance of the quarter and defeat for the former masters seemed hard to swallow. The high school players were carrying the battle into the corner of the challengers and about all there was left for them to do was to cover up and await the bell, which came in the nick of time.

The Tribune wasn't present during the latter stages of the fray but we heard of the massacre later, and we never thought the high school boys had the heart to treat their elder brethren in such fashion. Their cold-bloodedness was undoubtedly due to certain boisterous uterances of the all-stars a few days prior when it is said they asserted that all they required to "trim the kids" was a forward and a guard. If the assertions are true, which it is hoped is not the case, the all-stars are undoubtedly entitled to the terrible drubbing they received. Succeeding events at the game demonstrated that instead of a forward and a guard the all-stars should have brought along sawed-off shotguns and mustard gas.

These done duty for the all-stars: Brown, Penney, Larson, McGinn, Kiland, Tandberg, Prichard. If there were any others they were "sucked" in later.

AUXILIARY INSTALLS.

The Woman's Auxiliary of the American Legion installed officers last evening as follows: President, Mrs. D. W. Robinson; vice president, Mrs. O. F. Mellby; secretary, Mrs. Lawrence Hermanson; executive board, Mesdames J. M. Bishop, A. W. Crown and A. W. Swedenburg.

SANDE BEGINS DUTIES.

The newly elected superintendent of schools, O. R. Sande, commenced his duties at the office on Tuesday, arranging his work and otherwise accustoming himself to routine matters.

What to Do? What to Do? No Solution Is Offered at Meeting Held at Commercial Club Last Evening.

If any human being has a solution for the power situation which confronts the city of Thief River Falls at the present time, such person failed to show up at the public mass meeting held at the Commercial clubrooms last evening. There was much talk pro and con, but nothing tangible resulted except a resolution which in effect passes the buck back to the council. That is, the council can go ahead and do as it d—— pleases so far as the public is concerned.

The resolution passed last night was to the effect that it be the sense of the meeting that the council proceed as it deems best for the city in the light and power situation. Which may mean most anything. Harry Brumund, president of the council, presented facts and figures showing a fairly satisfactory condition so far as the present plant is concerned, but also showing the urgent need for improved power facilities.

The burning question of the hour revolves about the dam versus engine power, and from reports presented it would seem advisable at this time for the city to provide against disaster by augmenting the engine equipment now in force.

Engineers may be hired by the city council to make a survey of the whole situation in order that the council and public may proceed intelligently with the situation presented.

LEGION DANCE SUCCESS.

The New Year's ball given at the city auditorium last Friday evening was well attended, many from out-of-town and students at outside schools, being present. Snyder's five-piece orchestra furnished music.

All-Stars Turn Tables in Game Staged Tuesday

The all-stars completely turned the tables on the high school basket ball team at the Auditorium last night when the former won by the close margin of 21 to 19. The game was close throughout and neither side showed material advantage over the other. The all-stars had completely reorganized since their former defeat and this had telling effect upon the offensive tactics of the high school athletes, who did not show the same class as demonstrated a week ago.

The retaliation of the all-stars compensates them in a way for their humiliation at the hands of the high school quint and the games stand one apiece, rendering it hard for the basket ball fan to choose the best team. Another game would tell the story better, but it is thought that this will be impossible inasmuch as several of the members of the all-star team will leave tonight and tomorrow night to resume their studies at the various schools in the twin cities and elsewhere.

The lineups were approximately the same as those appearing in the initial tilt with one or two exceptions.

Miss Esther Stebbins New Hospital Superintendent

Succeeds Miss Stankey, Who Goes to Canby, Minn., to Accept Similar Position.

Miss Esther Stebbins, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. J. Stebbins of this city, has accepted the superintendency of the Thief River Hospital, succeeding Miss Stankey, who accepts a similar position at Canby, Minn.

Miss Stebbins is a graduate nurse from St. Mary's hospital, the Mayo institution at Rochester, and is exceptionally well fitted for her new position.

A Cold Ride.

Rev. Skogerboe had an experience last Wednesday night that he will not soon erpeat. He was about to go north on the Soo flyer and getting to the depot just as the train started out, and thinking that they would stop for water, swung onto the steps which were closed. The train did not stop to take water and there he hung on the outside until he reached Cisco, and being unable to hang on any longer had to throw himself off. In making the landing he was considerably bruised but managed to reach the Sorkness home, where he was given shelter until today, when he was able to be taken home.—Erskine Echo.

When Today is here it is well to remember that Yesterday has a great habit of bobbing up the day after.

Legion Has Busy Session at Meeting on Thursday

Officers Elected for Ensuing Year and Harmony Prevails in All Quarters.

One of the most harmonious and interesting meetings of the American Legion in months was held last Thursday evening at the quarters of the Post underneath the First and Peoples State Bank building. Officers for the ensuing year were elected by the body and numerous other business affairs held the attention of the members for more than two hours. After the close of the meeting, those present participated in the customary "feed."

The financial status of the post was never in better shape and now that it has been placed squarely on its own feet, it is the intention to keep it that way. A membership drive, under contemplation several weeks ago, was under consideration at the meeting, but no action was taken and it is not now known when the drive will get under way.

The following officers were elected for the ensuing year and will be installed at the next meeting a week from Thursday: Oscar Paulson, commander; Dave Robinson, vice commander; O. R. Sande, adjutant; H. E. Nelson, treasurer; Rev. Chas. Gerlinger, chaplain.

"A Tailor Made Man," New Charles Ray Film, Coming

Charles Ray will appear on the screen at the Lyceum Theatre Sunday and Monday in "A Tailor Made Man," his first United Artists production. This is one of the most important productions of the 1922 season, and will display Ray's humanness and versatile talents in an entirely new direction.

It was only after considerable deliberation that "A Tailor Made Man" was selected as Ray's initial vehicle for United Artists release; the choice was made over countless other stories submitted because "A Tailor Made Man" has been one of the most popular plays of the last three stage seasons.

Albert Ray, author of several original photoplays in which Charles Ray starred, adapted "A Tailor Made Man" to the screen, and Joseph DeGrasse, who directed Ray in "The Old Swimmin' Hole" and "Forty-five Minutes From Broadway," directed the production.

The story is the eternal story of Youth clinging tenaciously to an idea and enthusiastically seeing it through; the underlying motif is the belief in the effectuality of good clothes. Replete with wit and gayety, "A Tailor Made Man" carries an undercurrent of serious philosophy. It is said that this photoplay is a marvel of dramatic construction, moving forward sweepingly and relentlessly to a surprising but satisfying finale.

Supporting Charles Ray in this, his first venture into the field of the super-production, are: Ethel Grandin, in the leading fenminine role, Thomas Ricketts, Douglas Gerrard, Victor Potel, Douglas Gerrard, Edyth Chapman, Kate Lester, Jacqueline Logan, Stanton Heck, Eddie Gribbon, Michael Dark, Frank Butler, Charlotte Pierce, and others.

Seldom in screen history has a vehicle been selected with so definite a goal in view as was the case in choosing "A Tailor Made Man" as Charles Ray's initial photoplay production for United Artists. It was an ideal choice, as it offers the star an opportunity to display his talents to varied and utmost advantage.

From all advance reports, Mr. Ray as John Paul Bart, presser of clothes in a dingy basement tailor shop, who dares Destiny in a most unprecedented manner, outdoes his most notable past efforts.

It has been found necessary to add several episodes to the original stage play, but the psychology remains the same, and the glory of the whole dramatic piece is that it presents one of the most moving and magnificent figures in modern drama. John Paul Bart is not a superman, is not illogical, is all too human; but he has that plus quality within him that carries beyond where the average man would stop. His is the spirit of Youth, unswerving and unshaken, sweeping all before it because of its swiftness of execution. John Paul Bart has that implacable faith in theory; his sheer enthusiasm allows no room for doubt—the eternal disintegrator.

It is only the tonic quality of "A Tailor Made Man" that makes it an ideal vehicle for Charles Ray, himself the incarnation of the dreamer with the courage of his convictions, but the color. For the story, beginning in a tailor shop, moves rapidly through the domains of commerce, the residences of the socially elect, and the high seas, with a denouement in the little tailor shop. Ray is seen in the humble garb of the clothes-presser and in the togs of the ultra-fashionable; and his role is endowed with wit, charm and sympathy. The powerful dramatic situations, the underlying philisophy and the strain of ebullient humor throughout, make for a screen story that must naturally bring out the best there is in Charles Ray.

The Moonshine Toll

Boston—More than fifty persons are in hospitals here suffering from alcohol poisoning as a result of drinking liquors obtained during the holidays. Two deaths were due to this cause. Eighteen of the patients were listed as in a critical condition.

New York—Eight deaths were attributed to drinking poisonous liquor over Christmas. A score or more of victims were confined to hospitals. Of the eight persons who died two were women. A Brooklyn woman was arrested as the seller of whiskey which caused the death of one of the women.

Detroit—Poisonous liquor obtained over the Christmas holidays was declared by the police to have been responsible for one death and the illness of more than a score of persons here. From Saturday until Monday morning 23 persons declared to have partaken of poisonous whiskey were admitted to the hospital. Four were discharged after a short stay in the hospitals, but the others are reported to be in a serious condition.

Shelby, Ohio—For five minutes Phil Weiganott and Lester Elston stood at the bier of Robert Longley today and tearfully gazed on the body of Longley, who died after drinking "moonshine" they admit they made. Police permitted them to gaze on the body of Longley as a "moral example." Elston and Weiganott are held on charges of murder. Two other men who drank some of the same liquor are blind.

One of the finest specimens of the Indian arrow head ever found in this section of the state is on exhibition at the O. M. Ashley drug store. The head is the property of Hogan Gilbert, and was found last fall in a field on his farm in Petersburg township. Mr. Gilbert in speaking of his find informed a Pilot reporter that the field in which the arrow head was found had been under cultivation for over fifty years. The arrow head is of the finest flint and measures four inches long by two and a quarter inches in depth. Mr. Gilbert is one of the oldest residents of this section and lived on his Petersburg farm during the Indian massacre of 1862. He remembers vividly the horrors of those days and his recitals of the trials and hardships endured by the men who paved the way for the building of one of the wealthiest and most progressive communities in the northwest are indeed interesting and instructive.—Jackson Pilot.

Double Your Savings---It CAN Be Done

poem by UNCLE JOHN

AUTOCASTER

JANUARY

Though she's fickle and contrary, there's a charm in Janooary, to the feller that's accustomed to her curves. . . . With her north wind skallyhootin' and her temperature pirootin' in among a feller's sensitory nerves! And, when she fights a duel with the little jag-o-fuel, that's waitin' out-o'-doors to keep ye warm,—O, it takes a cheerful giver, and an optimistic liver, to demonstrate old Janooary's charm. . . . .

But—when the neighbors gather in defiance of the weather—to taste the joys of settin' by the fire, there's an institute of learnin' where the home-fires is a-burnin'—where patriotism is parent of desire! Then we find in Janooary, not a bandit gaunt an' bleary, but a bosom friend beneath the wintry vest. . . . Where we find congenial labor, swappin' ideas with our neighbor, and adoptin' the conclusion which is best. . . .

While her breath is mighty searchin' where the naked trees is lurchin' and there aint no hint of mercy in her grip,—yet the maple-sap flows sweeter, and the spring shall dawn completer, at the final crack of Janooary's whip. . . . . Then, rally all ye merry, to the call of Janooary, —Awake, an' taste the real joys of life,—No season more entrancin' with fiddlin' an' dancin'—Brace up, an' get acquainted with yer wife!

AS OTHERS THINK

ERIE MAN OBJECTS.

To the Editor of The Tribune,
Thief River Falls, Minn.

As the Thief River Falls Times comes out with a regular stand-pat completion of the Red Lake drainage project—and the Times is requesting towards which it has not contributed a single penny for construction nor for maintenance.

And as to the sentiment, we beg to state to the Times: We maintain the same opposition to the Red Lake drainage project as we did at the time of hearing, so kindly do not make any mis-statement. But we are inclined to believe the editor of the Times is not using his own think-tank in his arguments.

I'm still believing that other ways than the present plan can be worked out. A good construction lay of the type that lends for public good should be encouraged and I am sure that improvements can be suggested and worked out to the public good. Let congress solve some way to improve the present law, as the way it now stands you are damming out the farmers with taxation and causing the Johnstown flood, and such calamity will be brought about by damming out the majority of the people who have to foot the whole bill, as we plainly saw at the hearing at Thief River Falls. If such conditions prevail when the rules of nature are substituted, how much more dangerous it is when you change natural laws of business, mixing the same with human selfishness. Is it not patent to every thinking citizen that whoever has the tinkering of a drainage to be imposed on the land owner, whose land will be assessed and taxed beyond any sound reason, that these same advocates will see to it that their particular interests are protected and someone else has to pay for it.

I must state that if said Red Lake drainage project is put through, as the benefit assessment now stands, it will result in pauperizing the farmers of eastern Pennington county.

Yours truly,
HANS C. SOLBERG.
Erie, Minn., Dec. 26.

WORD FROM FINSTAD.

Editor Tribune:

Regarding the Red Lake River drainage project, we are rather surprised at the stand the two farmers writing in the last issue of the Times have taken, and it may be of interest to others to know that one lives in the extreme west end of the system and the other in the east. And furthermore, Mr. Bjornaraa is not assessed in the Red Lake River project at all. Neither are about one-half of the signers of a petition printed in the Times some time ago.

But it is an assured fact that all are more or less selfish and therefore we cannot blame Mr. Bjornaraa and the others. If they can get something for nothing, that is of benefit to them, at the expense of the other fellow, they are going to work for it. But is it fair to tax a large territory or a number of farmers who already are taxed to the limit, to benefit a few—say less than five per cent—of those assessed, and probably some large outside concerns? We have no assurance as yet that these latter will ever pay one cent to this project.

In regard to Mr. Hafdal, we should like very much to know who gave him the promise of adjustment in assessments, and who has at this time authority to give such promise, as most of us here in Highlanding are in need of adjustment in our assessments.

We will in conclusion go on record as being opposed to this project on general principles, for the reason that it is a known fact that this flood control project is of indirect benefit to the entire length of the Red Lake River basin and tributary thereto, but only a small portion in the extreme east end, least able to pay, are left to pay the entire cost of the project, with as above stated, only five per cent of them directly benefited.

SOME FACTS.

Editor Tribune:

In the recent issues of the local papers appear epistles of considerable length concerning the Red Lake project. In the Times for Dec. 14 we note an article with headlines in large type, "The Sentiment Has Taken a Change." We are skeptical in regard to these headlines and their origin. In the same issue appears a statement signed by a farmer over in the township of Hickory, who seems to have the idea that the river improvement will prove the means of remedying the difficulty. No doubt it will materially provide means of seeing your way out of it all. And furthermore, on this same farmer's idea on the project, he believes that the project will work and be completed in accordance to the plans of the engineers and promoters.

Do you believe that this channel in the river can do such wonders as to drain your land away off from the river without additional ditches? And do you believe that this channel can be of such benefit and such an improvement to the district in general that it will increase the value of the lands so that these may be more easily disposed of?. Sale of lands at present is a disappointing job to tackle, and if this project goes through I wonder who will have any land to sell, for it is a peculiar thing and an undisputable fact that a good many can't pay the tax they now have.

In connection with this and referring to an article written by a farmer from the lower end of the district, he seems to think that the project is an absolute need, though himself being in the outskirts should not be much liable for assessment. He seems to have some sort of assurance that assessments will be adjusted on request, and this same farmer seems to think this is an opportune time to put this project through as we won't have to pay anything the first ten years, and when the ten years are gone we will have such flourishing times that paying the first ten years of accumulated interest, and that they will then be able to start out good and fresh on the thirty-year death warrant. By the end of said period the farmer's title and the confidence in the project may have perished in the ditch long ago.

It is held out that this project has been a constant demand from the farmers in this district. We admit that the dredging of the river has been dangling in the air, but bear in mind that it has been of just as much importance and discussion in connection with the project that we must have an additional system of ditches, for the dredging of the river can not by any person with a sane mind be considered a system of drainage, but as a draining system it will not fail.

If the project is put through we know what will be the next move, for the farmers will not nor can not stand for such unjustified burden without at least trying to get some satisfaction. When the farmer is placed on the verge of ruin he is apt to go to extremes and to the limit, for it is plain to be seen that he can not save himself anyway.

The farmers over in Hickory and along the river in that part of the district may see the system in a different light, perhaps. But settlers along the river are few and far between and anyone with such imagination as to have these swamps and floating bogs, sage brush marshes and cat-tail swamps turned into what ordinarily is called soil, is completely in error. Does anyone believe or imagine that these peat lands can be put into a state of cultivation equal to high land. In my judgment there is not much land along the river to be damaged in the river's present condition. Neither is there much to improve, and the value of some of these swamp lands is not any greater than the paper the description is written on.

Regarding a meeting held at Highlanding June 6 a writer of an article in The Tribune of that time draws a picture of the grace and glory of this country. This particular gentleman was granted the opportunity to take a trip there for the pleasure of it, and to investigate whether the farmers would be willing to donate a few nickels to this project. On this trip, presumably his first one, he says he found to his surprise a most wonderful country and the farmers in the best spirit, and by placing this ditch in the river, which is the only thing lacking to make this country the most wonderful place to live. With this improvement prosperity will be abundant and within every farmer's reach. He says in his closing sentence that this part of Pennington county will be almost superior to anything in the state of Minnesota. We who live here know what sort of a country it is and we also know what sort of prosperity we have to deal with. We call it sow thistle, but perhaps at the agricultural school they give it another name. In my opinion that very sow thistle has done more harm to this country than all the floods in the 17 years put together. But it seems that the farmers over in Hickory and part of Star are troubled with water only and believe that with the improvement of the river their part of the county will flow with milk and honey, and therefore obligingly extend the cost of construction of this project over this way.

The farmers can not see their way clear and can not in any way see any benefit in the river ditch, and therefore shall fight it to the last notch and nickel.

MEYER'S REPLY.

Editor of The Tribune:

I have read the communication of Mr. Wm. J. Brown in your issue of Dec. 28. If the sarcasm and uncalled for personal criticism of the misstatements from my report and testimony were eliminated there would be little left of the communication.

Judging from Mr. Brown's closing paragraph he is endeavoring to talk to the court. My communication was addressed to the people of your community.

Mr. Brown's statement says that my "principal life work has apparently been with, and in the interest of, water power companies," is typical of his misstatement of facts. Out of approximately 18 years of practical engineering experience I have spent less than two months of my time working for water power companies. I have never received a dollar from the Northern States Power Company or any of the other power companies concerned in this project.

Mr. Brown credits me with originating the proposed plan, and then when I state what the proposed plan really is he accuses me of endeavoring to be not only engineer but lawyer and court.

Mr. Brown still persists in claiming that under the proposed plan no portion of the initial cost of the improvement is assessed against the water power companies. The record of the proceedings clearly shows that the entire cost of the jetties, estimated by the government engineers as $108,300 has been eliminated from the first cost of the improvement to be paid for out of the annual rentals by the water power companies.

The undeveloped fall on the Red Lake River is three times as great as the developed fall. The undeveloped fall can only be developed under license from the Fedearl Water Power Commission, which requires in Section 10:

"That whenever any licensee hereunder is directly benefited by the construction work of another licensee, a permittee, or of the United States of a storage reservoir or other headwater improvement, the commission shall require as a condition of the license that the licensee so benefited shall reimburse the owner of such reservoir or other improvements for such part of the annual charges for interest, maintenance, and depreciation thereon, as the commission may deem equitable. The proportion of such charges to be paid by any licensee shall be determined by the commission."

My testimony before the court shows that I estimated the benefit to existing and undeveloped water power as somewhere between $2,000 and $60,000 a year, making a total estimated water power benefit, according to my testimony, ranging from $200,000 to $600,000 when annual benefits are capitalized at 10 per cent. This is to be compared with the government estimate of $240,000.

There is nothing contradictory on the subject of assessments against undeveloped water powers in my report, in my testimony at the recent hearing, or in the statements I have made since that hearing. Mr. Brown has offered no quotations to prove his contention.

If Mr. Brown is so certain that my interpretation of state law regarding lump-sum assessments against water powers is wrong I wish he would point out how the district can make a lump-sum assessment and still act in conformity with Sec. 23, Chapter 13, Ex. Ses. 1919, which states that the District Board, "shall not part with the permanent control of the use of the district water."

Regarding the government plan for financing this project I quote further from Document No. 61: "The work of improvement can best be financed * * by the formation of a Drainage District * * to comprise all lands * * which are susceptible of benefit by existing or proposed drainage ditches * * ."

As further evidence that the government engineers expected the water powers and municipalities to pay their apportionment in annual rentals, I quote from Page 28, of the same document:

"Municipal water supply would receive benefit at Crookston and Grand Forks. As a tentative measure of benefit, take the 26,000 inhabitants as forming 6,500 families, and assess their benefits at 10 cents per family per month for three ordinary low-water months per year, giving a charge of $1,950 per year, which for the 20 years of the land assessment bonds would run would produce $39,000 for the project."

This $39,000 is the first cost apportionment to be paid by the municipalities as an annual charge.

Mr. Brown refers to the "exhaustive study" made by the engineer of the engineer of the War Department. According to the engineer's own report this is exactly what he did not make. He states: "The compilation of authoritative figures on the actual value of the benefit of flow control would require lengthy and detailed study * * * but, estimating roughly, the benefit is—etc."

I trust that these comments may help to get the fact before those people of your community who were unable to attend the recent hearing, and who have not read the several reports on this project.

Very truly yours,
(Signed) ADOLPH F. MEYER.

Cass Lake Fox Farm Closes Splendid Year

The fox farm near Cass Lake has been closed to visitors for the winter after one of the most successful seasons in its history.

Last week ten animals, considered perfect, were pelted, while over $10,000 worth of pelts were sold during the season besides a great many foxes for breeding purposes.

The farm is closed at this season of the year to visitors, because the animals become fierce and ugly for a few months in the winter time.

AMATEUR BOOZE.

It was certainly a nightmarish picture af amateur brewing and distilling that Major Haynes, federal prohibition commissioner, drew recently in a message to the American Public Health Association.

He had found iodine, a deadly poison, used to color "bootleg" liquor and give it a "kick." He has found many stills operating on garbage, with half rotten banana skins, watermelon rinds, potato peelings, etc., appearing in the mash.

And the home distilling is not much better than that done for profit. Ignorance of proper practice and inability on the part of amateurs to keep their stills at a proper temperature result in the production of ether, fusel oil and other highly poisonous liquids instead of alcohol.

Often there is produced an aldehyde which "pickles" the drunkard's digestive apparatus.

Some doctors say that the drinking of that stuff now being made and distributed is producing an alarming crop of diabetes.

The surroundings of the illicit still are nauseating, too. Some stills have been hidden under hog pens. Nearly all the bootleg stills are filthy as well as unscientific. Some of them use lead pipes instead of copper, thus adding another poison to their devil's brew.

Brewing and distilling, whether alcoholic or otherwise, are complicated arts, requiring experience, skill and honesty. The only safe way to do is to accept no amateur or illicit brew or distillation of any kind.—Wadena Pioneer Journal.

THE PRIZEFIGHT GAME.

This is how one Minnesota editor views the legalized fight game, the appended article being taken from the Fairmont Sentinel:

> "The beetlebrows of the prize ring revelled in a saturnalia of brutality the other night. The affair was pulled off in the St. Paul auditorium in the presence of 7,000 fight fans who yelled their heads off as the thugs pummelled each other till they were more dead than alive. Some of the refined incidents of the sensational encounters are graphically described in a page or so telling the blood-spilling details. Let us quote a few choice ones: "Giving away 13½ pounds, Gibbons gave Miske a boxing lesson. Twice Billy wobbled and looked as if he would go down, but Tommy could not put the finishing blow across. Nearly 7,000 fans yelled wildly for a knockout. Miske landed one blow that probably enabled him to go the route. It was a glancing left in the fifth round that closed Tommy's left eye in the sixth. With only one good eye, Tommy slowed up in the seventh and the round was even. Through the eighth, ninth and tenth Gibbons tore into him with the speed of a bantam, showering his townsman with lefts and rights. Miske's face at the finish was a mass of blood, swollen and battered from the terrific hammering he took."

The Sioux Indian inhabited this country a little over a half century ago. Do you suppose they staged anything more brutalizing than the modern prize ring scenes, protected by law and promoted by men who make pretensions of respectability? We doubt.

Then again, here is another view of the same fight by Fred Hadley of Winnebago, who was probably at the ringside, and thought the fight only a physical culture contest:

> "A delegation from here attended the Miske-Gibbons physical culture exhibition at St. Paul last Friday night. Gibbons won all the way."

"THE WORLD'S RICHEST COMMUNITY."

Steele county, Minnesota, is known in that part of the state as "the world's richest community." And the reason is dairying. There is one cow to every inhabitant of the county. Butter making for the year is estimated at five million pounds, worth $2,500,000. The county has 28 creameries in full blast and the bank deposits in Steele county amount to $400 for every man, woman, and child. Dairying is the gold mine of the western farmer, year in and year out.

If Congress has nerve enough to beat the annual appropriation of $360,000 for free seeds, perhaps they will brace up and beat some of the other steals of annual custom, time-worn and frayed, and which never served any good public purpose, but which were designed years ago to help someone get rid of something which they could not sell. The big seed concerns may have to dump a few carloads of non-germinating seeds into the river as a result, but the government will be rid of a useless expense and the people back home will be saved the annoyance of annual failure with government furnished seed.

ROB FARMER.

Somebody somewhere is robbing the farmer of his legitimate profits, to the detriment of the nation as a whole.

With the improved methods of agriculture, and the consequent increase in production, the farmer's profits should be far in excess of what they are today.

From one end of the country to the other the consumer continues to pay high prices for farm products, only a portion of which as a rule goes to the farmer.

Who gets the difference? Who is lining his pockets at the expense of both the farmer and consumer?

Many official investigations have been started, but still are to be heard from.

Many promises have been made, but are yet to be kept.

Many people are wondering how long the condition will continue, but they will keep on wondering!

Because, as a matter of fact, there appears to be no one with moral, physical and POLITICAL courage enough to unearth the robbers and give them their just deserts.— Carlton County Vidette.

The Tribune has a number of communications in this issue bearing upon the Red Lake river project. Go to it, gentleman, we want all the facts in the case and there is nothing like spirited discussion for bringing out the real facts. So far we have seen no argument which would cause us to change our original attitude—which is against the establishment of the project as now suggested. It is an unfair proposition from every angle. If those who are so anxious for this improvement are sincere, they will shoulder the cost instead of placing the burden upon farmers who are already weighed down with taxes and assessments.

Sometimes we all talk best on subjects in which we have had the least experience. The man who wrote "Home, Sweet Home" never had a home. "The Old Oaken Bucket" was a booze fighter, while the young man who wrote "I Never Raised My Boy to be a Soldier," never had a son. This should comfort the politician who has to make a speech on a subject he doesn't know much about.—Waseca Journal.

The Christian Science Monitor commends Judge Page Morris of St. Paul for declining to accept fines from bootleggers. Said Judge Morris: "The United States government can get along without the dirty money that comes from that sort of business and I do not care whether I impose any fines. I intend, however, to sentence these men to jail."

The women of the city of Hibbing have asked the city council to take steps to rid the community of moonshiners, and have threatened to appeal to Judge Morris unless something is done. Good for the women. When they once get after the bootleggers, their day of reckoning will be near at hand. For rather would we face an army of Let-George-do-it men than one determined woman.

The Tribune doesn't give a tinker's damn for all the water power companies on earth. They never were anything more than leeches on the public body, seeking always more power and special privilege. They are entitled to fair treatment, that's all. When they seek such advantages as the Red Lake river project would give them—without paying for the same—we are against them.

Everything the farmer has is in plain sight. Therefore he is always taxed to the limit. Everything the power companies own is pretty well concealed, or protected by law. Ergo—soak the farmer.

Soaking the farmer isn't going to be as profitable as it has been in the past. Some of the hayseeds are sleeping with one eye open.

Records prove that there never was a year in which there were not more sunny days than cloudy days. Flossy old world, we'll say.

"All right," said the editor. "I'll write a snappy headline for the announcement and call him a future President of the United States."

"Did money ever help you to win an election?"

"On several occasions," replied Senator Sorghum. "It wasn't money that I spent myself, however. The opposition flourished so large a campaign fund that it made their candidate look like a tired business man instead of a statesman."

Lyceum Has Much in Store for Movie Fans

Parent-Teachers Countenance Showing of Several Bookings Made at Local Theatre.

Indications are that 1923 will be a promising year for Thief River Falls motion picture theatre goers, judging from the numerous attractive bookings already made by Manager Brumund of the Lyceum theatre. In line with the policy of the theatre to always present in Thief River Falls the cleanest and best productions of the silver screen, the management this week announces a number of nationally known productions that will be shown here within the next two months. Some of them are master productions, which are still being shown in the larger centers, pictures seldom released in the smaller cities for a year or two after their initial presentation.

The Lyceum management, however, has kept abreast of the times in this connection and its aggressiveness in securing some of these releases to be shown here speaks well for the Lyceum theatre and Thief River Falls.

While all of the pictures are not late releases, they are for the most part pictures of proven merit. Some of them are made by America's best-known producers. "Way Down East," for example, while not a recent production, it is safe to say that few cities the size of Thief River Falls will witness one of Griffith's master productions within the next few weeks. Others to be shown here are "The Three Musketeers," "Manslaughter," "Nice People," "The Old Homestead," "Blood and Sand," "Valley of Silent Men," and many others still in the making.

Taken altogether, there is much in store for local movie fans and The Lyceum management is to be congratulated in its effort to show the best to be had in the moving picture line.

THE OLD EXPLORER.

Did Constantine Beltrami, the Italian adventurer, supposed to be the first white man to see this part of Minnesota, visit Roseau county back in the seventeenth century? I have been reading his accounts of his travels and it appears to me that he must have come up to the ridge where the Pembina trail is as far as Karlstad and followed the ridge to its end west of Roseau, and then gone southeast toward River and eastward on the ridge toward Beaver Dam to the large bluff known as Beltrami mountain. Evidently the outlook into the great swamps there caused him to retrace his steps, and he followed the ridges that run towards Thief lake and eventually found himself at the junction of the river with Red Lake river at Thief River Falls. Of his journey from here to Red Lake he tells that he walked in the shallow water at the edge of the river almost all the way, pulling his canoe along by a rope. During the entire journey up the river it rained and he notes that it was the toughest walk he had during all his wanderings.—Warroad Pioneer.

By Rev. Chas. Gerlinger:

Some men outgrow religion. They have no time for anything but facts. And religion is not based on fact. There is too much guesswork to religious thinking. Even the churches cannot agree. But he is not as true to facts as he would have us believe. The facts are clear enough that the godless life is the lawless one. That the one who despises the church despises also the other good institutions of society. That the man who cuts off religion just as readily cuts off morals. The man of high moral character who is at the same time an enemy of religion is not found in every street. The man of low morals who is religious at heart is unknown to most of us. No facts are more important than these.

THE MONUMENT.

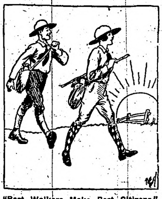
Safe from our idle gaze, this marble shade
Keeps its rebuking solitude of light
We dare not face. He dwelt in other days
When blood and sweat and tears and agonies
Flayed man's soul onward to a hidden goal
Not to be dreamed, but won. His glance is set
Among the stars that no more beckon us
To steadfast striving; and his lips are keen
With the deep questions of eternity.
He hewed and built, and with his resolute hands
Made his dream true, and came at last to die
With mighty scars upon him, and his voice
Lashing the laggard years. We hear no more
His clarion call; the moment is too soft
With moonlit music lulling men to sleep
Where once a morning thunder stirred their souls.
His danger-conquering eyes look down on us
With white rage of an unsurrendering heart
And sends us slinking in our conscious shame,
Fearful of steadfast eyes we cannot cheat;
And smitten by the silence of the scorn
That floods these little days we give to joy,
Rotting in ease that cannot feel or fight.

Our favorite pest today is the gent who has eaten garlic and insists on telling you the story of his life.

8,000 HIKING CLUBS IN GREATER NEW YORK

They Swing Along Highways and Through Woods in Groups of Varying Size.

New York.—One must walk nowadays to be in the swim. Statistics gleaned from the out-door departments of the newspapers, from the Boy Scout and Campfire Girls' organizations, from the Y. M. C. A. branches and kindred bodies, from scores of amateur athletic clubs and from the leading dealers in sporting goods, indicate that today there are no less than 8,000 hiking clubs in Greater New York, with a total membership of more than a quarter of a million men and women, who are keeping themselves in the pink of condition and experiencing the real joy of living by getting regularly out into the open country with no other means of locomotion than their God-given legs.



"Best Walkers Make Best Citizens," Says Mayor of New York.

The city of New York has taken official notice of the movement. On three occasions recently Mayor Hylan has congratulated the boys and girls of the public schools upon their enthusiasm in taking up the new sport of hiking. In his dedication of the great new public playground in the Bronx the other day Mayor Hylan extolled the athletic tendencies of the boys and girls and impressed upon them that there was no better or more profitable way in which they could pass their vacations and utilize their holidays than by the excursions into field and forest of their walking clubs. He gave the same message to the Amateur Athletic Union of Brooklyn a few days later, and when a club of East Side boys and girls visited him at city hall, preparatory to a hike to the tomb of Roosevelt at Oyster Bay he assured them that the best walkers among them would make the best citizens.

Walk and Be Well

No less enthusiastic a champion of the walking game is Dr. Royal S. Copeland, city health commissioner. "The benefit to health and the safeguard to morals to be found in long walks," said Dr. Copeland in an interview, "are too apparent to speak of them. If one takes long walks alone it is well, for he walks the road of health, but if he takes long walks in company it is better for he adds the tonic of companionship to his exercise. Walking is the one form of exercise in which there is the minimum risk of overdoing it. In short, I consider walking the most beneficial of all exercises and it is never out of season."

"Never in my life-time," said Edward R. Wilbur, manager of a nationally known sporting goods store, "have I known such a demand as now for outdoor garments and shoes and stockings and appliances for the tourist's luncheon box. The rapid spread and tremendous popularity of the walking-club idea has no parallel in our experience.

"The hiker can make his requisite just what he feels like spending. Really, there are only two or three articles indispensable to hiking—thick walking shoes that allow lots of room, thick woolen socks and clothing that will give freedom of limb. He should have a canvas or leather musette bag, such as the soldiers used in France.

The Cow in the Knapsack

"To get the real benefit and joy out of hiking luncheon should be carried and prepared, and eaten in the open Bread and cheese, a few slices of bacon, some coffee, a can of condensed milk, and a cake of chocolate furnish high-powered fuel for the hiker and are readily and happily assimilated even by those who in their pre hiking days were afflicted with digestive apparatus so feeble as to balk at crackers and milk. Fortunately for the hiker, he can replenish his simple larder at any cross-roads store and provide himself with the most nutritious and appetizing food in a form that can be conveniently carried.

"No single development in the problem of food transportation for the hunter, fisherman, hiker and all lovers of the out-of-doors can compare with the gift bestowed by the man who first found the way to make condensed milk, thereby putting a dairy in every man's knapsack. Before long there will be a national association of hikers, and Gail Borden will be its patron saint. Such an association could do much to encourage the spread of the most beneficial and universal of all outdoor pastimes, map out interesting routes, secure the establishment of shelters, rest-stations, and camp sites at suitable locations, and insure the rights of pedestrians on country roads."

WITH THE FUNNY MEN

A DISAPPOINTMENT.

"I'm disappointed in that man."

"Why?"

"I borrowed $10 from him the other day."

"Where's the disappointment in that?"

"He actually asked me to return it today. I thought he was a man who could afford to lend me that much indefinitely."

All at Sea.

"That new family next door will soon be getting on Mrs. Jibway's nerves."

"Are they disagreeable?"

"No, but she can't find out what their income is."

"That's nothing to worry about."

"You don't understand. She's bound to have a talking point."

It Pays to Advertise.

A western evangelist makes a practice of painting religious lines on rocks and fences along public highways. One ran: "What will you do when you die?"

Came an advertising man and painted under it:

"Use Delta oil. Good for burns."—American Legion Weekly.

Footprints.

"The poet says great men leave footprints in the sands of time."

"There are different kinds of footprints," rejoined Senator Sorghum, thoughtfully. "Some we observe in the hope to follow them, and others we inspect like detectives looking for clues."

In This Age.

Young Woman (entering office)—Father, dear, can't you come over to have dinner with me and my husband?

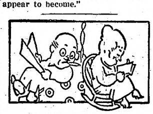
Papa—Your husband? Are you married?

Young Lady—Why, yes. Don't you read the paper, papa.—London Mail.

The Laws and the Lawyers.

"Do you think that constantly making more laws improves men's morals?"

"I don't undertake to say as to morals," replied Senator Sorghum; "but it sharpens their minds. The more laws we make the smarter the lawyers appear to become."



AGREED FOR ONCE

Mrs. Pester—In matters of importance the wisest men are the best men.

Her Husband—Sure! I've noticed it at weddings the best man is the wisest guy.

Very True.

The surest road
To fame and wealth
Is keeping on
The road to health.

Such Luck.

Doctor (to messenger)—Why didn't you give me that message before? Now it's too late.

Messenger Boy—Why? Did the patient die?

Doctor—No, he got well again.

Probably a Dry Discourse.

Professor (to student)—You disturbed me yesterday by talking out loud during my lecture.

Student—Impossible, professor! Impossible! I must have been talking in my sleep, then.

A Mere Nothing!

First Film Star—Got anything special on today, Cyrus?

Not on Oath.

Miss Oldun—I know that age is beginning to tell on me.

Miss Pert—Yes, dear, but you needn't mind so very much. It isn't telling the whole truth.

Speeding Up.

"John, did you kill that roach?"

"No, he was too speedy for me."

"Why, he was just poking around."

"But it didn't take him long to change gears."

A Business Failure.

Alice—Did Gladys make a successful stenographer?

Virginia—No, indeed. She has been at it three years now and is still unmarried.

Jutifies Its Existence.

Mr. Pstunge—Did that correspondence course on "Success in Business" ever help any one to prosperity?

Mr. Pstinger—Sure! I'm making a pretty good thing out of it.

NEWTON SCHOOL

The Christmas program and tree celebration given at the Newton school on Dec. 22 was very well attended. The teacher and pupils were very much pleased with the help and cooperation shown by the people of the district and they will not forget the kindness.

The pupils here have attended very regularly. We have had only a few cases of illness so far.

Dist. No. 30 is using the star method of checking up the spelling papers. Lars Barstad, a seventh grader, has won the honors of having a perfect spelling lesson every day throughout November and December.

Ruby Solmonson and Severin Barstad were promoted to second grade at Christmas time.

The Seal sale turned out very well out here and the Salvation Army relief fund was contributed to with enthusiasm.

We wish you all a very happy New Year from the pupils and teacher of Dist. No. 30.

DISTRICT NO. 154.

We held our Citizen League meeting Friday, Dec. 8. The meeting was called to order by our president, Esther Berg. The minutes of the last meeting were read by our secretary, Goldie Gunderson. After our business meeting we saluted the flag and sang a few patriotic songs.

A fine of one cent is paid when we use the word "ain't," when we do not clean our shoes, and brush our teeth.

The eighth graders have studied the poem, "Old Ironsides," and next month they will study "To a Mountain Daisy."

The boys are building a barn for manual training and are coming very nicely with it. The next thing they will build is a house, which we hope will be as nice as our barn.

We have made spelling booklets for the month of December.

The month of December has been a pleasant school month and we hope January, 1923, will also be.—Elsie Randorf, Teacher.

"The Squirrel," by Olaf Torstveit, Fourth Grade. One day I was out in the woods and I saw a robin. He said, "It is going to be a snow storm." He told me that it was going to be today. I started for home and before I was half way home it began to snow and blow so hard that I fell off the tree. At the foot of the tree sat a big dog. I ran as fast as I could but the dog was right behind. I saw a big snow drift in my road. The dog fell in the snow and I ran home and told my little babies about the dog and the snow drift.

"A Nickel," Ida Aldrich, Eighth Grade. I was found in the Black Hills of South Dakota. I was brilliant white before taken out of the mine. I was softer than copper and harder than gold and I could take the polish good. I was only one hundred thousandth of an inch thick.

They got me loose and put me and many more on an electric car and I was taken out of the mine. I was taken to a smelting station and made into a nickel.

The overseer took me and said: "You look very nice for my little girl to spend." When he got home he gave me to the little girl and she went outside to play and she put me into her pocket. I fell out into the snow. I stayed there for six months and an old greedy man found me and picked me up. Then he bought some snuff with me. The storekeeper sent me by mail to Seattle, Wash. I stayed there for about one month. Then some men got hold of me and I was taken to British Columbia. I stayed there for one day. I moved to Washington, D. C., and a little boy got me and put me into his bank. I stayed there for a long time. Then I was taken to the larger bank and I stayed there the rest of his life.

FAIRVIEW SCHOOL, DIST. 56.

Jack Frost seems to be waging a successful war upon us. At any rate we are scarcely able to keep body and soul together at school. In spite of the fact that we are encountering difficulties of that sort it does not effect us in our work. This is plainly shown by the splendid co-operation of the pupils.

The proceeds of the social given here some time ago will be spent in supplying our school room with curtains to aid in staging our programs, and in buying the necessary supplies for a Christmas tree.

We are all very enthusiastically working on a Christmas program consisting of various plays, songs and recitations, to be given Friday evening, Dec. 22. We do not intend to make "movie stars" of ourselves but we will stage a play that would almost compare with one of Charlie Chaplin's comedies.

Efforts are being made to deck our school room with every suggestion of the coming holiday. The lower grade pupils have, during their construction period, ably assisted in making bells stars and Santa Clauses, which are part of our decorations. The window curtains have been adorned with stars of different colors arranged by the pupils.

It is quite an inspiration to know that we will soon be enjoying a two-weeks' vacation, beginning Dec. 23 and ending Jan. 8.

We are all hoping that the new year will give us new vigor to go on with our work as in the past weeks.—Clara Oski, Teacher.

BIG GROVE SCHOOL—DIST. 70-J.

The pupils who had perfect attendance for the month of Novemebr were Olga Jorgenson, Mabel Jorgenson, Baldwin Neilson and Merritt Baker. Others were present every day but were tardy.

The new library books that were received have been pretty well digested by now, especially those for the primary grades.

Work in manual training and sewing has been started. The boys are making hammer handles and the girls are making aprons and doll clothes.

The fourth graders are having their first experience in map drawing. After a little practice they expect to be able show us some fine looking maps.

The boys, assisted by Mr. Simonson, succeeded in putting up posts for the volley ball net before the ground was frozen. Mrs. Dahl has given us the net so now we have the full equipment. However, the coming of cold weather and snow closed the volley ball season but everything will he in order for some good games next spring.

Heard in 3rd and 4th spelling class: Teacher—Use the word "season" in a sentence. Oliver—No response. Teacher—Tell how many seasons in a year. Oliver—No response. Merritt—(looking rather intelligent) Three. Teacher—Name them. Merritt — Prairie chicken season, partridge season and deer season.

The pupils enjoyed a four day vacation for Thanksgiving, while the teacher visited at her parental home near Viking.

HIAWATHA SCHOOL—DIST. 26.

The pupils of the Hiawatha school organized a Little Citizens League on Oct. 27. Pat Beerbower was elected president; Neva Burtness, vice president, and Agnes Kvall, secretary. A program committee was elected: Vivian Olson, chairman, Gertrude Grundhaus and Bertha Stene.

At the last meeting we decided to have a Christmas party in the afternoon of Dec. 22 instead of a public entertainment.

Those who received perfect attendance certificates for November are: Earl and Ruth Turnwall, Agnes Kvall, Raymond and Eunice Gilmet, Harold Matzke, Charley Asp, Marie, William and Gertrude Grundhaus, Elmer, Arthur and Anna Johnson.

The total enrollment is now 47. Several pupils have been absent the past week on account of illness.—Agnes Kvall, Sec.

Because of additional preparatory work for the holiday entertainments the Rural Page of this issue will be pitifully shortened.

I sincerely hope that the county teachers will have something of interest for the coming issue. Get into your harness.

"Little Oaks" has been a very busy shop lately. We are glad that the law of gravitation still applies. We, too, wish to pipe a shrill note of Merry Christmas and Happy New Year to all.

I wish to thank the members of the Starlight Circle for their very splendid and co-operative work during the past year.

Hoping you'll have a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year, I am,

Sincerely,
LAURA KRON, Chairman.

FARMERS' ILLS DUE TO FAULTY MARKETS BUREAU CHIEF SAYS

Co-operation Held Remedy by J. F. Reed in Address Before Annual Convention.

Higher prices, which can be obtained through better marketing and distribution, rather than increased production is the great need in agriculture today, said J. F. Reed, president of the Minnesota Farm Bureau Federation in his annual address before the fourth annual convention of that organization, held this week at St. Paul.

Co-operation, he held, offers the best solution for the problem, and said "producers' organizations are going forward, in spite of all obstacles." He urged government agencies "supposedly instituted to be of service to the farmers" to give more consideration to the marketing problem.

"We have," he said, "rather than over-production, a lack of proper facilities to market and distribute our products. Millions of people improperly nourished and clothed prove this statement.

"There is no disposition on the part of farmers to belittle the efforts of those who have taken over the distribution and marketing of farm products, but we do feel that those who have engaged in such work have obtained greater remuneration than the men who produce the product. Such being the case, it is clear to me that our marketing system has failed to carry its share of the burden. Continued production on the present quantity basis is a liability to agriculture."

Farmers, Mr. Reed said, must learn to yield a degree of their independence of action and more truly adjust themselves to their neighbors' needs, if co-operative marketing is to accomplish the greatest possible results.

Gray Silver, Washington representative of the American Farm Bureau, told the convention that Farm Bureau activities at the national capitol had saved farmers more than 80 times the money paid in dues to the national organization. "Farmers are holding their congressional representatives to strictest accountability," he said.

J. W. Coverdale, secretary of the national organization, discussing the Farm Bureau's job asid the first problem is to keep the movement from following unsound policies that have led to the destruction of many promising farmer organizations.

Women's interest in the program centered around an address by Mrs. Charles Schuttler of Farmington, Mo., who talked on the importance of the farm home in the movement.

Reports were given by department heads: F. L. French, secreaary; V. E. Anderson, treasurer; J. S. Jones, organization; and S. E. Elliottt, news service.

HAMERY DEFIES SNOW AND MOTORS FROM CROOKSTON

The snow storms early in the month have not blocked all roads to motor traffic as many people have been led to believe. Geo. T. Hamery, president of the Farmers State Bank, and Alfred Gulseth motored here Tuesday from Crookston, coming the distance in about two and a half hours. They found the roads in better shape for auto travel than they themselves had anticipated, the only bad place encountered being between Gonvick and Winsor, where they were obliged to break several drifts. The two men will return to Crookston tomorrow.—Gonvick Banner.

A BOOSTER.

'Way down East at the Niagara Paper mills there is a man who signs himself "A. Booster," and who publishes a house organ called "The Ambassador." If someone were to ask me for a living example of a true optimist I would surely answer "A. Booster," for every month he gives his readers some cheerful, optimistic message. Here is one of his latest.

In a single day in a crowded city—

I saw a policeman stop traffic and lead a small child safely across the street.

I saw a man chase a stranger to hand her the purse she had dropped.

I saw tears come into a woman's eyes as she handed a forlorn beggar a dime.

I saw a doorman on a crowded train who announced all stations clearly and treated all passengers in a courteous manner.

I saw a politician who places public interest above personal popularity.

I saw three optimists for every pessimist and looked at each optimist twice as long.

I saw stores crowded with people in a locality where some men said there was no business.

I saw a man pay his income tax with a smile.

I saw a man who admitted he knew less about city politics than the mayor and less about international affairs than Lloyd George.

I saw ten inspiring articles and read them through and half as many that I wisely discarded with the first paragraph.

I saw one man who did the work of two get double pay and two men who did the work of one get fired.

The looking glass never speaks so eloquently for a girl as a dishpan does.

Whoever started the idea that women are worse gossips than men?

Local Bowlers Show Good Form; Nice Scores Made

Competition Keener as Season Gets Under Way in Citizens Bowling League.

Thief River Falls bowlers are swinging into form. When several 200 scores scores are chalked up in a single evening the fact of this must be admitted for that is what they are doing and apparently without much trouble. Five men are now on the honor roll, they being Morse with 575; Carl Olson, 561; J. Olson, 527; Eliason, 516, and Babcock, 510.

The jinx has followed the Co-operative creamery around for so long now that they feel lonesome without his presence. Even though the quint has walked off with the honors of chalking up the season's highest total pins and on total pins every night with one exception, they still must be content with staying in the tail-enders' position. Why this is so is hard to explain. Following are last week's totals:

TWO TRAPPERS DROWN NEAR SUGAR BUSH LAKE

According to the Fosston Journal, Ben Brunnette and his nephew Bisco Brunnette were drowned in Sugar Bush Lake, south of Fosston, while out trapping. The bodies were discovered later in eight feet of water by Paul and Joe Bellecour, who investigated when they found a pack, a rifle and a cap on the ice which they identified as belonging to the Brunnette boys.

It appears that the trappers were going across the thin ice of the lake and broke through. There were signs that they had put up a valiant fight to save themselves from drowning but to no avail. One of them had used a knife in an effort to to catch a hold in the ice and draw himself out. That a long an hard fight was put up was evident from the wide expanse of ice broken up.

MARY PICKFORD HAS PRETTY STORY NEXT

"Little Lord Fauntleroy" Retains All the Beautiful Things in the Story.

The millions of readers of Frances Hodgson Burnett's world-loved novel, "Little Lord Fauntleroy," will be delighted to know that Mary Pickford in reproducing the story for the screen has preserved all its quaintness and charm, and has been especially faithful to the costumes and manners of the period depicted so vividly by the author.

As a vehicle for the lovely Mary, this story is ideal, running as it does the entire gamut of emotional drama, pathos and riotous comedy. It gives her the greatest opportunity she ever has had for the display of that brilliant genius which has so endeared her to the hearts of Mr. World and his Wife. In the play, scheduled to appear at the Lyceum Theatre Friday and Saturday, she has a chance to let her public see her as a mature woman and also as a boy of seven. In the world of dramatic art what could be more difficult? Not only in the same play but in the same scenes, will this greatest of all screen artists be seen in these two different roles.

Through the medium of double exposure, that most baffling of photographic methods, Miss Pickford is able to appear as two different characters in the same scene, thus producing the most perfect illusion possible.

The Victorian dresses with their puff-sleeves, bustles and long trains; the thatched houses and the magnificent castle shown in this film tend to make it an achievement in pictureland.

And yet who can ever forget the rheumatic old apple-woman, the portly grocer and the lovable bootblack who who were such great cronies of Cedric Errol? The human interest and heart appeal in this picture is said to top anything ever yet translated into celluloid.

Miss Pickford will be seen in a greater variety and more novel set of costumes in "Little Lord Fauntleroy" than in any play in which she has ever before appeared. The display of women's fashion typical of the Eighties will undoubtedly prove very interesting to style devotees, especially when contrasted with the scanty attire of today.

But most appealing of all will be Mary Pickford the little boy and Mary Pickford the grown-up woman. The presentation of this feature will be more elaborate than anything yet shown at the Lyceum Theatre.

MINNESOTA HAS NEW HOLSTEIN MILK CHAMPION

Grahamholm Colantha Pauline Segis is is the latest Minnesota Holstein cow to acquire a world's championship for milk and butter production. As a senior four-year-old she has just completed a 365-day semi-official test with a record of 34,298.8 pounds of milk containing 1,141.4 pound of fat equivalent to 1,426.76 pounds butter. She is owned by Christopher Graham of Rochester. By this great performance she displaces another high producing Minnesota Holstein cow, Princess Aaggie Polkadot De Kol, whose yearly record is 31,600.7 pounds milk containing 1,315.6 pounds butter. The latter cow is owned by H. F. Fisher of Shakopee.

A study of the records of the Grahamholm cow covering this test show her best seven days' production is 840.7 pounds milk containing 34.57 pounds butter. Her best production for 30 consecutive days is 3,457.2 pounds milk containing 143.89 pounds butter. Her daily average is 93.9 pounds milk for 365 consecutive days, which makes her the champion milk producing cow of Minnesota for all ages and breeds.

It is a significant fact that both milk and butter championships of the world in the four-year division are held by Minnesota Holstein cows. Grahamholm Colantha Pauline Segis is now the champion producer for both milk and butter in the senior four-year-old class. The junior four-year-old championship recently was given to Mamsell Johanna of the C. L. Spaulding farm, Warren, while the highest record butter producer of the world in this class is Queen Piebe Mercedes, owned by E. C. Schroeder of Moorhead.

Over two hundred years ago an envoy of the British King, in a speech to the Duke of Brandenburgh, used these words: "A capacity to do good not only gives a title to it, but also makes the doing of it a duty." That is a right nobel sentiment, well worth reflecting upon in days when duties seem so rather irksome.

Dam Matter Is Before Council

Committee Favors Plan of Securing Six Months' Option on Present Site.

Will Secure Engineer to Investigate Power Possibilities Along River.

The regular meeting of the city council was held last night at the council rooms with all members of the body present. About the only important matter to come before the meeting was a report of the committee on the proposition of the city purchasing the present dam in order that Thief River Falls may in future be assured of adequate power and lighting facilities.

The committee, consisting of Daniel Shaw, Math Barzen, F. J. Stebbins and H. W. Protzeller, were of the opinion that it might be well for the city to attempt to secure a six months' option on the present dam. It was thought that this would allow the city sufficient time to work out a plan by which it could come into possession of water power facilities of some kind, and in that connection favored the idea of securing the services of an engineer who would make a thorough investigation of water power possibilities for a distance of about two miles up and down the river. Before a large outlay of money was made it was first thought best to determine whether or not a dam some distance farther down the river would not furnish a better flow of water. The same pertains to the building of a dam about the same distance up the river from the present dam site. City Clerk A. H. Akre was instructed to secure the services of an engineer.

H. W. Protzeller, who is acting in an advisory capacity to the council and the committee, stated that he believed the city should make investigation of whether or not the present dam, in the event it was decided to purchase it, would furnish sufficient power for future needs of the city. He stated that if more power could be developed either up or down the river for two miles, the dam should be situated there.

Alleged Accomplice In Marie Wick Murder Goes to Jail; Selling Liquor

Figured Prominently in Sensational Trial at Valley City, N. D., Over a Year Ago.

Andy Brown, who was held as an accomplice for the murder of Marie Wick of Grygla, the brutal crime for which William Gummer was convicted and sentenced to life imprisonment at Bismarck, N. D., pleaded guilty last Saturday to a charge of bootlegging and was sentenced to 90 days in pail and fined $200 by Judge A. T. Cole of Fargo.

According to Fargo newspapers, Brown has been closely watched by police of that city and has been suspected of transporting and selling liquor over a period of several months although up to last week he has beer successful in eluding capture for his crime. Last week, however, he was caught with the goods and his arrest and sentence speedily followed.

Brown figured prominently in the trial of William Gummer for the murder of the Grygla woman, perpetrated at a Fargo hotel when she spent the night there with the intention of catching a train the next morning for points in North Dakota. Brown was completely cleared at the trial and had intermittently been making Fargo his headquarters since that time.

Oen Department Store to Go on Strict Cash Basis

No Credit to Be Extended Patrons After February 1, Is Announcement.

The Oen department store, one of the oldest mercantile establishments in this section of Minnesota, this week announces that after February 1, no further credit extensions will be made to patrons of the store.

The new policy of the Oen store is made after a thorough investigation of the problem of credit extensions to patrons and the management came to its decision of going on a cash basis after it was discovered that collection of store accounts has been made increasingly difficult during the past two years.

Lower prices and better service will be the outcome of doing business on a cash basis, states the management of the store, because of the many economies that can be worked out in the saving of labor and the necessity of keeping several hundred book accounts.

All farm produce brought in is to be considered the same as cash.

The picture will be shown for two days only and is the film that Thief River Falls theatergoers have been waiting to see. There will be one matinee and popular admission prices will prevail.

FLAMES DESTROY PLUMMER HOTEL

A disastrous fire last Tuesday completely destroyed the Plummer hotel. The fire started in the second story from unknown origin about 10 o'clock in the morning and within an hour the building was burned to the ground. The fire engines were on the ground within a few minutes after the bell was rung, but it seems that they were not in proper shape and could not be used. However, the people got busy and saved practically all of the personal property on the ground floor and some on the second story. It was fortunate that there was no wind or it would have been almost impossible to save the telephone office and Kramer's Restaurant and Rice's Ice House and other buildings. We understand that the building and contents were partially covered by insurance.—Plummer Pioneer.

MARRIAGES ARE FEWER

Only 97 Licenses Issued in 1922, According to Record of Clerk of Court Adolf Eklund.

Except for 1921, which set a low record for Pennington county in the matter of marriage licenses issued, the year 1922 showed a marked falling off from the average for the past 12 years. In 1922 only 97 licenses were issued. The low record was in 1921, when only 83 were issued, as against 126 in 1920, which was the highest on record. The record for the 12 years prior to 1922, is as follows:

Local Man Gives Views at Hearing

W. W. Prichard, Sr., Gives Committee Opinion on Rural Credits.

Declares Northern Sections of State Should Be on Par With Southern Part.

W. W. Prichard, Sr., one of the best-known authorities in northern Minnesota on farm legislation and banking, last week appeared before the House committee having in charge the rural credits bill, the second measure introduced at this session of the Legislature. A number of business men of the state testified before the committee and gave their views on various amendments to the proposed measure. The Minneapolis Tribune had the following to say regarding the conference held at the state capitol:

"Provisions of the rural credits bill requiring actual and bona-fide residence and use of farm lands by anyone attempting to negotiate a loan from the state, was the chief objection to the proposed bill in its present form, as disclosed at an informal hearing conducted by the special House committee on agriculture at the capitol.

"The bill, in its present form, with this proviso included, it was pointed out, is calculated to defeat its best purposes and to handicap the individual it was intended to benefit. W. W. Prichard, Thief River Falls, raised this point.

"Mr. Prichard, Israel Sjoberg, Roseau, and Sam Hammerbeck, Little Falls, participated in the hearing.

"Mr. Prichard favored a less restricted entree in the state loans. He was reminded by Representative Theodore Christianson of Dawson that the principal reason for the stringent restrictions was to prohibit land speculators and manipulators from taking advantage of the loans.

"Mr. Prichard then cited as a typical case a farmer living in another state, renting, and then removing to Minnesota to take up actual residence and occupation on a Minnesota farm. Under the bill's present language such a farmer would be disbarred from enjoying the facilities offered by the rural credits bill, and for the reason that he was not actually a resident on and working the land at the time."

Real Harmony Exists in North Dakota Legislature

Real Work of Session Begins—Making Boards Non-Political in Nature Is Sought.

The North Dakota legisalture entered the second week of the 1923 session with harmony still existing between the independents and the nonpartisans, and with leaders on both sides asserting that in the main this harmony will continue throughout the session. The differences in prospects, as gathered from conversations with members, does not indicate anything like the uproarious sessions of the last few years in North Dakota when the nonpartisans were in power in both or one house.

The real work of the session began Monday. A committee is at work on the recommendation submitted by Gov. R. A. Nestos to the legislature, with a view of presenting what will be called the "independent program." The nonpartisans thus far are without a program, being in the minority. The independent program will embrace the important recommendations of the governor calling for the appointment of non-political boards to take over the management of the state industries, particularly the state mill and elevator at Grand Forks.

Speaker Johnson had completed his list of committees, giving liberal representation to the nonpartisans, as was done by Lieutenant Governor F. H. Hyland in appointing the senate standing committees.

Governor Nestos had announced that with respect to consideration of the affairs of the state industries, that all of the avenues of information of the state would gladly be opened to the committee of the legislature. Officials of the Bank of North Dakota have started preparing their report for the year of 1922, with a view of having the report available for the legislators within two weeks.

Rathbun in City.

R. B. Rathbun of St. Paul, State Superintendent of Banks, was a visitor in the city Saturday, being enroute to Badger to look over the accounts of the defunct Scandinavian Bank at that place. While in the city Mr. Rathbun conferred with Mayor Bratrud, who has charge of the affairs of the Holt bank now in process of liquidation, and he also found time to visit with his friend, H. S. Dahlen, the two being old acquaintances at Detroit. Mr. Rathbun returned to St. Paul Monday.

Sandstone Marshal Shot in Row Over Liquor Deal

William Peroy, marshal of the village of Sandstone, was shot in the upper left arm and Charles Sukola received a bullet wound in the left thigh while wrestling for the possession of a gun drawn by Peroy, who was attempting to arrest Sukola. According to Peroy, Sukola was resisting arrest. Both men are in the hospital. It is believed that the affair resulted from a six months feud between the two.

About that time Peroy was shot in the leg and beaten into unconsciousness when he attempted to arrest Sukola on a warrant for selling moonshine liquor. He was searching Sukola's home at the time of the first altercation.

Meeting of Woman's Club Is Held Monday Evening

Eighth Anniversary Meeting to Be Held January 8 at Home of Dr. and Mrs. Froehlich.

A regular meeting of the Woman's Club was held Monday, January 8. "Books" was the topic of the afternoon. Each member responded to roll call with the name of her favorite author. Mrs. A. W. Jardine gave an interesting paper on "Popular American Authors," and Mrs. Willis Akre's topic was "Review of the Season's Best Seller." She chose "If Winter Comes," which she handled in a comprehensive manner. Mrs. W. W. Prichard, Jr., favored the club with a vocal solo and responded to an encore. The hostesses were Mesdames E. L. Rolland, W. R. Hall and W. H. Cline.

The next meeting, January 22, is the eighth anniversary of the club's organization and will be in charge of the Past Presidents. The meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. H. W. Froehlich.

N. J. Anderson Opens Up Abstracting Office Here

Former Register of Deeds to Conduct Regular Legal Office in Scandia Block.

N. J. Anderson, former register of deeds, has opened up an abstracting office in room 210 of the Scandia block and hereafter will conduct all business connected with the proper preparation of all title and record documents, in which business he has had many years of experience.

Mr. Anderson has a fully equipped office in his new location and believes there is a live field in Thief River Falls for an office of the kind he has recently established. His reliability in this connection during the time he was the incumbent in the register of deeds office won for him the uncommon cognomen of "the old reliable N. J.," and it is the intention of Mr. Anderson to live up to that motto.

Miss Gladys Anderson, who for the past several years has been her father's chief assistant and deputy register of deeds, will leave Thief River Falls the latter part of the week for Minneapolis, where she will take up similar duties in a large abstracting office in the mill city.

Ford to Erect Great Industrial Plant in Twin Cities in Spring

Henry Ford has purchased 167½ of land adjacent to the federal high dam on the St. Paul side of the Mississippi river for $315,000 and will begin the construction of a $10,000,000 manufacturing plant there this winter, R. E. Hilton, secretary of the St. Paul association, announced today.

The plant will be built, according to the announcement, regardless of the outcome of Mr. Ford's application for the rights to develop the power of the federal high dam.

The actual purchase of the property was carried out between the Greater St. Paul committee, of which L. H. Brittin was special representative, and the Ford Motor company.

Work on the construction of the plant, according to the announcement, will begin before spring. A construction program of several years is planned and when the project reaches its maximum, a $10,000,000 plant will be employing between 14,000 and 15,000 men, with an annual payroll estimated at $27,000,000.

Speaker Keeps His Pledge to Farmers

Nineteen Members of Agricultural Committee Are Real "Dirt" Farmers.

Women Legislators Secure Important Assignments at 1923 Session.

Committee assignments announced Monday by Speaker W. I. Nolan indicate that he has kept his promise with the farmer members of the 1923 session of the Legislature, the important agricultural committee containing the names of 19 farmers, with Carl M. Swenson of Ashby, Minn., as chairman. Five minority members of the House are recognized with chairmanships in the assignments to standing committees, announced by Speaker Nolan when the body convened late Monday. Old members of the Legislature head each of the 44 committees of the House.

Theodore Christianson, Dawson editor, is head of the committee on appropriations. Women members of the legislature fared particularly well at the hands of Speaker Nolan and each were given excellent committee appointments.

Marius Waldal, member from this district, also was handed several good appointments and, although he did not land on the committee on agriculture, he was elected to serve on the committee on grains and markets. His name also appears on several other committees, including that of railroads.

Minority members have fared better than they expected. Carl M. Iverson of Ashby, who was the minority candidate for speaker, heads the important committee on agriculture. Erling Swenson of Minneapolis, leader of their city contingent and candidate for speaker two years ago, is chairman of corporations. A. C. Welch of Glencoe, the oldest leaguer in years of service, is chairman of public buildings, an important new committee. B. M. Benson of Crookston is chairman of university and schools. Bert Walworth of Winona, who was elected with endorsement of the league but voted for Nolan for speaker, is chairman of the labor committee.

When elected speaker last week, Mr. Nolan announced no committees would be packed, except committees dealing with questions of interest to the farmer, which would be "packed with farmers." He made this pledge good Monday. The committee on agriculture has 19 farmer members out of 21. Dairy products and livestock has 24 farmers out of 25, and 17 of the 19 on grain and warehouse are farmers. The committee on markets and marketing, which will handle rural credits bills and measures to improve the market conditions for farm products, has 22 farmer members out of 31.

Only a few house members head the same committees as two years ago. Those continued in former chairmanships are Theodore Christianson, appropriations; L. O. Teigen, civil administration; commerce, manufactures and retail trade, George W. Redenberg; education, R. W. Hitchcock; grain and warehouse, C. M. Bendixen; insurance, J. N. Jacobson; public highways, Oscar A. Swenson; rules, W. I. Norton, and soldiers home and soldiers bonus, John B. Hompe.

John B. Pattison succeeds the late Ralph J. Parker as chairman of judiciary; Thomas H. Girling becomes chairman of taxes, and Guy E. Dilley succeeds him as chairman of general legislation. R. A. Wilkinson succeeds Elias Nordgren as chairman of markets and marketing and is replaced as chairman of dairy products and livestock by S. B. Shonyo. F. A. Green goes to the committee on motor vehicles, which will have the automobile tax bills. Dr. M. B. Cullum is chairman of cities, and Dr. A. B. Cole, former senator, succeeds him as chairman of public health and hospitals. Charles T. Murphy is chairman of banks, and Daniel DeLury replaces him on public domain. W. L. Bernard of Duluth, who opposed the street railway act two years ago, heads public utilities.

J. O. Haugland is chairman of elections, George H. Herried of game and fish, Otto C. Neuman of municipal affairs, John A. Johnson of railroads, and J. R. Sweitzer heads public welfare. A. J. Thomas is chairman of reapportionment, T. B. Taylor of state and county fairs, and John Kelly of state development and immigration. L. C. Spooner, father of the state prison farm machinery enterprise, heads a new committee on state prison. M. C. Lightner is chairman of workmen's compensation. W. J. Darby is chairman of temperance.

Surprised Choir Member.

Members of the Trinity church choir gave a six o'clock dinner, which was in the nature of a surprise for Miss Effie Christianson last Thursday evening at the home of Dr. and Mrs. J. N. Nesse, the pleasant affair being tendered her upon the eve of her departure for Madison, Wis., where she will be connected with the new Loken Department store. As a memento of the occasion she was presented with a beautiful souvenir spoon.

Ada Votes For New Electric Light Bond

The election held at Ada Tuesday on the question of issuing $28,000 electric light bonds to pay for the new electric distribution system resulted 284 in favor of the proposition and 80 against. It carried by a larger majority than in the first election. which stood 285 in favor and 87 against. The new lines are already practically completed and connection with houses and business places will be made at once. It will probably require a month to complete the work. As fast as connections are made the high line service will be used and the city plant will be operated until the last patron is changed from the direct system to the new one. As soon as the changes are completed a lower rate for current will be made.

G. N. ENGINEER DIES

Benjamin Pink, first fireman and then engineer, and in the employ of the Great Northern railway for the past 35 years, died suddenly last Thursday morning while on his way to Duluth with his train, No. 36, the morning passenger east bound. When the train reached Swan River, Mr. Pink climbed down to oil the engine. He felt suddenly sick and weak, and asked another engineer, who was deadheading through from Cass Lake to Superior, to take the train into Superior. Mr. Pink then went into the baggage car and sat down in a chair. In less than an hour he died, before the train reached Cloquet. The cause of death was given as heart failure.

Oldest in point of service of any engineer on this division of the Great Northern, Engineer Pink was known to thousands of people who saw him daily on his runs. He made Grand Rapids a tie-up point for years while on freight runs and while driving the range train. His passing brings genuine regret to many people.—Grand Rapids Herald-Review.

THE SMART WILD DUCKS.

Wild ducks are credited with a great deal of wisdom, especially by hunters who are endeavoring to get close enough for successful shots. That they are able to know where they are perfectly safe, even after the season closes, is believed by many people in Grand Rapids.

Every winter there are a few wild ducks that stay through the cold weather in the Mississippi river, which never freezes over for some distance below the mills of the Itasca Paper company. This year the flock is apparently limited to five, four blue bills and one hooded merganser. These ducks are making their home a short distance below the Leland avenue bridge, and right behind the home of J. P. Murphy, the Itasca county game warden. They are so tame that interested spectators are able to get within a few yards of the flock before they take wing. They return, however, in a short time, and look trustfully up the hill at the Murphy home to see if the warden is keeping a careful lookout for them.

Last winter Mr. Murphy found one of the ducks frozen to the shore ice after an unusually severe night. He took the bird into the house, thawed the ice from its feathers, and liberated the duck in the yard, when it immediately returned to the river. Perhaps the same bird led his flock to this locality again.—Grand Rapids Herald-Review.

The basket social and dance given by the Sons of Norway last Friday evening was well attended and all who participated had a good time. A substantial amount was netted for the building fund of the lodge.

THE SALVATION ARMY

MAYOR'S PROCLAMATION.

To the Constructive Citizenship of Thief River Falls:

You are no doubt aware of the work accomplished by the Salvation Army during the last year. The results of their efforts in this city is a justification for not only continuing the work, but broadening the scope of its activities.

January 14 to 20 has been set aside as the Annual Salvation Army Home Service Appeal week and we want your moral and financial endorsement as a friend and citizen of Thief River Falls who realizes the necessity for taking care of the "down but not-out" and to further Christian Endeavor.

Because the Salvation Army works among the poor, the downtrodden, the lowly, the humble, the outcast, Thief River Falls will not certainly turn down their request without ceremony, in the face of a very tangible good work which it has accomplished. Let us not give "something on account" but instead make up the $2,700 in jig time.

Come on, Thief River Falls!

(Signed),
JOHN BRATRUD,
Mayor.

Members of the Salvation Army executive committee have vowed they are determined to "stay with the campaign" until every resource in raising the $2,700 quota necessary to support the Thief River Falls Salvation Army corps has been exhausted.

Out of the $2,700 needed for 1923 work, only $285 has been subscribed. This is due to the fact that reports from workers has not even "commenced to begin" coming in.

An official "kick-off" meeting is to be held at the Elks' club Thursday evening for all of the fifty campaign team captains and in united effort this will put the campaign over the top on the dates of January 14 to 20, being the week set aside by Mayor John Bratrud as Salvation Army Week.

The campaign is in the hands of 50 of the most prominent business and professional men of the city, who have their supplies in readiness for action on Monday morning. The organization consists of: J. S. Arneson, campaign chairman; Theo. Quale, advisory board chairman; C. H. Jung, N. W. Tarrant, W. W. Prichard Jr., Carl Christofferson, Alfred Bredeson, Nels Christianson, T. M. Thronson, Carl Froseth, E. J. Rustad, John Morgan, Carl B. Larson, Dr. Milan, C. D. Gustafson, T. P. Anderson, W. J. Brown, L. R. Johnston, Thos. Austin and others.

Mrs. F. E. Hunt has been named by the American Legion Auxiliary to form a sufficient organization to thoroughly cover residence districts in the campaign.

A whirlwind campaign will be conducted by the team captains next week so that the objective will surely be reached.

"There is no thought of discontinuing the campaign until the full $2,700 has been raised." was the statement issued at campaign headquarters at the Elks' club last night. "The organization doing the tangible good work right here in Thief River Falls that the Salvation Army is doing on the limited amount of money they have to do with surely must receive the hearty financial endorsement of representative citizens."

The secretary's office at the Elks' club will be Salvation Army campaign headquarters during Home Service Appeal Week. This privilege has been granted by officials of the Elk lodge.

The above work and an average weekly allowance of only $5 as salary to the local Salvation Army two officers constitutes the work accomplished locally in 1922 with $700 raised on last year's Home Service Campaign. This is showing a splendid result, indeed.

In raising their quota for 1923 work, they will be enabled proportionate greater results.

To date five young girls have been taken to the St. Paul Rescue Home from Pennington county. This item if cared for at public expense would be considerable.

THE GREAT NORTHERN DEPOT.

The Tribune believes the time has come for the people of Thief River Falls to assert themselves in the matter of a new Great Northern depot. The unsightly makeshift which is permitted to disfigure Main avenue was good enough twenty years ago. Like the homesteader's shack on the frontier, however, the structure has served its purpose and outlived its usefulness and should now give way to something more in keeping with the commercial importance of the city and community.

We believe the business of the Great Northern is of sufficient importance in the local field to call for better treatment in return than has been evidenced by the officials of that road in the past. Thief River Falls owes it to those travelers who come into the city via the Great Northern, or who depart by that route, to bring to the attention of the Great Northern officials the injustice which is daily being done by maintaining a station here which would disgrace a desert water tank. The station in no way conforms to the regulations of the state laws, and we believe action can be forced by applying to the State Railroad and Warehouse Commission.

The city is fed up on excuses and delays, and since no appeal based upon fairness and equity seems to bring results, The Tribune is of the opinion that local sentiment will sustain the city officials or any other constituted authority in taking such steps as will seem best suited to bring the officials of the Great Northern to their senses.

THE LATEST BLUFF.

The most recent bluff of the Conservancy Board is contained in an editorial in last week's Times, being a threat that the proposed drainage project must go through now—in accordance with the plan submitted—or be forever lost. Well, who's worrying? What is there in this situation to get excited about? It's no skin off the Conservancy Board, is it?

It begins to look to a man up a tree as if the people who are so intensely interested in foisting something upon the farmers which they do not want, will have to take it out in worrying. The farmers simply do not want it—say they cannot pay for it—and if the project is now dismissed, as it assuredly ought to be, then it will be the farmers' own lookout if the great Conservancy Board and its newspapers can prevent its being reinstated when such action is undertaken.

However, bear this in mind: This country functioned long before the members of the Conservancy Board were born, and we very much suspect the earth will continue to revolve upon its axis after they have been gathered to their fathers; congress will pass laws, drainage will be furthered, and business in general will be transacted as usual.

Since the matter may merely have been overlooked, we will again ask the Times to quote that section of the laws governing the Red Lake project which limits the cost of construction to one-third of the estimated assessment for benefits. Everything else, we believe, is perfectly clear to the interested farmers.

THE GOVERNOR'S MESSAGE.

Governor Preus presented a fine message to the legislature last week, emphasizing the problems of agriculture as demanding the most careful attention of the members. He advocates a state income tax, citing the difficulty in so adjusting the tax burden as to make it fair to the man who owns a lot of property which is in plain sight of the assessor, but which produces no income, and which operates in favor of the wealthy citizen whose property is made up of stocks and bonds. In accordance with the recommendation of the governor, the legislature will undoubtedly submit an amendment to the voters at the next election, that being about all that can be accomplished at this session.

The governor indicated his sympathy with a proper rural credits law, and a measure has already been introduced in both houses designed to meet the requirements of the farmer. As pointed out by Mr. Prichard of this city, who spoke before the committee last week the bill should be amended to permit loans up to 70 per cent of the reasonable appraised value of the land, plus 40 per cent of the insurable value of the improvements.

As a whole the message of the governor was an able presentation of the pressing needs of the state, and it is to be hoped that the members of the legislature give the document the heed which it deserves.

MOONSHINE JUDGES.

The time has come for plain speaking with reference to judges who contribute to the crime of moonshining by dealing leniently with the offenders against the liquor laws of the country. How can enforcement officials be expected to bring the culprits to the bar of justice time after time when they know in advance that chicken hearted judges will let them off with a light fine, or a minimum jail sentence. Last week three Red Lake Falls men were fined $50 apiece in the Federal court at Fergus Falls, after their guilt had been fully established. Is there any sense to a performance of that kind?

Moonshining is a profitable business or there would not be so many men engaged in it, and the imposition of a light fine for such offenses hearkens back to the old days when authorities connived with the keepers of disorderly houses by permitting them to run under a system of weekly or monthly fines. The judges have it in their power to put the fear of God into the men who are defying the law, and the sooner they wake up to the fact the sooner will the evil be abated.

ON TO RED LAKE FALLS.

The Northwestern Minnesota Editorial Association will meet at Red Lake Falls on January 26-27, and we trust every pencil pusher in this neck of the woods will make it a point to be there on those days. Arrangements have been made for a big banquet at the Lincoln Hotel on the evening of the 26th, given by the Commercial Club of Red Lake Falls, when Frank Jeffers, former publisher of the Clarion, will preside as toastmaster.

Frank is not talkative as a rule but on this occasion he has promised to loosen up and relate some of his early experiences as a publisher and politician, likewise sandwiching in some apt stories pertaining to the birds who will respond to toasts at the banquet.

Christie and Cutten, of the Gazette, will play hosts to the visiting editors, admission to the basement of the Gazette office being by card only for two days. The city council has lifted all restrictive ordinances for the occasion and the marshal will be pressed into service as a mixer.

Doc. Watson will prescribe for such as are seized with falling of the archipelago, and all in all every detail has been attended to and every precaution taken to guard against ennui and indigestion on the part of the visitors.

Red Lake Falls is a great old town, she has some great people, who know how to be nice to their guests, and nothing but complete paralysis should keep any red blooded scribe from being on hand early on the morning of the 26th. Save us a room and some ice water.

THEY'LL LEARN LATER ON.

Nothing disgusts a sensible person more than to hear some young upstart deploring the fact that he or she is a resident of a town the size of Graceville and longing for broader fields "where everybody don't know everybody's business." We've heard the remark more than once and each time it has grated on our ears. Because we know about life in the congested cities of this country, and we know how much more enjoyable is life in the smaller towns and in the rural sections.

Very shortly, after reaching the big city, "where everybody doesn't know everybody's business," there comes to the town-bred boy or girl the longing for a smile of recognition, a nod of the head, of a cheery "Hello" from someone who really has an interest in them. Possibly a little spell of sickness is encountered. They note the absence of kindly neighbors and the touch of parental hands that are better than medicine. Very often, too, finances get low. There is no use in seeking credit. Strangers always remain strangers in the big city, and credit is only for those who can show a bank account. "Charge it to father," doesn't mean anything to the big city merchant, whose acquaintance doesn't take in more than one father, and that one his own.

We live to learn, and that's the only consolation we have when we hear a boy or girl yearning for the life of a big city. They'll learn later on and generally through experience, that when it comes to actual happiness the farm home or the small town stand first, and always will.—Graceville Enterprise.

A NEW POSTOFFICE.

A bill has recently been introduced in Congress providing for new postoffice buildings in various cities of the northwest, Thief River Falls included. The amount set aside for a new building in this city is, we believe, $75,000. It is to be hoped that this measure, which has repeatedly met defeat, be now speedily enacted into law.

No situation could well be worse than is to be found in the housing of the postoffice in this city. Not only are the quarters entirely too small, but the building is not so located as to permit of enlargement which would fit it for the purpose of the department. The working quarters are so stuffy and cramped that the handling of mail is greatly hindered, a condition which was strongly emphasized during the recent holiday rush. Not only that, but the lobby is entirely inadequate, and the entire building is poorly ventilated, adding much to the discomfort of both working force and patrons.

During the closing days of his incumbency in office, Congressman Steenerson will confer a great favor upon the people of this community if he will give his time and attention in a large measure to the passage of the building bill which is now before Congress.

Thief River Falls should no longer be asked to transact its postoffice business in a building of cramped proportions. The town has outgrown such frontier accommodations, and there can be no legitimate excuse for further delay in providing decent working quarters.

PRICE STABILIZATION.

The Crookston Times has a new plan for government price fixing of the five great farm staples, namely, wheat, corn, cotton, wool and sugar. It proposes that the government through some agency to be established for that purpose shall hold itself ready to purchase the surplus crops at a given price, say $1.35 for wheat, 65 cents for corn, and so on.

The Times makes the point that such a guarantee on the part of the government will virtually set the price for the entire crop, which is logical, for the producer will naturally hold his crop for the higher price. There are many things to be considered in connection with the plan, but on the face of it the scheme looks feasible and may offer a solution to the objectors who oppose the purchase of the entire wheat crop by the government.

Of course, the ideal way to stabilize the price of grain is through intensive organization on the part of the producers, by control of the markets and distribution, but since that has been tried in vain time and again it seems no more than right that the government exert itself in placing farm prices where they belong. We have subsidized almost everything else, so why not spend a few American dollars where they will do the most good?

Conditions will right themselves all along the line when the purchasing power of the farmer has been reinstated. The wheels of industry will move, unemployment will end, and we will again be hitting on all six. The plan of The Times is worthy of serious consideration, and we cheerfully invite discussions from all angles.

KNUTE NELSON vs. LABOR.

In the last issue of the Detroit Record appears a communication from Senator Knute Nelson attacking organized labor, and particularly railroad labor, as the stumbling block to prosperity for the farmer. We disagree with the Senator when he takes the position that labor is being grossly overpaid at this time. No doubt railway rates could be reduced materially at this time if labor could be hired on a pre-war basis, but it must be evident to all fair-minded people that the cost of living is much too high to enable labor to exist unde rthe old order of things.

If that is not true, The Tribune would like to have someone figure out from the standpoint of present high rents, increased cost of clothing, shoes and other necessaries of life, how the laborer is to support his family on less than 60 to 75 cents per hour, the rate complained of. It simply cannot be done, and it has been amply demonstrated that labor earns the advanced wages where efficiency in management has been employed. Look at Henry Ford, for instance, who pays his men a minimum wage of $6 per day. No one has ever heard him complain of the wages of his men, but rather has he inclined to the view that labor should be granted further concessions in the line of shorter hours and improved working conditions.

While it is true that there exists a certain element of incompatibility between the interests of the farmer and the laborer, yet the fact remains that they have much in common, and nothing can be gained by continually arraying the farmer against organized labor. The Tribune contends that the farmer would be much better off were he as well organized as labor and he will soon find he must be so organized in order to exist.

> The farmers are beginning to show something of the spirit of '76. They refuse to have others think and act for them. They claim to be able to figure out on their own account why they are for or against—being able to read, write and think. How strange, how very strange!—Thief River Falls Tribune.
> The above from the pen of Jim Arneson, one of the shrewedst and most far sighted republican politicians that ever came down the pike. Jim sees the handwriting on the wall. Two years hence there will be at least half a dozen "dirt farmers" on the Minnesota congressional delegation. We will start right at the First congressional district and go up and down the state like an army with banners.—Fairmont Sentinel.

One does not have to be a seventh daughter of a seventh daughter, not have any unusual amount of shrewdness to observe that politicians who wish to succeed must pay some attention to the needs of the farmer. The legislator need not necessarily be a "dirt" farmer, a term which is very much overworked, but unless he has the required amount of gray matter to enable him to see that the farmers are sick and tired of hyperbole and promises, when action is wanted, he will be relegated to the scrap heap. By the way, Frank, what is seriously wrong with the congressman from the Second district?

WE CAN NEVER REPAY THEM.

Civil War veterans and widows of veterans will receive an increase in their pensions under the provisions of the pension bill which has just recently passed Congress.

The ranks of the veterans, who fought to preserve the Union, have dwindled tremendously in the last few years. In a short while those who still remain will have gone on to join their comrades over there.

The government has been kind to these men who underwent the hardships of the four years of bitter struggle in which a nation was divided against itself.

But the people of America realize that they can never repay them for their patriotism. They cannot be repaid with dollars. But a grateful government does well to remember them in their declining years, with increased pensions, which, in a small way at least, is recognition of the country's obligation to the Boys in Blue.—Fargo Forum.

Governor Nestos in his message to the North Dakota legislature made some radical recommendations with reference to office holding. He advocates four-year terms for elective state, county and district officials, with four-year terms for representatives and eight years for senators. Legislative sessions every four years instead of every two years. He also advocates a reduction of the membership of the house and senate of North Dakota, restricting the senate membership to 30 and the house membership to 75. It was a splendid message, full of good sense, and much good would result to the state of North Dakota if the recommendations were followed. In a state like Minnesota, with its varied resources, legislative sessions every two years would seem to be imperative because of the necessity for adjusting tax problems, etc., but in a purely agricultural community like North Dakota, a session every four years might answer the purpose, providing, of course, the governor could convene the legislature in extra session in case of emergency.

NEWBERRY!

> At this stage of the game it looks as if Newberry might walk the plank yet. Lorimer made his exit from the senate of the United States by that identical route several years ago.—Norman County Post.

Well, well, here we thought Newberry walked the plank these many moons ago, and that Mayor Couzens of Detroit, a common every day millionaire from the ranks of the common people, had long since qualified for his seat in the senate. Even Frank Day of Fairmont, who threw a thousand spasms over Newberry before election, has not mentioned Newberry for a month.

H. F. Sprung, a real dirt farmer, has succeeded Jacob Ulvan as editor of the Norman County Post, a farmer owned newspaper at Ada. The new editor will find much to interest him in his new vocation, and if he sticks to the old tripod long enough he will find many of the same troubles which he left behind him haunting the printshop—namely, the income overbalanced by the outgo—but outside of that it is a great game, in which the first 100 years are the hardest. We welcome Bro. Sprung to the fold and extend wishes for his success.

I do the very best I know how—the very best I can; and I mean to keep doing so until the end. If the end brings me out all right, what is said against me won't amount to anything; if the end brings me out wrong, ten thousand angels swearing I was right would make no difference.—Abraham Lincoln.

In spite of the noise that is being made in certain quarters about the evil of tax exempt securities, yet the states, counties, cities, villages and districts issued about a billion and a third dollars worth of such securities last year, the total now outstanding being estimated as between $14,000,000,000 and $20,000,000. Perhaps a good way to stop the drain of these tax exempt securities would be for the states and municipalities to stop issuing them.—Morris Tribune.

THE MODERN DANCE.

The Grant County Herald observes that the "disciples of Isadore Duncan must be supplanting the devotees of syncopation at Fairmount, N. D. Before the New Year's dance there, a warning was given in the Fairmount News that 'Nobody without costume' would be permitted on the dance floor before 11:30 o'clock."

The first great tragedy of life is when the child loses its faith in Santa Claus. The only tragedy that can compare with it is that of the man who loses his faith in God and his fellowmen. The Christmas season is a good time to "become like unto little children" and be strengthened in every worthy faith.—Dawson Sentinel.

When a queen bee brings $30 at a sale and a single strawberry vine sells for $50,000, both of which transactions occurred recently, we may hardly look with expectancy for a return of the "good old times."—Northwestern Advocate.

"The Dictator," Coming to the Lyceum, Is Real Drama

Richard Harding Davis' Story of Lively Revolution in Latin America Is Famous.

The internal disturbances of certain romantic and ebullient South American republics, which have for years furnished the American press and humorous writers with material for exciting dispatches or clever, humorous discussions, were placed in the hall of fame by the plays of the late Richard Harding Davis, who was virtually their literary spokesman.

"The Dictator," which comes to the Lyceum theater next Sunday and Monday is a Paramount offering with Wallace Reid in the star role, is one of this type by this author. It is the play which Willie Collier made famous on the stage and one in which Mr. Davis paints an exciting picture of volcanic life in the Latin-American continent.

More Men Than Women Have Appendicitis

Medical reports show men are more subject to appendicitis although many sudden cases occur among women. It can be guarded against by preventing intestinal infection. The intestinal antiseptic, Adler-i-ka, acts on BOTH upper and lower bowel, removing all foul, decaying matter which might cause infection. It brings out matter you never thought was in your system and which may have been poisoning you for months. Adler-i-ka is EXCELLENT for gas on the stomach. F. J. Stebbins, druggist.

Miss Maude L. Johnson, music supervisor in the Thief River Falls schools, returned Monday morning from Red Wing, Minn., where she has spent the holiday vacation.

Elnor Overland, who has spent the past two weeks visiting among relatives and friends, returned to Northfield, Minn., Saturday evening to resume his studies at St. Olaf's college.

Miss Ella Miller returned to Nashwauk, Minn., Saturday evening after having visited the past two weeks at the home of her mother. She is a teacher in the Nashwauk public schools.

Miss Elinor Dahlen returned to Fosston Sunday evening to resume her duties as teacher in the public schools after having spent the holiday vacation at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. S. Dahlen.

Miss Florence Fjelstad, who has spent several days visiting among friends in this city, left Saturday evening for Grand Forks, where she is employed as a teacher. She formerly was an instructor in the local schools.

Hans Nelson and daughter, Miss Edna, of Slayton, this state, were guests over Sunday at the home of the former's nephew, M. A. Mattison. They were enroute home from a visit with other relatives at Minot, Sherwood and Greene, N. D.

D. F. Miller, old-time conductor on the Warroad line passenger of the Great Northern, returned to his run Monday morning after being away from work for three weeks on account of ill health. He has spent the past week visiting friends in Crookston. Mr. and Mrs. Miller make their home at Warroad.

I. A. Larson and wife, who have been residents of Thief River Falls for some time, Mr. Larson being the representative of a Superior firm, will leave soon for Virginia, Minn., to make that city their future home. The range city is more convenient to the trade territory covered by Mr. Larson. They have many friends in the city who regret their departure from here.

Senator C. L. Hansen came up from St. Paul Saturday to spend the senate recess looking after business affairs here. He has taken quarters at the St. Paul hotel for the session. On Thursday the senator introduced Mr. Prichard of this city to the agricultural committee, the latter appearing to make some suggestions as to amendments for the proposed rural credits law.

Mr. and Mrs. Lorne Johnston returned last Wednesday from the Twin Cities, where they spent the New Year holidays. They witnessed the opening of the legislature on Tuesday of last week, and Mr. Johnston describes the nomination of Representative Barnes of Duluth, by himself, as when he later was the only member recorded as voting for himself, as one of the most laughable scenes it has ever been his privilege to witness.

Harvey Grimmer of St. Cloud was in the city Monday, calling on the city and county officials in the interests of a St. Cloud stationery firm. While in the city he called at The Tribune office to swap stories with the editor of this great family journal. Harvey was at one time executive clerk to the late Governor Johnson and stood high in the councils of the Democratic party, but of late years he has mellowed down somewhat and talks like a man who was getting ready to get back in the Republican fold.

BROWN'S REPLY.

Editor of The Tribune:

Answering the letter of Mr. Meyer, consulting engineer, dated January 1, 1923, concerning the Red Lake project probably appearing in this issue of your paper, will say that the whole communication is a mass if misstatement of fact and of grasping at straws, in a vain endeavor to justify Meyers in this nefarious plan of having a power dam and channel, of huge benefit to the water power interests, constructed complete and financed solely so far as initial cost is concerned, by the farmers and farming lands along the channel.

It is inconceivable to the writer that honest men who know the facts of this unholy thing can still attempt to impose this unjustifiable burden upon the farmer's back, while the water power interests, in their entrenched power, sit silently by and applaud the efforts of this self-constituted advocate.

Meyers must be self constituted in the interests of the power companies because in his communication he says he never received a dollar from these power companies, and thus it is impossible that Mr. Meyers is bought in advance, or is working in the interests and with the consent of the power companies.

As a matter of fact, the communication is buncombe and propaganda pure and simple, armed to throw dirt in the farmers' eyes, while the power interests are getting away with the goods.

Mr. Meyers is in error when he says that he testified the capitalized benefit to power interests would be between $200,000.00 and $600,000.00. His figures were "between $50,000.00 and $150,000.00. Every farmer present knows that, and the court records show it, and they further show that when Meyers was being closely cross examined as to these figures, he flew to the usual port of storm of the expert when cornered on the witness stand, namely, he took refuge behind technical terms and trade expression till he got his second wind.

Mr. Meyers tried to cloud the water further by quoting a clause in the war engineer's report concerning municipal water supply and then by reasoning therefrom, adducing some inferences or evidence that will support the unrighteous plan proposed as regards the power companies.

Mr. Meyers should be able even through his highly colored glasses, to see that municipalities are the people themselves, glad and willing to pay for benefits received, while the power interests he argues for are bands of private parties seeking to get something for nothing.

Mr. Meyers denies that the war department engineers made exhaustive study. All we have to say in reference to that is that all the testimony of all the engineers on this project showed that their own examinations were very meagre and that they all relied upon the survey and report of the war engineer's previously made. In fact, Mr. Meyers himself testified that he never saw Red Lake or Red Lake river near the lake, but two times prior to the hearing, once several years ago, before this project was under consideration, and once after his employment herein. Mr. Meyers' mind and intelligence must be particularly acute and receptive in regard to Red Lake to enable him in that brief visit to get all the data and information he now has which is of such vast benefit to the power interests involved and of such crushing weight to the farmers' interest that Mr. Meyers' employer in this matter is supposed to represent.

Mr. Meyers sees fit to deny any close relation with the power interests and we are compelled to believe the truth of his statement that of his 18 years' experience as a hydraulic engineer, only two months were spent in working for power companies.

The writer cannot imagine how Mr. Meyers got his 18 years' experience as a water power engineer unless his relations to the water power interests were closer than his letter discloses, for the reason that it is ordinarily only the power companies, who are employing water power engineers, and there is therefore not much opportunity to become highly experienced as such engineer except in the employ of such companies. Mr. Meyers' communication is so earnest along this line that the inference arises therefrom that Mr. Meyers evidently believes that some stigma or reproach would attach to him even if employed in the past by these power interests. We wish to assure Mr. Meyers that such is not the opinion of the writer.

We are glad to know, however, and I am sure the farmers paying the bills will be likewise glad to know that Mr. Meyers is not contaminated by previous close connection with the power interests.

This will lighten the burden when the farmer, to save his land, has to put a bigger mortgage on the stock to get the money to meet this nefarious assessment, or when the farmer has to go down in his sock and get two dollars to pay one dollar benefit for himself and one dollar benefit for the poor water power companies.

The fact remains, which no amount of sophistry or cleverness on the part of Mr. Meyers can remove, conceal or explain, that the Conservancy board and Mr. Meyers are back of an unrighteous scheme whereby the benefits of the project accruing to the water power interests, amounting to not less than $240,000.00, accrues and is made possible by assessments upon the farmers' lands only, that the power companies pay no part of the initial cost and do not help finance the project, that a bond issue by the county based upon these farm assessments alone is the only possible plan of getting the money to pay for the job, while some time, after the cost is all paid by the farmers, and after the poor farmer has the assessments all paid up, perhaps the water powers are to be compelled to contribute their share so that this board will have more money to spend elsewhere. It is a beautiful thing to contemplate, but thank God, the will of Mr. Meyers and of the conservancy board is not supreme in this matter and they are bound to fail.

Respectfully yours,
WM. J. BROWN.

Editor The Tribune:

The farmers do not think that the Thief River Falls Times is fair about the Red Lake River project, but that it is working hard for the Conservancy Board because the board has paid big fees for publishing notices and articles. It is too bad that we have a newspaper like that in the county that treats us so unfairly. The Times has not made one true statement about this since the hearing.

Not a man in all the east country has changed in favor of the project since the hearing and seven towns in Pennington county and one in Marshall county are still solid against it so far as we can find out, with the exception of one man, Mr. Hofdal, and Mr. Hofdal's statement in the paper says that he is for it because he is on the board and because the assessments are going to be reduced. Perhaps if Mr. Hofdal was sure that there is no limit to the amount the board could spend up to the amount of the assessment, he would be against the project also.

Even if the figures of costs would be what the engineers say it is, we are still opposed to this thing as strong as ever, because in the first palce our farmers can't pay any more anyhow, and in the second place we object to being compelled to finance this for the benefit of the water power interests. We are informed that one of the big water power companies has grabbed every water power site on the river not yet used and it looks like the Conservancy Board is trying to do more for them than it is for the farmers who have to pay for it.

Yours truly,
JOHN P. ASP.

Rhoda, Minn., Jan. 5, 1923.

MEYER'S LAST SAY.

Editor of Tribune:

The statements which I have made in your paper the past few weeks have set forth certain important considerations relating to the Red Lake project which were not brought out at the recent hearing, and which I desired to bring before your readers.

Inasmuch as Mr. Brown, in his communications, has merely indulged in personal abuse, and in his last letter in particular has presented no facts whatsoever relating to the feasibility of the project or to the desirability of various means of financing it, I shall make no further comments. He may continue to "throw mud" as long as he desires to do so; it will not change the color of my past professional record, of which I shall never have reason to be ashamed.

Yours very truly,
ADOLPH F. MEYER.

IN MUNICIPAL COURT

Ben Thompson Fined $15 For Being Drunk and Disorderly.

Ben Thompson, who resides on the east side, was in municipal court Saturday morning on a charge of being drunk and disorderly. He engaged in a fight at the Ben Vigen place Friday night and the police took him in tow and placed him in jail, where he languished over night.

Judge Tarrant assessed him $15, although his honor admitted in open court that the prisoner looked as if he had been sufficiently punished, his face being badly disfigured from his encounter of the night before, and his appearance being greatly dejected from the probable effects of moonshine.

Ghosts of the living dead!

Such is the reference made to a number of the characters appearing in the Douglas Fairbanks' United Artists production, "The Mollycoddle," which will be shown at the Lyceum theater Friday and Saturday.

The "living dead" are members of the Hopi Indian tride, who are prominent in several episodes, who since the filming of the scenes have passed on to the Happy Hunting Grounds.

Farmer Winning Out With Crippled Hands

With one hand gone and the greater part of the left hand also missing, J. D. Hanson, timber land farmer near Bemidji, refuses to claim a handicap. He has undertaken to make a farm out of brush and stump-infested land in Beltrami county. Furthermore, he is really doing it.

Hanson went into the country 12 miles northwest of Bemidji in May, 1922, and settled on 160 acres. "Hook John" his neighbors began to call him when they noticed he used his hook with almost uncanny skill and was asking odds of no one.

Hanson was all by himself. There was no Mrs. Hanson or kin to cook his meals and keep his house.

PYRAMIDING PUBLIC DEBT.

In the near future taxes will become confiscatory unless a halt is ordered on the present method of issuing bonds. Here in Milan 20 years ago we voted bonds for waterworks and yet not a penny has been paid on the principal. Bond issues for the erection of a school house in the early infancy of the village remain unpaid, although the building itself was condemned as unfit for school purposes and wrecked several years ago. Our record is not any worse than that of the average village or city. If this practice of piling up indebtedness is continued, there will come a day of reckoning. Our legislature should take steps to forbid the issuing of bonds unless provisions are made for a sinking fund to take care of the principal when bonds become due. Perhaps it would be still better if all bonds were made payable on the amortization plan, a small sum applying on the principal each year in addition to the interest. In 20 or 30 years the indebtedness would be paid. In the past the people have mortgaged the future too much, and we are beginning to feel the effect of it.—Milan Standard.

Land Office Makes Record.

The Crookston U. S. Land Office did more business in 1922 than the other two offices in the state, located at Duluth and Cass Lake, combined, but had the lowest expense account of the three offices. There are about 200.000 acres of unpatented lands in the land district yet, of which about 120,000 acres are unentered.

SUGAR BEETS IN THIS SECTION OF STATE WILL PAY

Red River Valley Produces Dependable Crop; Promising New Industry.

(By T. J. McCall, Horticultuirst, Northwest Experiment Station.)

It has long been know that sugar beets and other root crops grow to a high state of perfection in the Red River Valley. The acreage, however, has been limited to the need of roots for live stock feeding. Since 1919, from one to two thousand acres have been grown and marketed through a Minnesota sugar refining company. The future development of the sugar beet industry in Northwestern Minnesota is dependent upon the acreage needs of the present sugar refining company, and the establishment of other factories in or contiguous to this region.

Dependable Crop.

The sugar beet crop has proved very dependable in yield during the seven years of trial at the Northwest Experiment Statoin, averaging a little more than ten tons per acre. The average yield from farms growing sugar beets during 1922 was somewhat less than the Experiment Station yield, however, 12 and 15 ton yields have been reported.

High Sugar Content.

The sugar content of beets grown in the Red River Valley is quite high, averaging from 15 to 17 per cent. Analysis made in 1913 from beets grown from commercial seed averaged less than 14 per cent. However, the fact is established that beets from good seed strains average higher in sugar content in northern Minnesota than in regions farther south.

Grower Enters Contract.

A grower, to find a market for his sugar beets, must make a contract with the sugar refining company for his acreage. The contract is mutually beneficial to both parties, for the grower is assured an outlet for his product at a fixed price and the company is assured a quantity of product that will enable it to operate.

The acreage contracted for by a grower should depend upon several factors, namely: amount of land suitable for the crop, competition of other crops or other far moperations with the beet crop for labor, and the facilities and equipment for growing, handling and disposing of the crop.

Beets Need Good Soil Condition.

Sugar beets will grow on any soil capable of producing other agricultural crops. However, they do best on the heavier soils which are slightly alkaline, which are in good tilth and a high state of fertility. Any field for sugar beets should be reasonably free from serious weeds, and if annual weeds are numerous the cultivation practices should be such as will control them at a minimum of expense. Early fall plowing of the heavy soils of the Red River Valley proves beneficial not only in weed eradication, but also in the fact that the soil pulverizes better and is gotten in shape for seeding with less trouble than spring plowed land. A beet grower is running risks, in planting beets on very foul land, in case of wet weather at blocking or thinning time for a rank growth of weeds at that season sets back the crops greatly.

How to Grow Sugar Beets.

Beet soils should be plowed to a depth of six inches or more for the best results. Spring plowing may be resorted to on sandy loam soil types. The best system of management would be to have the beet crop take a place in a regular crop rotation in which some of the legumes, such as clovers and alfalfa are grown. The land would be manured once in the rotation period. The seed bed for sugar beets should be well firmed and levelled previous to planting. A sub-surface packer is an excellent implement to use in firming the soil, while plankers, levelers or floats may be used for finishing the land previous to planting. The depth of seeding and stand will be more uniform on leveled or smooth soil than on land left rough.

Seeding is generally done with four row beet drills; the rows are then uniformly spaced 28 inches apart. The crop is easily cultivated with the two or four row type of cultivator if the four shoe drill is used. A heavy seeding is considered necessary to guarantee a good stand; 12 to 15 pounds of seed per acre is recommended.

Seed Beets in May.

The soil should be made ready for seeding about the middle of May, while the crop can be planted at a later date, yet the crop should be coming strong before the first hot days of June.

The blocking, weeding and thinning operations must be done timely or a loss of crop will result. This early season hand work can generally be most economically done by using "contract labor." Most sugar refining companies assist their growers in getting families to do the hand labor under contract at definite costs per acre. The majority of workmen who go out under contract are very proficient in doing the hand work and can do it more cheaply than local inexperienced labor. Whatever kind of labor is used at thinning time is immaterial; however, the work should be done before the plants get too large and the weeds get a start.

Cultivation.

The two row type of cultivator with cultivator teeth and duck foot shovel attachments is the most popular type of cultivator used for sugar beets in this district. The cultivation should start just as soon as the rows are visible, care being taken not to cover the young seedlings. The cultivations should be frequent, often enough to preserve a dust mulch and keep the weeds well under control, from three to five cultivations are given during the season.

Harvesting.

Harvesting should start early in October. Sometimes the date of harvesting is specified in the contract with the sugar company, but growers should in average years plan to get the roots out of the ground before October 20th. The grower should limit his acreage to an amount that can be handled with dispatch and in season. The digger or root lifter that is mounted on a wheel truck, which is horse drawn and lifts one row at a time, has proved most satisfactory. "Contract labor" proves best at harvesting time for northern Minnesota, for the grower is assured of help at a time there is generally a great demand for men. The "contract laborer" tops and poles the roots as the final task of his contract.

Cost of Growing Sugar Beets.

The cost of growing sugar beets depends greatly upon the distance a grower is from market or loading point, the amount of work required to get the land in shape for the crop, the cultivations required and the timeliness of the work. The actual cash outlay is about the same for all locations. The cash expense includes seed, "contract labor," housing or quarters for laborers and labor furnished by the grower for all team operations, loading and hauling. Much of the team labor is generally done by the grower and is not included in the cash expense, but must of necessity be charged to the crop. Contract labor costs $18 to $20 per acre, various percentages of which are to be paid by the grower during the season, the balance to be paid when the crop is harvested. In many cases the company guarantees the final payment for labor out of the receipts of the crop.

The returns per ton have generally exceeded the contract price per ton, in that the grower may be paid a bonus on sugar contents or beets or be given a bonus if the wholesale price of sugar exceeds a certain figure. The bonus to Red River Valley growers during the past few years has amounted to from $2 to $4 per ton.

Beet Tops Make Good Feed.

Sugar beet growers get an added profit from the crop when they can utilize the beet tops for feed. Beet tops make excellent feed for cattle or sheep; the tops can either be pastured or fed in racks. There is a great deal of waste in pasturing, hence many growers haul in the tops and state that they are well repaid for the time and trouble. In some instances beet growers have used the tops for ensilage and report that a good quality of ensilage is produced. Whether the tops are utilized for feed or not, the fact remains that beet growers, to get the greatest returns from their land, must have live stock to consume the roughage and cheap feeds produced in the necessary rotation for the sugar beets.

Lone Sheep Adapts Self to City Life and Likes It

Several months ago — away last summer—George Christo proprietor of the Minnesota Candy Kitchen, brought a little lamb to town and chored it out on various vacant lots about the uptown section of Thief River Falls. Day by day it grew and soon developed into a full-fledged sheep. It seemed to like the busy activities of the city as against the droll country life to which it was first introduced until today you couldn't drive it back to the farm.

Chances are if someone took Christo's sheep back to the farmstead it would kick up its heels and die from sheer lonesomeness and being compelled to choose its associations among other plain sheep.

And dogs can't for one minute bluff it, either. The other day we saw several savage-looking canines try to run it down—or to death—but they soon left off from their aggressive tactics after the sheep had butted the devil clear out of them. A couple of hooks to the head and a few left swings to the abdomen put the dogs out of business, glad to get out from under, and let Mr. Sheep proceed on his regular sight-seeing trips about the business section.

Most of the kids around town have taken a decided liking to the animal and it instinctively knows it friends from its enemies. Several can go right up to him and get on his back and ride along for a few rods until he gets tired of his burden, when he dumps them in a heap upon the snow.

Christo's sheep, if it hates anything, it is interference of any kind from pedestrians, whom it comes across in its daily promenade about the streets. And the animal generally takes the sidewalks for his and believes the streets are made for animals less dignified. Generally of a peaceable disposition himself, he wants folks to keep their distance and if they do that, all well and good.

Most any old frosty morning of 25 degrees or more below zero, Christo's lone sheep can be seen out for his morning jaunt along the slippery sidewalks, paying strict attention to its own business and not minding the cold in the least, for it has one of the best coats we ever saw, and one we would give considerable to own—a perfect fit.

The animal has taken to city life and seems to like Thief River Falls. It has made several calls at The Tribune office and expects to make many more, judging by the satisfaction it evinces with each visit.

Every day is a nice day in this frozen north for the lone sheep.

HE KNEW MEN.

Paul Starret, builder of more than 100 of the largest skyscrapers in the country, asked to explain his success, replied, "I know how to pick men; I seldom pick a lemon. There is something between men when they look each other right in the eyes that cannot be explained. You just know. A man who looks you in the eye and has the guts will come through."

"What qualities do you look for in men?"

"First of all, experience in our line, and judgment," he answered. "I like to take a man when he's young and have him grow up with me. I would advise him to marry early. A good woman is the best influence to keep a man steady. I also pick men who have good physique, for the work is hard.

"One thing I don't want is a man who never makes mistakes. If he doesn't make a mistake he never does anything. All good men make a certain number of mistakes, and, if they are the right sort they build on them."

"How have you managed to keep the investors with you so closely," was another question. "How do you get these contracts when the other man underbids you?"

"When a man builds a building," he replied, "it is often the investment of his entire fortune. But whether the owner is one whose entire fortune is going into the building or not, I give but little thought to the matter of the other bids which may be compared with mine. I figure on a good, enduring structure and then build to that specification honestly and faithfully. To me each of my buildings has an individuality of its own. There is a personal side to this building business as well as a professionel side. Buildings are monuments or they are just markers. I don't want to be a builder of markers."

Earl Erickson and Joe Cloutier of Thief River Falls were visitors here on Saturday and Sunday. The boys furnished the music at the show at the U. & I. Saturday evening. Earl has developed into a splendid pianist during the last few years and his services as such is always in demand. Joe Cloutier is known among his friends as the "Spanish Nightingale," a sobriquet which is well merited and appropriate as he has a wonderful voice, and he will no doubt after he receives some more training be heard from in musical circles.—Lancaster Herald.

QUAMME S[illegible]KED BY BROWN [illegible] MINNEAPOLIS ADDRESS

Historical Society

Land [illegible]nk Head Accused of Unfair Attack on Securities of Several Northern Minnesota Counties.

W. J. Brown of this city enlivened the otherwise prosy proceedings of the State Agricultural Society, which held its annual sessions last week at Minneapolis, when he made his appearance as one of the speakers at the Thursday meeting, following President Coffman of the State University on the program.

Mr. Brown alleged that E. G. Quamme, head of the Farm Loan Bank at St. Paul, had seriously impaired the farm credit of Pennington, Marshall, Roseau and Kittson counties by an article written to a farm mortgage publication of national circulation, in which he is claimed to have stated that the counties mentioned had been withdrawn from the loan territory of the Farm Loan Bank because of the prevalence of sow thistles in such numbers as to render large areas of land useless and valueless.

"Conditions are such," said Mr. Brown, "as to make the business of farming a precarious one at best, but I strenuously object to the action of the head of a large government loan institution in thus adding to the heavy burden of the farmer by attempting to impair his credit standing. It is a false statement to begin with," said Brown, "for the fact is that the so-called sow thistle is no longer a serious menace in this section, the infested areas being principally unoccupied land.

"This seems like a good time to boost and assist the farmer in his complex problem of keeping his head above water," continued the speaker, "and it seems surprising that a government institution should lend itself to his further oppression."

Mr. Brown further lambasted Mr. Quamme for his utterances on numerous occasions when he had shown himself hostile to further credit extension to the farmer, one of the instances cited being when Mr. Quamme is alleged to have stated that any further credit extended to the farmer at this period must be considered in the light of charity.

Mr. Brown cited facts and figures to show that the section of the state black listed by the Farm Loan Bank stood exceptionally high in productiveness, Pennington county in particular having made a showing in dairying which has been an eye opener to the entire state.

His address made a profound impression upon the assembled delegates and did much to place the northern Minnesota counties in a proper light. Even President Coffman, who occupied a front seat in the hall at the Radisson during Mr. Brown's address, showed a lively interest, following the text in apparent sympathy with the speaker.

"Manslaughter" Treat for Thief River Falls Fans

If you want to see gorgeous scenes of revelry showing 'society' fast set at play; if you want to see Thomas Meighan give a greater performance than "The Miracle Man"; if you want to thrill at the strongest story, the most spectacular scenes, the most startling climaxes Cecil B. De Mille ever put upon the screen; if you want to see the greatest cast of stars since "Anatol"—

Then by all means see "Manslaughter." When the flapper's older sister can't have the man she loves and can't get her racing car to do more than a hundred miles an hour and decides to run wild, then you have a startling, exciting drama such as De Mille reveals in a setting of luxurious, shimmering beauty in "Manslaughter."

To be shown at the Lyceum theater Sunday and Monday.

Another picture based on a story by Fanny Hurst, who wrote that great Cosmopolitan success, "Humoresque," will be at the Lyceum theater next Friday and Saturday.

Manager Brumund has announced that 20 per cent of the gross receipts for Saturday's matinee and evening performance will go to swelling the fund sought by the Salvation Army in Thief River Falls this week.

"Just Around the Corner" has one of the most appealing stories ever told. It tells of a poor family living on the East Side, New York. Not only is the narrative of the Birdsong family exquisitely touching, but it is replete with humorous situations.

All in all, "Just Around the Corner" is one of those pictures that contribute generously to the development of cinema art.

Contest at Auditorium Friday Results in Victory for Visitors by 14 to 9 Score.

The Thief River Falls high school basket ball team dropped a game to Foston high Friday at the Auditorium when, after the local quint had built up a comfortable lead in the early stages, Fosston came back strong and went into the lead, where they remained until the final whistle, the score ending 14 to 9.

The high school athletes started off with a bang and held Fosston almost at zero until the latter got to going. The regular high school lineup was used.

Rev. Chas. Gerlinger:

Weak men are victims of circumstances. Strong men rise above circumstances. They are the authors of their own environment. They shape the conditions in which they live. Poor conditions of living or thinking are the result of neglect and indifference. They are weeds going to seed. Communities of excellence are made by people who care, who care enough to pay the price. This alone will make Thief River Falls what it ought to be. Indifference is our greatest enemy. Disunion runs a close second. What we need is people with a vision of better things and a passion for the right.

CONGRESS WILL TAKE ACTION IN FLOOD CONTROL MATTERS

The secretary of state has no authority this year to extend the time as has been the custom in past years, and persons desiring to avoid the penalty should get in their applications at the earliest date possible.

Dupre Bill Intended to Cope With Flood Control in Overflow Sections of Entire United States.

That other sections of the United States are similarly situated with respect to spring overflows as are the upper reaches of the Red River and the Mississippi, is evident from the fact that a new bill, known as the Dupre law, is now pending in congress, this act having for its object the fullest investigation by government agencies of flood conditions everywhere.

It is not unlikely that the Red Lake River situation come within the scope of the bill, and if so this may provide a solution of the matter and thus relieve the farmers along the stream who object at this time to paying the lion's share of the improvement.

An editorial in Monday's Minneapolis Journal has this to say concerning flood control and the Dupre bill: "Even more imperative than the development of power in this country is flood control. Every year thousands of lives are endangered and millions of dollars' worth of property are destroyed by the riot of uncontrolled water.

"Hitherto jurisdiction in these matters has been divided between the Department of Agriculture, the Forest Service, the Geological Survey, the Reclamation Service, the Army and the Mississippi River Commission. The serious lack of co-ordination between these agencies is one reason why we have made so little progress in flood control.

"In 1917 a beginning was made in the Newlands-Brousard river regulation law. But the appropriation called for was too large to be made in the face of war and so the most important features of the law were repealed in 1919.

"A new attack on the problem is proposed in the Dupre bill now pending in congress. This provides for the creation of a waterways commission to make a comprehensive study of the water problems of the entire country. It would have no power to supplant present government agencies. Its business would be to study the problem and to make recommendations to congress.

"One chief aim would be the study of flood control and the use of water as near where it falls as possible. Allied problems would be those of navigation, irrigation, drainage, forestry in relation to water supply, swamp land reclamation, clarification of streams, soil erosion, maximum flood records and water rights.

"Probably the greatest of all these problems is control of the Mississippi's flow. Elaborate systems of levees have been built on the lower river, but the danger of a spring overflow is almost as great as it was 50 years ago. Something more than levees is needed to cope with the danger. This will doubtless prove to be the control of the river's waters by impounding along its upper reaches.

"The Dupre bill proposes an initial expenditure of $250,000, but it meets an urgent need."

135.507 POUNDS OF BUTTER SOLD TO LOCAL CONSUMERS

Record for 1922 Shows an Enormous Increase in Use of Butter Since Creamery Was Organized.

The annual report of the Thief River Co-Operative Creamery Association, which is pirnted in this issue of The Tribune, shows among other things an enormous increase in the use of butter manufactured by the creamery by local consumers. It shows a number of other facts which are of great interest to the people of this community.

The amount of butter manufactured by the creamery and sold to local consumers last year reached the large total of 135,507 pounds. In 15 years, or since the creamery reports were first issued in 1907, the local consumption of creamery butter has increased nearly 132,000 pounds, the amount used in 1907 being 3,078 pounds.

In 1907 the total amount of butterfat received at the creamery was 89,017, while the total for 1922 was 535,095. The average price paid for butterfat in 1907 was 27 cents, while the average for 1922 was 40.70. In 1907 the average price of butter was 23.5, while the average price in 1922 was 37 cents.

The report will be found on another page of The Tribune and contains a great deal of information of local interest. The Tribune is indebted to Secretary P. Engelstad for the facts and figures used from the report.

THE FIREMEN'S DANCE.

Do not forget the annual ball of the Thief River Falls fire department to be given at the Auditorium on the evening of Friday, February 9.

Weather During Past Two Weeks Recorded as Mildest in Score of Years.

You can write to your uncle spending the winter in California that he can with safety come right back to Thief River Falls 'cause winter must be over. While it is true there may be some days when an overcoat and gloves would be a necessity, the fact that ball players are taking advantage of the lull in winter to get out and "warm up" by playing catch in city streets indicates stronger than the arrival of the robin that winter is over and that spring is here sure enough!

Thief River Falls hasn't enjoyed the sight of seeing ball players playing in the steret during January since the year one (1). There have been winters milder than others, but summing them all up it would be difficult to remember a day when thawing weather was the rule.

Commencing about ten days ago, the weather has remained consistently mild. While there appears to be a greater amount of snow on the ground than was the case during the winter of 1921-1922, the climate since the first cold spell shortly after Thanksgiving has been "twice as agreeable."

Tuesday, however, something more like winter set in again and spoiled the whole thing. The thermometer got to playing so close down around zero that there wasn't any fun about it. On second consideration, perhaps it is best that your relatives remain in California for a couple of weeks in order to be sure of it.

BROWN REPLIES TO MR. MEYER AND ED. AUBOL, BOARD MEMBER

Nothing Personal Intended in Criticism Made of Action of Red Lake Conservancy Board.

Editor The Tribune:

I notice that in the local papers of last week Mr. Meyer gave voice to his swan song in connection with the Red Lake project. He takes the ground that my arguments have been personal abuse. Some small minds are that way. If you state a different opinion you are flinging personal abuse. Mr. Meyer started the whole thing by his letter first published and the writer has successfully refuted practically every claim Mr. Meyer has made except his inferred claim of being high and eminent in his profession. We will let that stand.

I also observe in the Times of last week a communication from Mr. Ed. A. Aubol, who is a member of the Conservancy Board, and Mr. Aubol also complains of unjustifiable attacks upon the board and upon all the engineers and the lawyer of the board. In this connection I will say as I have before that I only have the highest personal regard for Mr. Walker, the board's engineer, Mr. Boughton, the board's attorney, and Mr. Willard, the state drainage commissioner. Also for most members of the board, including Mr. Aubol, I have only the kindliest feelings and the highest personal regard and know them to be men of integrity. I do most emphatically deny making any personal reflection upon any of the gentlemen mentioned in the letter of Mr. Aubol. I am sorry that Mr. Aubol has taken my stand in this matter as a personal matter, and that he has construed my objections to this wonderful plan which the board devised, as a criticism of the members of the board in person. This board is a public body whose actions are subject to scrutiny and the members should not be so sensitive as to adverse criticism of their official actions. That is all that I have criticised.

I feel very sure that if Mr. Aubol will think the matter over calmly as a farmer, and not as a member of the conservancy board, he will admit that if he was situated like the farmers out east are situated, and a proposition was made to assess Mr. Aubol's land for the purpose of constructing a project of equal benefit, according to all testimony, to the power interests and to the farm lands affected, and yet where the farmers, including Mr. Aubol, were called upon to pay or finance the whole initial cost, that Mr. Aubol would be in the front ranks of those raising their voices in protest. I say this in all kindliness and as a tribute to the intelligence of Mr. Aubol. It is what any sensible man would do. I still insist and maintain that the plan proposed officially by the board is nefarious, unrighteous, and a travesty upon fairness between man and man. The fair minded members of the conservancy board, of which Mr. Aubol is one, have been misled by false reports and possibly by associates on the board who have unduly influenced them, and I simply ask Mr. Aubol and the other members of the board to sit down and calmly think the matter over and try to place themselves in the other fellow's position. I feel confident that they will then adopt the position advocated by the objectors.

Respectfully yours,
WM. J. BROWN.

International Falls Has Moonshine Troubles Too

Raids in Border City Disclose Large Stocks of Stuff That Ruins Men and Very Often Kills.

The capture and demolition of eight big stills at International Falls by the police of the woodpulp town recently, as we glean from the Evening Tribune, has resulted in the boosting of the price of moonshine from the erstwhile price of five bucks to an even tenspot the gallon.

A raid on a building owned by August Kline netted five big stills with a daily capacity of 75 gallons, 30 gallons of the "goods" on hand and 25 barrels of mash. Kline claims he was not the proprietor of the plant, and it's up to the grand jury.

At the home of Frank Carter another still was found, together with seventeen bottles of booze and a barrel of mash, and at a store on Second street a well-hidden plant was betrayed by the odor of mash, and two stills and six barrels of mash were added to the net results of the raids.

It seems to have been up to somebody to do something, in the face of so much competition among the poor, downtrodden mooners.—Baudette Region.

University Develops New Variety of Oats

The plant breeding nursery of the University of Minnesota has just contributed a new variety of oats to the agriculture of the state. The new oats has been christened "Gopher Minnesota No. 674," and is recommended by university farm crops men for increase and general use.

"Gopher oats is especially adapted to southern Minnesota," says Prof. Andrew Boss, vice director of the experiment station. "It is high yielding, matures early, and has straw that will stand up when other oats would be lodged. It is white in color, which is another factor in its favor."

Only 150 bushel of the oats are available for planting the coming spring. The seed will therefore be parceled out to those who promise to sow it on good clean land for seed purposes another year.

City Dray and Fuel Lose First Place to Grocers

Latter Team of Bowlers Take Lead By Winning Three Straight Games in Last Week's Events.

The City Dray and Fuel team was dislodged from first place in the Thief River Falls bowling league when the Grocers won three straight games from them in contests last week. The City Dray and Fuel had been consistent leaders throughout the present season and the fact that they were so suddenly overwhelmed indicates that there is something wrong with their brand of play, or else the grocers have "found" themselves and are taking full advantage of it.

The Co-operative Creamery is tied for second place, winning three games from the Soo team during the last week. There were a number of unusual developments which took place and the race from here looks as though it may be anybody's.

Munt with 519 pins, H. Olson with 517, and Morse with 578 are the only bowlers to get on the honor roll this week. The fact that high scores have been uncommon is perhaps due to the new pins in use and splits were of frequent occurrence. Captain Olson, however, is at a loss to understand the poor showing made by his teammates and in spite of the fact that his outfit is getting plenty of roadwork these days, they will fall in efficiency. The City Dray and Fuel team is handicapped by the loss of Holt, who is ill, and Jens Erickson, who is out of town.

Need Seen For Farmers' Clubs in State's Rural Life

That the farmers' clubs should have a permanent place in the rural life of the state was the concensus of opinion of delegates attending the annual meeting of the Minnesota Federation of Farmers Clubs at University Farm Jan. 5. It was argued that farmers clubs were in position to put more emphasis on social and educational work and to promote a friendlier spirit than could a geographical unit like a township. Officers elected by the federation for 1923: A. D. Wilson, Guthrie, president; Mrs. H. W. Bodt, Fairmont, vice president; Samuel Hammarbeck, Little Falls, secretary; E. V. Ripley, Park Rapids, treasurer. The governor was requested to give full consideration to agriculture in making appointments to the university board of regents. A second resolution adopted favored the passage of stricter laws for the protection of game and fish.

Junior Show to Have Fat Poultry Section

A new department, that of fat poultry, has been added to the Junior Livestock Show which is held every fall at South St. Paul. The exhibit will consist of four groups of market birds—ten young cockerels, three young ducks, three young geese, and three young turkeys. Every county qualifying by having not less than 20 poultry club members can send the county winner with an exhibit to the junior show. Railroad fare both ways will be paid this county winner, who will receive at least a minimum prize of $4. The state championship prize will be a free trip to the International Livestock Expoition at Chicago. Many special prizes will also be offered for each class of poultry.

About 1,200 Minnesota boys and girls were members of poultry clubs in 1922. Heretofore there has been no special state event to close poultry club work of the year as other projects are closed. It is felt that the poultry show at South St. Paul will furnish a satisfactory climax for the poultry club activities of the year.

This will be the first time fat poultry has been exhibited at a show in this state. All the interests behind the Junior Livestock Show are enthusiastic in their support of the new department. The Minnesota Livestock Breeders Association has given it a strong endorsement. T. A. Erickson, the state club leader, says: "I am convinced that the new department will stimulate poultry club work in Minnesota as nothing has done before. I have no doubt of its success; it should add further prestige to the exhibit of the juniors."

It is also announced that a new class, that of purebred junior yearlings, will be opened in the purebred calf competition at South St. Paul. This will be for purebred calves born between Jan. 1 and Aug. 31, 1922. Two general classes have also been provided for the fat hog section of the show—the lard type and bacon type. This will give room for entries of Yorkshires, Tamworths, and other bacon breeds.

It is estimated that 8,000 tons of muscat grapes rotted on the ground in Kings county, California, because cars could not be obtained to ship them. Fruit growers, as well as potato growers, have their troubles.

"For two months I never went in our cellar, fearing a rat. One night in bed I smelled a fire. Sure enough the rat had been nibbling at the matches. If I hadn't acted promptly my house would have been burned. Later we found the dead rat. RAT-SNAP had killed it. It's great stuff." Three sizess, 35c, 65c. $1.25. Sold and guaranteed by Hall Brothers Hardware.—Adv.

Mrs. Matheson of Wadena and the Misses Nelson of Crosby arrived in the city Tuesday. They were called here because of the serious illness of their brother, Ed. Nelson, who is a patient at the Physicians hospital.

JUNIOR SHOW STEAKS SERVED ON R. R. DINERS

"All steaks served on this diner took high awards at the Junior Livestock Show."

Boys' and girls' club work as carried on in Minnesota is not only producing high qualfty beef, but is getting the bet results from all its varied projects. The action of the railroads is a fine testimonial to the good work of the club boys and girls of the state.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Schenke at their home Saturday evening were tendered a delightful surprise by about fifteen of their friends, who met at their home and with a purse of money attested their respect and good will. The evening was very pleasantly passed, dancing and cards being the chief diversions.

Mrs. Andrew Olson returned Tuesday morning to her home near Angus after a week's visit among relatives and friends here.

L. L. Furan and Miss Gena Aos went to Thief River Falls on Monday, where they will spend a few days visiting and shopping.

Miss Gladys Sagmoen returned the latter part of the week from Thief River Falls, where she had spent a week receiving dental attention and visiting.

Garageman J. S. Sorenson spent a couple of days in town the middle of the week looking after his business.

Herbert Carlson of the Carlson store will leave next Wednesday on a two months' vacation, which will be spent partly with relatives at Newfolden, Thief River Falls and at this place.

Miss Tena Westby left last Tuesday for Thief River Falls, where she will be employed for some time.

A. Thompson went to Thief River Falls on Tuesday evening to spend a few days on business.

A. M. Gullseth of the Gullseth Confectionery and L. L. Furan went to Viking Saturday morning to spend the day on business.

Benjamin Gullseth of Benwood was in town last Friday visiting with his uncle, A. M. Gullseth. Mr. Gullseth is at present receiving medical treatment at Thief River Falls for his hand which was badly mangled by coming in contact with a moving circular saw a few days ago. The hand is improving as rapidly as can be expected.

John Bloom and Henry Lappegaard went to Thief River Falls Saturday evening and spent Sunday among relatives.

Teachers R. L. C. Lonson and Edith Patten went to Thief River Falls on Friday evening to spend the week-end.

Sam Lee, the Newfolden merchant, arrived Saturday evening after a few days' stay disposing of cordwood in the vicinity of Stephen and Argyle. He spent Sunday visiting at the Swen Swenson home.

Mrs. Ole Johnson and children from Viking arrived on Friday evening to be guests over Sunday at the parental home of the former.

Olaf Jorgenson, the Erskine garage man, spent a few days last week at the A. T. Thoreson home. He left on Monday for Grand Forks and other points, where he will do some studying along electrical lines.

MOONSHINE.

Government prohibition agents tell us that moonshine liquor is being sold in this community and that as a matter of fact is being sold in nearly every community.

In one of the national magazines a series of articles laying bare the monkey shines of the moonshiners presents enough evidence to indicate that there is, largely speaking, unrestricted country-wide traffic going on in intoxicants; that truck lines carrying by day and by night the illegal stuff, lace the nation; that much money is being used to "grease" these routes, and that the novel deceptions to provide safety from arrest are continually being invented. In one southern district a man who had been driving what looked like a missionary wagon with "Jesus Saves" printed on the sides, was arrested and the vehicle was found to contain as choice a line of moonshine as ever made a rabbit spit in a bull dog's eye.

In Minneapolis recently, a crossing gateman was shot down in cold blood because the moonshine a couple of men in an automobile had soaked up in St. Paul joints had put murder in their hearts. Near Elk River a few days later, a former member of the Minnesota legislature was heartlessly murdered by a man who had lured him to a school house under the pretext that they were to pick a load of moonshine.

The lure of the outlawed liquor, either as a means for making easy money or for personal consumption, has caused heretofore unthinkable crimes and will keep on causing them until the public begins to take the eighteenth amendment more seriously than has been the case up to the present.

"Better stop drinking that moonshine," a man told his freind. "it will ruin your constitution."

"Forget that constitution stuff," was the reply, "I'm living on my bylaws."

So it goes; the public smiles; jokes are cracked and a general attitude of indifference and tolerance for liquor law violations is the result.

Persons who wouldn't think of breaking other laws, crack the whisky statutes without the slightest compunction and men who never drank before are now drinking, more to establish the fact that it takes more than a little old constitution amendment to keep it away from them.

Slowly sentiment is crystallizing against this sort of thing and the time draws near when moonshine murders and moonshine missionaries will be stopped. Beer and light wines may again be legalized but certain it is that the present period of promiscuous peddling of poison that drive men crazy can't last much longer.

After everything is said and done the burden is not so much on the government as on citizens who believe in law and order and who have decency enough about themselves not to buy the stuff when it is offered for sale. —Dassel Dispatch.

The Tribune always has believed that the government should properly take charge of and bear the principal expense of the flood control involved in the upper Mississippi basin, which would include such projects as the Red Lake river drainage, and the editorial which is reproduced in this issue from the Minneapolis Journal strengthens that belief. It was never intended that a bunch of poverty stricken farmers should pay for something which is inestimably of greater benefit to the cities in need of power and light, and the power companies which will benefit from such development. Those who insist that the Conservancy Board has the only feasible plan for building the Red Lake project should take new heart, for it is apparent that interests are at work upon this proposition, looking to its solution, which are more potent than any local agency.

The widow of the empire builder paid the state something over two million dollars recently in inheritance taxes. So it seems means have not been lacking for building a lousy depot in Thief River Falls.

ST. PAUL WAKING UP.

St. Paul appears to be waking up from its long Rip Van Winkle sleep, and now that the old burg has tasted blood there is no telling how far the town will go in its efforts to keep up with Minneapolis. It has been an unequal race up to this time, with St. Paul a docile second, but the Ford plant may change the entire aspect. Just why St. Paul has been content to play second fiddle to Minneapolis has always been a puzzle, and can only be explained on the theory that St. Paul was loaded down with old seeds who had made their pile, and put in their declining years growling at new comers, while Minneapolis became the mecca of fortune hunters and young blood which craved company and capital.

Something has happened in the Saintly City, to be sure. People are wondering whether it is a case of monkey glands injected into the old town, or whether Mayor Nelson, the energetic and debonair chief executive of the Capital City, has managed to infuse a little of his own enthusiasm into his constituents. Anyway it is to be noted that for the first time in years and years and years the various organizations worked together in perfect harmony, not caring a hurrah who was to benefit, just so the old town got the Ford plant. That's how they got it.

If Henry Ford's income is a quarter of a million dollars a day, as reported, we can understand his indifference toward the coal barons of the country.

Dr. Froehlich does not claim to be a miracle man, but just the same he will make an attempt tomorrow to bring the dead Commercial Club back to life. We hope every live one in the city will be there to offer up a quart of blood if necessary to make the transfusion a successful one.

An up-state newspaper makes the startling statement that a farmer's wife in that neighborhood accidentally left some "Birth Control" literature in the chicken house and declares their hens haven't laid an egg since.—St. Paul Herald.

This must have happened in St. Paul, and goes to show that the big cities are not a safe abiding place even for hens.

UNJUST CRITICISM.

Gov. Preus made a "plea for economy" for political purposes during his campaign, but is now planning to foist a few millions of extra expense on the people of Minnesota through his proposed state police plan and other like stunts to enable him to organize his political packers and support them at the public trough.—Milaca Times.

Criticism like the above should be condemned by all fairminded people. Governor Preus has abandoned the constabulary plan, never mentioning the subject in his message to the legislature and no good can come of such misrepresentation of the facts. Even Magnus Johnson could not have framed a more progressive message to the legislature than the one recently read by Governor Preus.

NOTICE.

The most recent drive of the Salvation Army is being conducted under the supervision of Norman A. Borgen of Minneapolis and notices sent to workers in the county signed by J. S. Arneson were unauthorized by the undersigned. Workers are requested to report to committee headquarters at the Elks' club, as I am no longer a member of the working organization.

The Better Way to Health

The human body is often compared to an electrical machine, its many parts receiving the "power" to do their work from the "dynamo" in the brain.

As in all electrical machines there must be two wires, one conveying power to the parts and one completing the circuit; so in the human machine there are two kinds of nerves, one carrying mental impulses (power) to the parts, the other carrying vibrations to the brain, and completing the circuit.

Break the circuit in the electric machine, and the machinery stops. Decrease the amount of power passing over the circuit, and the work is lessened. Break the circuit in the human machine and the organ stops work—becomes dead; decrease the amount of power passing over the circuit and the organ itself becomes diseased.

As Chiropractors we are concerned with keeping all parts of the human machine supplied with full power to do their work. If you are sick in any way, let us examine your spine and explain to you just how the "power" may be shut off or decreased by misaligned vertebrae. Consultation and spinal analysis is free.

We present the following program of activities for the Woman's Christian Temperance Union as essential to maintain the Eighteenth Amendment, to secure its enforcement, and to promote the great principles for which we stand:

I. To secure intelligent support and observance of the Eighteenth Amendment and laws for its enforcement by well-informed public opinion based upon:

1. Systematic instruction in the scientific facts concerning alcoholic drinks in all schools:
2. The reaching of all citizens with these facts, especially the facts concerning beer and wine;
3. Popular education as to the dangers in patent medicines containing alcohol or habit-forming drugs and the reasons for decreasing use of alcohol as medicine;
4. A new campaign for pledged total abstinence on the part of youth in Sunday Schools, young people's and educational institutions, and of leaders in all lines of public influence and activity.

II. To promote intelligence in the privileges and duties of citizenship with particular reference to the observance and enforcement of prohibition laws, through courses of study adapted to both native and foreign-born women.

III. To stimulate the spiritual life of the nation by:

1. Personal Bible study, prayer, and consecration;
2. Better observance of the Sabbath;
3. Securing the eading of the Bible in the public Schools;
4. Carrying the Gospel message in friendly helpfulness to all who need our sympathy or assistance;

IV. To help raise high national standards of physical and moral fitness by:

1. The safeguarding of child life physically, morally and spiritually;
2. Continued educational work among youth as to the dangers in tobacco and other habit forming drugs;
3. Education to personal purity on the basis of the single standard of morals;

V. To help create a sound public sentiment so organized and so dominant that it shall be the potent force in driving the way to world peace;

VI. To invite the co-operation of organizations promoting international understanding in studying and making known the international aspects of the liquor problem, the handicap it imposes in mission fields; to co-operate in promoting temperance education in all lands; to assist national societies federated in the World's Woman's Christian Temperance Union in their work of organization to the end that women throughout the world may work effectively toward the goal of prohibition of the liquor traffic in their respective nations.

VII. To focus the Jubilee Campaign for 1,000,000 members in 1924 through:

.1 Trio-teams in our 15,000 local unions;
2. National, state and department organizers;
3. Co-operative bodies;
4. The effort of every member.

To emphasize the appeal of our law enforcement program to our young people through the Young People's Branch; to bring into membership a great body of employed women as standard-bearers among the 40,000,000 workers of the country.

We invite all who believe with us that this program meets the needs of the times to unite with the Woman's Christian Temperance Union and help in its labors in hastening the coming of the Kingdom of God.

Lady Bruce of Clovercrest New State Champion

Three-Year-Old Guernsey Cow Owned By F. B. Conklin Develops New Minnesota Record For One Year's Butter Production Under Official Test.

The Tribune is inordinately proud to announce that Thief River Falls is now the home of a real champion, the news having leaked out that nothing but sudden death can prevent Lady Bruce of Clovercrest, a three-year-old pure bred Guernsey cow belonging to F. B. Conklin of this city from winning the state title for butter production in her class.

Lady Bruce had produced 616 pounds of butterfat up to January 1, and she had approximately 68 pounds to make in 50 days, the record being completed during the closing days of February. She made 49 pounds in December and it will thus be seen that she has a mortal cinch on the state title which nothing but death can rob her of.

The record established by Lady Bruce of Clovercrest is a most creditable performance, being performed under ordinary farm conditions. In most record breaking tests, the performers are the pampered pets of rich owners, who bestow upon them all the care and attention of royalty. Not so with Lady Bruce, who received ordinary care, such as her brothers and sisters received.

Mr. Conklin is entitled to great credit for the development of a state champion from his excellent herd, and we trust he may reap the full benefit of the fame which will come to both him and Thief River Falls as a result. When the test is completed The Tribune hopes to get a good photograph of Lady Bruce for publication.

In Municipal Court.

As a result of a crap game said to have been pulled off in the basement of a local barber shop on Main avenue last Saturday night, P. J. La Muska, cigarmaker, caused the arest of a barber named Les Ferrie, charging that crooked dice had been manipulated to his financial disadvantage.

The barber was arraigned before Judge Tarrant yesterday and paid a fine of $20 and costs. Chief Erickson was called out of bed at 1 o'clock in the morning. He also took possession of the dice, which are so constructed as to make winning easy for the manipulator, and reports about town are to the effect that the sequel to the dice game is still to be played out, as the authorities of the city will make a thorough investigation of the entire matter.

B. Williams paid a fine of $25 in police court Monday morning on a charge of intoxication. He was arrested by Sheriff Ihle, with whom he had an altercation on the streets, but was lodged in jail by the officer and was released later the same evening.

Leech Lake Indians Said to Be Destitute

Many reports are reaching this office of the destitute condition of the Indians around Leech Lake. It seems that they are up against the most desperate circumstances in the history of the tribe and at the present time general illness has complicated things. Yesterday Dr. Wilcox was appointed by Mr. Wadsworth of Cass Lake to look after their ailments and the Indians are pleased with this turn of affairs but they fear that he will not have the necessary time from his extensive practice to be of assistance to all who are in need of medical attention at the present time, and on the other hand they have no money with which to purchase medicine after it has been prescribed.

At the present time there are said to be thirty families in need of medical attention at Onigum and during the past few days two have died. Their main ailment is pneumonia. In many cases whole families are afflicted. Besides the thirty families at Onigum, conditions are aid to be equally serious at Squaw Point. A good deal of this sickness is contributed to the poverty and resultant undernourishment because of the lack of means to procure the bare necessities for the preservation of life.—Walker Pilot.

Gets Buffalo Head.

Last Saturday J. R. Lindholm, taxidermist who commenced business in Warren last fall, received a fine buffalo head to be mounted for the Scotty Phillips buffalo ranch at Fort Pierre, S. D. The head is of an eighteen-year old bull and is a very fine specimen. Several weeks time will be required to mount the specimen.—Warren Sheaf.

THE PRICE OF OLD AGE.

Tannous Karen has just celebrated his one hundred and fifteenth birthday at his home, Mt. Lebanon, Syria. Writing to his grandson in Boston, he gives these reasons why he has managed to cheat the grave since 1808.

"I have always been an enemy of strong drink. I did not watch the stars and I did not overstrain my vital organs. The conscience and heart should be kept free from worry. Don't eat too much meat, but use plenty of vegetables."

This is a plausible, logical formula, but the average American will probably consider the price too high.

Every Member of Club Requested to Attend Noon Luncheon and Election of Officers.

The annual meeting and election of officers of the Commecial club will be held Thursday, January 25, immediately following the noon-day luncheon. Many important matters come up for discussion at that time.

On February 8 a speaker from the Western Union Telegraph Company, Minneapolis, will give a talk on "Time, the Essence of Business." This is an efficiency talk that deals with the value of time and fits in very nicely with the endeavors of the Commercial club.

On February 15, W. L. Cavert, expert accountant and farm management demonstator of the University of Minnesota, will give a talk on the economic conditions of the time.

February 22, R. C. Rose of the plant pathology division will address the club. The officers of the club have gone to a great deal of trouble in endeavoring to have good programs and hope the club members will show their appreciation by good turnouts during those days.

BURNING, COVERING, KILLS QUACK GRASS.

Eradication of quack grass by burning and covering with straw has been successfully demonstrated by Carl Nordhaugen of Leeds, N. D., on 127 patches of quack grass in that neighborhood.

"By observation I have found that the root stock of the quack grass is the weakest when the plant is developing new roots for about a week after the plants form a blossom," related Mr. Nordhaugen. "At that time I cover the patch with about twelve inches of dry straw and burn it off. This kills all the shoots above the ground and by reducing the supply of food to the root stocks weakens their vitality.

"Within a week after the patch has been burned off I cover it with about 16 inches of straw and leave this straw to rot. This keeps the sunlight from the shoots that develop from the crowns. Usually the straw will be rotted by harvest so that there is no difficulty in getting over it with a binder. I find that this method requires much less straw and labor than is used in smothering the quack grass without burning any straw. I was surprised at the number of patches I could burn and cover in a day if the straw pile was not located too far away. I have tried the method of skinning off the crowns when the new roots start to develop, but it is almost impossible to get all of them, and I find that burning them is much more efficient, and there is no need of a farmer having quack grass on his farm if he will watch his fields and tackle the job as soon as the quack appears."

Knute Koland, who has been ailing ever since his return from Alaska, was last week taken to the insane asylum for treatment. Of late Knute has been unable to sleep and that in time affected his mind until it became necessary to take him away. He has been staying with his brother, Chris. His many friends hope for his speedy recovery.—Karlstad Advocate.

A LADY AMAZED.

A lady, no matter where, went to a store for a peck of apples, taking, what she supposed to be a newly laundered flour sack. She held the sack and the clerk poured the apples in, when they came streaming out the other end. On examination it was found there were two holes in the bottom, both trimmed and embroidered. The young man gave up the ghost and the lady sent a small boy for the apples—with a basket.—Sisseton (S. D.) Courier.

SOFT DRINK ORDINANCE IS PASSED BY CITY COUNCIL

At a meeting of the city council held last evening the propoed soft drink ordinance, designed to place under better control soft drink parlors, some of which have been under suspicion by the authorities, was read the third time and passed as amended. Its provisions are pretty much as outlined in The Tribune some weeks ago, and will place in the hands of the council the means for curbing the illicit sale of liquor at such places. The ordinance will be printed in full in The Tribune next week.

Among the important matters to come before the council was the selection of an engineer to study the dam matter and report back all phases of the power and light situation in order to enable the council to keep the public correctly informed. No definite action was taken, as several of the council members favor a more thorough investigation into the qualifications of some of the engineers who applied for the job.

VISIT OF GREAT NORTHERN OFFICIALS FORESHADOWS DEPOT FOR THIS CITY

Mass Meeting of Citizens Is Held Yesterday at Commercial Club at Request of Visiting Officials to Consider Location and Style of New Structure.

The sequel to the recent agitation for a new Great Northern depot in Thief River Falls was the visit yesterday of General Superintendent T. J. Gavin of Duluth, Division Freight Agent J. H. Griffin of Grand Forks, General Master Carpenter E. A. Mills of St. Paul and the latter's assistant, T. Thygeson, division master carpenter at Crookston. The officials had their private car side-tracked here yesterday forenoon, coming in from the south, and called for a meeting with a citizens' committee at 2 o'clock at the Commercial club rooms.

Heeding the insistent demand for a new depot, the officials came here to sound out local sentiment with reference to location and type of architecture. The meeting was presided over by Dr. H. W. Froehlich, president of the Commercial club, and short talks were made by the visiting officials and a number of local citizens. Some sentiment was expressed for a depot to be located at the west end of Third street, but the consensus of opinion favored the pesent location on Main avenue, and this was concurred in by the Great Northern officials, who stated that trackage facilities of adequate dimensions were available at that point.

It is likely from the discussion over style of architecture to be followed that Thief River Falls will get a stucco building as Master Carpenter Mills explained that brick construction was too expensive to be considered at this time.

Just how soon construction will be started was not divulged by the officials, who claimed the matter would first have to be considered by the board of directors of the Great Northern. It is evident, however, that notice has been taken by the Great Northern of the general dissatisfaction existing here over the cramped and inadequate depot facilities, and it is reasonably safe to expect that action of some kind will be taken in the very near future.

Anyway, Thief River Falls feels greatly encouraged over the show of interest so far exhibited by the railroad officials.

FARMERS, ATTENTION!

Dinner will be served at the Commercial club to all who attend the stockholders' meeting of the creamery next Saturday, at the rate of 25 cents for each person. Dinner to be served beginning at 11:30.

Mr. Myrland had suffered for a number of years from cancer and had been a patient at the Mayo Hospital at Rochester up to a short time ago, when he returned to Minneapolis, where death occurred.

The body will be shipped to Thief River Falls, where the funeral will take place Friday at 1 o'clock P. M. at the Masonic temple. The services will be in charge of the Masonic lodge.

NO HOPE.

"They say people who live together grow to look alike."

"Then you absolutely must consider my refusal final."—Legion Weekly.

The country needs more of the spirit of the horn players. They are always ready to blow themselves.

Thos. H. Smith, of the State Bank of Mavie, was in the city Monday on business connected with his bank. Mr. Smith, who is a former publisher, has given considerable thought and study to the rural credits act now pending in the Legislature, and in conversation with the editor of The Tribune raised a new point in connection with the law, namely, the fact that it will have a tendency to definitely fix the price of farm lands and will thus prevent any undue inflation on the part of dealers. When a purchaser contemplates buying a piece of land carrying a state or federal loan, the appraisal will greatly determine the fair selling price. It goes without saying that Mr. Smith strongly favors the passage of the act on the basis of 70 per cent loans on the basis of appraisal and 40 per cent of the insurable value of the improvements. Such a law would rapidly bring this section out of the present slough of despondency.

Dave Gustafson Asks for Caution in Buying

The Tribune regrets that a congestion in its composing room this week has crowded out a number of important news items, among them excerpts from a communication written by Dave Gustafson to the Northwestern Tractor and Truck Dealer, which is worthy of the perssal and study of every man in the community who has taken notice of present conditions.

It is the purpose of The Tribune to give some space to this communication next week.

THE HIGH COST OF CREDIT.

The display ad in another column gives some idea of the cost of credit extension, so far as the dealer is concerned, and we recommend its study by all. Many business failures have resulted because of abuse of the credit system, that being the main reason for so many firms going on a strictly cash basis to avoid bankruptcy.

PREPAREDNESS.

A chap was making a call on his particular fiance of the moment. The younger brother strolled into the parlor while he was waiting, so he inquired, "Do you know, Jack, whether Marjory is expecting me or not?"

"I guess she must be. She's upstairs taking the pins out of her belt."—Princeton Tiger.

YOUR JUDGMENT.

Are you always right in your judgment? Many people think they are—but no person ever is.

Nineteen hundred years ago we had one perfect man, whose judgment was never at fault. Because of His perfection He died upon a cross. His agony was shared by thieves.

Since then the world has never known another.

Why, then, should we humble mortals that we be, imagine that our judgment is never at fault, or that we are incapable of falling into error?

The next time you get into an argument and lose your temper and are on the verge of resorting to force, stop and think of the years that have flown since the manger ennobled the beginning and the cross witnessed the end of perfection in mankind.

It is barely possible that you may be sometimes in error.—Ex.

Y. M. C. A. PROPOSED FOR YOUNG MEN OF THIS CITY

Plans Under Way to Utilize Vacant Spaces in Library Basement as Recreation Center for Boys.

A committee of citizens, headed by Rev. Charles Gerlinger, met at the Evelyn hotel at noon today to consider ways and means for financing a proposed Y. M. C. A. for boys to be established in the basement of the library.

Just what was accomplished in the way of organization could not be learned by The Tribune in time for today's issue, but the tentative plans call for tables, chairs, books, games of various kinds, including a bowling alley of reduced size, pool tables, etc., in oder to make the rooms attractive to the youth of the city, and the perplexing question is the one of raising the necessary funds.

The need for a social center for boys is quite apparent, and the young men of the High school, as well as many others interested, have expressed great enthusiasm over the project. It is likely that a committee of business men and women will undertake to put the matter over by passing a subscription list some time next week.

Red Lake Drainage Project Aired By Senate Committee

The Red Lake project received an airing this morning before the Senate Committee on Drainage when a bill which modifies the existing laws with reference to assessments of water power companies, came up for consideration. The bill, which in no way relieves the assessments now complained of by the farmers of eastern Pennington county, was bitterly opposed by Senator C. L. Hansen, Attorney W. J. Brown, as well as Mr. Wilson of Esplee. The members of the Conservancy Board were on hand to urge the passage of the bill. The upshot of the matter was that Senator Cliff, who seems to favor the bill, asked an indefinite adjournment, which was taken. This was the third hearing on the bill, and The Tribune is advised that the members of the committee are opposed to it.

Great Race Scene in "The Pride of Palomar"

How Diector Borzage Packed the Grandstand After Racing Season Had Closed.

One of the thrilling scenes in "The Pride of Palomar," Peter B. Kyne's romance of southern California as picturized by Cosmopolitan for Paramount release, is the race where Don Mike's pet, Panchito, with the range burrs still in his mane, runs away from a field of bangtails and brings home the bacon to the Rancho Palomar.

Since the racing was ended the problem for the producers was to get a crowded grandstand for the occasion. Fortunately the Spanish-American spirit still survives in southern California, and a horse race takes precedence over everything.

Advertisements were inserted in the local papers that the race scenes of "The Pride of Palomar" would be filmed at the Ventura track, and as a special attraction there would be a chariot race between Tom Clark, the county supervisor, and Bob Anderson, a well known rancher. The result was a crowd of about 5,000 persons, whose enthusiasm for the local favorites was fine for the camera man, and saved Director Frank Borzage a lot of work. The only feature missing was the book makers, and even at that, Clark's backers managed to collect a lot of money when he won.

"The Pride of Palomar," which will be the feature at the Lyceum theatre Sunday and Monday, has much to recommend it. The story is by Peter B. Kyne, being an adaptation of his well known novel of the same name. The cast is all star featuring Forrest Stanley and Marjorie Daw, and includes James Barrow, Joseph Dowling, Warner Oland and others. The theme is powerful and deals with the problem of a young Californian just back from service abroad with the American forces when he finds that the family ranch is being absorbed by hostile interests. It is his fight against heavy odds to regain his ancestral home that provides the lively action. Other features are the love interest when a girl stands midway in a struggle between her father and her sweetheart and a great horse race with a surprise finish.

Tax his boots, run down at heel;
Tax his horses, tax his lands,
Tax the blisters on his hands.
Tax his plow, tax his clothes,
Tax the rag that wipes his nose;
Tax his house, and tax his bed,
Tax the bald spot on his head.
Tax the ox, and tax the ass,

Tax the road that he must pass,
And make his travel o'er the grass.
Tax his cow, and tax the calf,
Tax him if he dares to laugh,

Tax the cuss, just all you can.
Tax the lab'er, but be discreet,
Tax him for walking on the street.
Tax his bread, and tax his meat,
Tax the shoes clear off his feet.

Skeleton View of New Curtiss Pursuit Plane, Showing Metal Construction.

The test performance of a new Curtiss Pursuit Plane has caused a sensation in the Army and Navy services. Ever since the Pulitzer Race at Detroit, in which a new all-American motor finished in the first four places, it has been expected that military planes of a super-type would make their appearance at almost any time. The actual performance of the first pursuit ship of a series surpasses expectation.

In many respects, this aeroplane is a departure from precedent. It uses the same Curtiss motor used in the racing ships at Detroit. It is equipped with wing radiators, the most radical advance in the art of cooling a motor since 1917, and which reduces the resistance of the air almost to zero. These features were expected. The construction, however, is said to possess, also, a new feature, in that the entire machine can be stored for a period of twenty years, if necessary, and taken out of storage, ready to assemble and fly on twenty-four hours' notice.

This machine is also stated to be the first real fighting ship of all-American construction and design. While tests are not completed, expert opinion is that it is not only the fastest, but also the most powerful fighting ship in existence in any nation today.

CHRISTOFFERSON OPPOSES.

Editor Tribune:

As I have noticed you have allowed others to use up a lot of valuable space in your paper, perhaps you will give me a little corner. I note that in an editorial in the Times a short time ago the editor said that as the farmers begin to understand the project they were less opposed to it. That idea must have originated in the fertile brain of the Times man. As the farmers begin to understand the enormous iniquitous things that are being done to them in this Red Lake matter, they go from being warm under the collar to boiling heat, and in the wordss of Paul Jones of Old. I would say we have not commenced to fight yet.

If somewhere near a majority of the people were in favor of this project I would not say a word. The founders of this country fought because of taxation without representation, and it was only a few cents too. Dr. you, Mr. editor of the Times, tool of the power companies, that you seem to be, blame us for fighting when it means for some of us at least the losing of our homes? The farmers, and in a lesser sense, the country, are hard up, but we have thousands for defense but not one d——n cent for a gift to the power companies.

Most of the people sending articles to the papers in favor of the ditch are not assessed to help pay for it. It is easy to be for it if you do not have to help pay. The letter of Elev Aakre in the paper last week sounds like one of that kind, and it sounds like it was written in Crookston.

As for Mr. Aubol, we got rid of him a long time ago. Enough said. In time of distress like this we are not ashamed to call on the Deity for help.

OLE CHRISTOFFERSON,
Hazel, Minn.

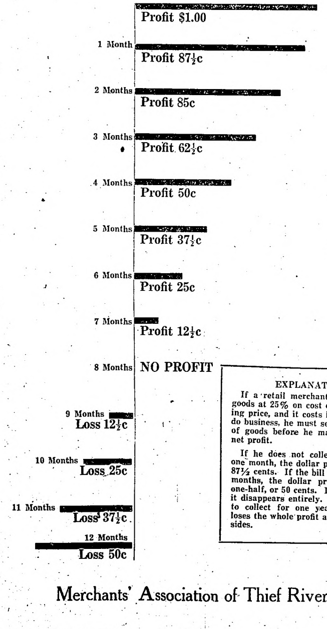
What Happens to the Retail Merchants' Profit on Slow Pay Accounts



EXPLANATION.

If a retail merchant marks up his goods at 25% on cost or 20% on selling price, and it costs him 16 2-3% to do business, he must sell $25.00 worth of goods before he makes one dollar net profit.

If he does not collect the bill for one month, the dollar profit shrinks to 87½ cents. If the bill stands for four months, the dollar profit shrinks to one-half, or 50 cents. In eight months it disappears entirely. Should he fail to collect for one year, he actually loses the whole profit and 50 cents besides.

Nora in "A Doll's House" Called a Modern Woman

Nazimova, who can be credited with actually popularizing Henrik Ibsen, the Norwegian playwright, in this country, and who will be seen as Nora in the Ibsen classic, "A Doll's House," at the Lyceum theatre Friday and Saturday, has this to say of the character in which she won her greatest fame as an emotional actress:

"Nora is a real modern woman. That she didn't start a series of emotional affairs when she found she couldn't live with her husband under the humiliation of being a mere doll-baby, proves Ibsen's insight in the feminine character.

"No, not all women, it's true. Some poor, brainless little things, when they are thrown over by a lover or a sweetheart, just naturally turn to the easiest way left to them. For example, Dumas' Camille was such a woman. But not Ibsen's Nora. Far from it. She turned up her mind, got into a snappy looking business suit and started forth into the world to discover the legitimate objective for woman's energies.

"Nora Helmer was a human sort of woman, at first trying in every way to please her husband, playing the baby now and then, catering to his whims, trying to amuse him and flatter him, just as women do. But when that didn't work out, and she found no understanding of her own rights in the home and household, she sought a way to find herself—and left him.

"Nora is an emblem—an emblem of all womanhood. She stands for freedom, independence, destiny and woman's right to her God-given inheritance—a place in the world, equal to man, mentally, spiritually, physically."

ALLEGED MOONSHINE VENDERS ARRESTED

Federal agents swooped down on several of the western Mesaba range villages the first part of last week and arrested a number of venders of moonshine. They were taken to Virginia on Wednesday, where they were arraigned before United States Commissioner Poirier. They waived the preliminary examination and were bound over under bonds to await the action of the federal grand jury at Duluth. Their trial was set for Feb. 27. United States Prohibition Agent Hess and Indian Agent Hess made the arrest.

Jim Aimonetti and W. A. Gordon of Nashwauk were also arrester on Tuesday night of last week and charged with having intoxicating liquor in their possession. Both conduct soft drink parlors in Nashwauk. They also appeared before the Virginia commissioner and wee bound over to the federal court. At Keewatin Peter Denovich was arrested by the federal men on a similar charge. He also made a trip to Virginia.—Grand Rapids Herald-Review.

NO WONDER GERMAN GIRLS WANT SOLDIERS TO REMAIN

German girls who have sweethearts among the American troops on the Rhine and who do not favor the return of the soldier boys to the United States, are justified because when the boys leave German soil it will take a small fortune to communicate with them.

A letter from Germany, received at the Bemidji post office this week, would show that the problem of financing regular correspondence with a sweetheart in America would be a big task for the ordinary German girl. The letter, which was just an ordinary piece of first class mail, bore 100 two-mark stamps, which under ordinary financial conditions would represent about $48.00 in American money. The stamps are pasted together with one end attached to the letter and the sheet of stamps is four times the size of the letter. Registered mail would be almost prohibitive, according to Postmaster Ritchie, the cost of sending a registered letter from Germany to the United States being 400 marks. German marks are now lited at Bemidji banks as being worth one cent a hundred.—Bemidji Sentinel.

PENNINGTON COUNTY.

Those people who are prone to find fault with conditions in Pennington county should carefully consider what is taking place elsewhere before giving voice to words of grumbling or complaint. The Tribune recognizes that things are not as good as they may be, but they are so much better than in many farming localities as to put us safely on the credit side of the ledger.

Consider first those localities where farm lands went so high in price during and after the war as to ruin financially the purchasers and placed the holders of farm securities under a severe strain. Compare this situation with our own, where farm securities today are as secure as ever in the past. While it is true many of our farmers find themselves in straits due to the prevailing low prices, yet they do not owe such sums as to make their condition almost hopeless. They do not owe from $15.000 to $25,000 as is the case in many localities, and with a return of reasonable prices for what they have to sell, by careful management and frugality, one or two good years will place most of them back on their feet.

When the return to an even keel comes, as it surely will, it will be found that the quest for farm land will turn to this direction, and The Tribune would not be surpried to see every man who really wants to part with his holdings in Pennington during the year 1923. given an opportunity to do so.

But if such a man sells, where is he going to better himself? He may go west, he may go south, or east, or north, but he will return to good old Pennington county better satisfied and in most cases will be glad to repurchase his old farm at a good advance in price.

Mark carefully this prediction: Land prices in Pennington county will never again be as reasonable as they will be in the year of our Lord, 1923. And our advice to those who have a good farm is to hang onto it.

THOSE HIGHWAY BONDS.

While The Tribune is in hearty accord with those who look to the Legislature for the strictest economy in expenditures, yet it fails to see any real economy in curtailment of the highway program proposed by Commissioner Babcock.

Considerable opposition has developed to his proposed plan for issuing two 10-million dollar bond issues by which he hopes to bring to an early completion the highway program which was contemplated under Amendment No. 1. Such opposition is not based altogether on sound argument, the main opposition being on the ground of increased taxes.

As a matter of fact, these bonds cannot bring any increase in taxes, since they will be paid off under the povisions of the automobile tax, but they will provide ready money with which to give the country districts needed roads which would otherwise be built piece-meal.

"Let us pay for our roads as we go," says the opposition, but it may be pointed out that there is just as much sense in building a home by erecting the foundation one year, the first story the next, the superstructure the next, the interior finishing next, and so on, as there is in this continual tearing up of country roads. Our traffic demands have changed since the days of the poll tax system of building roads, and we must govern ourselves accordingly.

Manifestly a small section of good road on a given stretch is of little use as the farmer who hauls his product must adjust his load to conform to the bad stretch, and likewise the traveler in his touring car must judge a road by its bad spots. By all means let us get our roads fixed up—and that soon.

We approve of the Babcock plan under which Minnesota can build her roads in the same manner as the man of ordinary means builds a home—by using his credit to provide comfort for himself and family. It is the right idea with respect to home building—it is the right idea with respect to road building. No one will benefit as much as will the farmer from such a program. He needs good roads NOW for his PRESENT convenience and comfort, and he will be more comfortable and have more valuable holdings when a good road passes his door.

The Babcock bonding plan should not be mixed up with the general program for reducing taxes all along the line, a program which meets with the hearty approval of The Tribune.

CAPITAL PUNISHMENT.

The biennial effort to restore capital punishment for murder in Minnesota is under way. The palpable fact of steady increase in crimes of violence in this state may lead the present Legislature to put aside the emotional objections of sentimentalists and consider the growing need for the deterrent effect of legal execution of murderers.

Potential murderers are now but little affected by the prospect that, if caught and convicted, they may have to go to prison for life. They expect in the first place to escape detection. They expect, in the second place, if caught, to escape conviction. They expect in the third place, if caught and convicted, to get their sentences commuted or to win full pardon. While there is life, there is hope. But if they see death at the end of the passage, that will be a far different matter.

The deterrent effect of capital punishment is beyond question. Yet the St. Cloud Journal-Press urges with elaborate sarcasm that it be enhanced by making a holiday affair of each execution, with moving picture cameras going, circumstantial press reports, excursion rates and excited crowds.

On the contrary that would be the best way to nullify the deterrent effect. Make of the condemned murderer a hero, put him in the limelight where the emotional may sentimentalize over him, and he will go to his fate with bursting pride. His egomania will furnish an anodyne for the ordeal.

But if the condemned murderer knows that at some unnamed hour he will be led to the fatal chair, with no excited throngs to watch him and no chance to play the hero; if he knows that by the shifting of a switch his life will be snuffed out without warning in expiation of his crime—ah, that is something to dread, something to ponder over. If the penalty is hanging or axphyxiation under similar circumstances, the psychology of it would be the same.

Give the potential murderer a fate like that to fear, instead of a few years in prison with early freedom in prospect, and he will be far more likely to stay his bloody hand.—Minneapolis Journal.

BRANCH BANKING.

The consolidation of city banks with the resultant evil of branch banking is one that should be stopped by legislation if possible. So far the country districts have been free from such practices, but once the big city banks secure control of the larger institutions they will naturally seek to further control the financial situation by the consolidation of the smaller country banks. As has been pointed out by Senator Rosemeier, of the Senate committee on banks and banking, the country banker recognizes a certain element of moral risk behind its loans which is absent in the rules of the city banker.

In other words, the farmer, though he may have no collateral to speak of, if he has a record for honesty and has shown an inclination to work, may secure a reasonable line of credit where he could hardly hope to even gain an audience with the manager of a large consolidated bank operated on set rules. The country districts need the small banker who knows his community and to a great extent the same is true of the outlying districts of a large city, and hence the "common herd" view with alarm the recent tendency to place the control of the banking situation in the hands of a few men.

CONGRATULATIONS!

Judge Norman E. Peterson used the only effective method recently to put a stop to the violation of the prohibition amendment when he sentenced David Sharabono, a business man of Geneva to a straight jail sentence of 60 days in the Freeborn county jail and a fine of $150 and costs for violating the liquor laws of our land.

The judge added that if Sharabono failed to pay his fine the jail sentence would be extended 30 days more.

The Tribune congratulates the new judge in his determination to keep his district free from bootleggers and moonshine artists.

A few sentences like the one administered by Judge Peterson will throw fear into all liquor violators in the country and will soon cause them to cease the practice.

County Attorney J. O. Peterson and Sheriff Otteson are highly elated over the action on the part of the new judge. They feel that their efforts to round up these guilty ones and secure the evidence of their guilt will not be in vain.—Albert Lea Times-Enterprise.

PRAISE FOR CHIEF CLERK.

There is one position in the House for which there has been no contest for several sessions—that of chief clerk. Oscar Arneson is the synonym for efficiency in that place, but that is not the only qualification that gives him his strong pull with all factions.

Tactfulness and geniality are as handy, if not as necessary, in a chief clerk as is efficiency, and even more appreciated, especially by new members, and Mr. Arneson possesses both to a superlative degree. We have known him in his present office for five sessions and we have never yet seen him lose his bearings or his poise. His knowledge of the rules of legislative procedure is most comprehensive and the presiding officer, whoever he may be, can always depend upon him to extricate him from any parliamentary tangle in which he may find himself involved.—Warren Register.

Since 1907 Pennington county has risen from dairy obscurity to one of leadership. A million dollars was paid for dairy products in this county in 1922. Watch us grow in 1923.

The finest wheat in the middle west was raised in Pennington county last year, the prize-winning grain being raised within three miles of this city.

Our alfalfa and clover growing attracted the attention of two of the leading farm journals of the country, the editors in each case coming here for a personal inspection, and both printed column after column predicting an influx of dairy farmers to this section.

There are 27 accredited herds of pure-bred Holstein cattle in the Thief River Falls territory.

There are nine accredited herds of Guernseys.

There are several fine herds of Shorthorns.

We have the climate, the soil, good water, plenty of cheap fuel, fine school systems and neighborly neighbors.

What more do you want?

The Tribune is pained and surprised to see a number of its exchanges among the country weeklies printing that bunk about the "farmers preferring better prices to more credit," such propaganda being circulated to injure the chances of a sensible rural credits act being passed at this session of the Legislature. Of course, the farmers want better prices, but what has that to do with first getting cheaper and longer credit? Let us not get matters confused and overlook the PRESENT as the best time to secure 5 per cent money for the farmer to replace his 10 per cent loan. This can in no way prejudice the campaign for better prices but, on the contrary, will go farther in that direction than anything else that can be devised. We hope no sane newspaper will permit itself to become the paid agent of the loan companies who would like to see the proposed rural credits act end in fiasco.

The country press should lose no time in getting back of the proposed rural credits act now pending in the Legislature. The bill will meet with strenuous opposition when the time for its passage arrives and we see in the propaganda appearing in both country and city to the effect that "the farmer does not need further credit," the fine Italian hand of the opponents to the bill. The fact of the matter is that the rural credits act is not so much further credit extension as it is an effort to place the credit of the state back of the farmer in order that he may secure cheaper credit. Credit is one of the many commodities which the farmer must use and which has been too high priced, and there is no better way to get it reduced than by means of the rural credits act. Farmers, merchants, bankers, lawyers, newspapers, everybody interested in the prosperity of the country, should study the rural credits act and write the members of the Legislature their opinion.

TIME FOR INVENTORY.

About this time of the year the business men take an inventory to see if they gained or lost during the preceding year. Every one of us should take an inventory of some kind. The inventory, no doubt, would show some gains as well as some losses, but if the inventory showed a gain in money but a loss in kindliness and friendships, then we must list the year among the failures.—Winnebago Enterprise.

Carl Iverson, of Ashby, who received the Nonpartisan vote for speaker of the House, is a young man who has literally pulled himself up by his boot-straps. The Tribune remembers him best as a tow-headed kid on a farm near Pelican lake. Carl became the head of the house when most kids are learning their A, B, C's, and by dint of hard work and patient attention to details he has acquired a very fair education for himself and his brothers, provided a good home for his family and is now one of the leading members of the Legislature. He is classed as a radical, but he is no such thing. Carl is a clean-cut, level-headed young man who can safely be trusted in imaginable capacity.

Work is a great blessing, says the Browns Valley Tribune. You cannot see how, but some day you will say that you were fortunate in your boyhood days because you were compelled to work. Because you cannot get power to do things save by doing them. Look over the successful men you know. Get their history. Nearly all of them were compelled to work in boyhood. They toughened their muscles by hard work and sharpened their brains by looking out for themselves.

Bankers and legislators who shy at the proposition of a deposit guaranty law because the same was advocated by the Nonpartisan League, have a mighty poor conception of public duty. In this connection, it should be remembered that nearly everything which the People's party stood for in 1896, which was then considered wild-eyed and socialistic, has since been enacted into law by one or the other of the old parties. And so there are many things which the Nonpartisan League stands for at the present time which should be given proper consideration by the Legislature—among them being the bank guaranty bill.

Grygla came to the front last week with a nice page writeup in the Minneapolis Tribune, covering the general agricultural possibilities of that section of the country. the page being liberally embellished with attractive pictures. They are too busy hanging together and hustling for the good of the community to do any knocking at Grygla, and many another locality in need of settlers could profitably tear a page from the Grygla code of ethics.

A farmer at Taylors falls died last week at the age of 103 years and three months. He kept his faith as a democrat all his life and is now with the angels.—Olivia Times.

A man who has lived the life of a democrat for 104 years deserves to be with the angels, we'll say.

Mr. Waldal is on appropriations, markets and marketing, motor tax laws, railroads and university and state schools, the most important of the house committees.

Someone rises to remark that there are more beautiful women in the world today than ever before. We cheerfully agree. If any newspaper disagrees with this opinion, will it please mention the names of a few homely women within its bailiwick?

A bill has been introduced in the Legislature which aims to prohibit traveling carnivals in the state. It has the backing of the women's organizations, and we believe the proposed ban is desired by all right thinking people.

The Anoka Herald says that if you give a girl a tin pan and take most of her clothes away her success on Broadway is assured. Likewise, it might be added, her success is assured in Anoka and Thief River Falls!

Nobody now living will see "beer and light wines" sold by permission of the laws of the United States, Samuel Gompers and others of his ilk to the contrary notwithstanding.

"The hand that rocks the cradle" is the hand that permits smoking in the Minnesota legislature. Women have discovered that men are more tractable when under the influence of Lady Nicotine.

The coming of the Ford plant to St. Paul means so much to each and every one of us. We can strike out that F. O. B. factory from the contract and save $75 driving her home.

If all men were content to "let well enough alone" the human race would still be hanging by their tails in some primeval forest.

One legislative correspondent says a bill has been introduced providing for "capitol" punishment. That probably refers to the occasions when the heads of departments appear before legislative inquisition committees.

What has become of the New Settlers Association? A little more pep, gentlemen, a little more pep!

Employes at the post office are accustomed to seeing all sorts of things sent by parcel post, but they were amazed last week to see a silver dollar unwrapped, sent to a town in Wisconsin, says the Waseca Journal. A big round silver dollar that has been rolling seven years got back last week to Fergus Falls, where it started in 1916. Now it will be treasured as a precious mememto. Seven years ago Raymond Aarvig cut his name on the dollar, then spent it. Raymond went to the World War and never came back. Raymond's father owns a meat market. Last week the dollar came to him in change across the counter. What a story that dollar could tell if it spoke any other than the money language.

Last Thursday C. B. Goodrich was given a very agreeable surprise while down at Thief River Falls. As he was ready to get on the train he was accosted by a young man, who said to him, "How are you, stranger?" C. B. thought it was someone he had met at the dairy meeting, and could not make out just who it was. After some time the young fellow revealed his identity, which proved to be C. B.'s own son, Flavius, who left home about four years ago and has been in Canada since, in the Rapid River country. Flavius had developed a mustache and had gained quite a little in weight so it was not to be wondered at that C. B. did not recognize him at once, especially as it was not known that Flavius was on his way home.—Greenbush Tribune.

On one of his frequent trips to Gonvick Monday, Ole Lund, well known farmer of Eden township, brought the carcass of a freak calf which was viewed with interest by esveral residents. The unusual feature about the calf was two heads growing out from the body in a forked manner. Both heads appeared to be fully developed and of like size. Other than that the calf was perfectly normal. It had been born Saturday and lived but a few minutes after birth. Mr. Lund stated that it was the first freak calf to appear among his herd and he has seen but one other like it in his neighborhood during his lengthy residence there. He is anxious that the carcass be placed in the hands of someone who would be interested to the extent to have it mounted and placed on exhibition with other curiosities.—Gonvick Banner.

The lath industry proved to become quite an addition to Bagley. Hundreds of cords of lath bolts have already been piled up near the mill. Operation will start in early spring. Ben F. Benson, from east of Stephen, who had his leg fractured by a cave-in at the gravel pit when hauling gravel east of Middle River a few weeks ago, had to submit to an operation yesterday at the Warren hospital, where he was taken after he became injured. The fracture was of so serious a nature that it was found impossible to save the injured leg, which had to be amputated five or six inches below the knee. Friends of Mr. Benson sympathize with him in his great misfortune. He is a son of Mr. and Mrs. P. F. Benson, former residents of the northern part of the county, now living in Warren.—Warren Sheaf.

Three young men narrowly escaped death at Hutchinson last week when an aerial wire which they were hanging came in contact with a high power tension wire which carried 13,500 volts of electricity. Two blocks of high wire were burned out and a large portion of the city of Hutchinson was in darkness for several hours. Which indicates that great care should be exercised in putting up airials, especially when the same are in close proximity to high power electric wires. In this connection the first paragraph of the national electric code concerning radios is here quoted: "Antennas outside of buildings shall not cross over or under electric light or power wires of any circuit of more than six hundred (600) volts, or railway trolley or feeder wires, nor shall it be so located that a failure of either antenna or of the above mentioned electric light or power wires can result in a contact between the antenna and such electric light or power wires."

THE STATE CAPITAL

By The County Chairman

A graduated income tax with personal property exemptions to take the place of present day taxation inequalities, the elimination of frills and fads and the use of common sense in the carrying out of the state's educational program, and pronounced opposition to an intensive and costly road building program, such as is advocated by C. M. Babcock, commissioner of state highways, were prominent features of Gov. Preus' message to the legislature last week. His excellency's inaugural talk could hardly be styled a classic, but it was full of meat and fairly bristled with economic demands. That Commissioner Babcock had either proceeded on his own hook or failed to connect with his chief in his advocacy of a $20,000,000 bond issue in aid of an immediate and intensive road building program was evident, as His Excellency's message carried very little in support of the plan. The burden of his talk was economy and retrenchment and decided opposition to increased taxation or expenditures. That the Babcock plan of a big bond isue faces trouble is unquestioned. That the cities and every dealer in road supplies and material is behind the issue is evident, but there is much outspoken opposition in both houses.

Decided opposition to the state convention act of two years ago, repeal of the Brooks-Coleman street car control law, and the passage of a state bank guarantee bill were features of the Farmer-Labor fight for control in the late campaign, but the story now is that the leaders have had a change of heart, especially on the question of proposed election law changes. With the Farmer-Labor party at present a top-notcher in state political affairs it is said the leaders have come to the conclusion that the repeal of the convention law would be unwise. It is also reported that at a recent conference of the party heads block voting was favored and the return of the legislature to party lines advocated. As to the repeal of the Brooks-Coleman street car control law the belief was expressed that such would be harmful, while in the case of a state bank guarantee there was such a difference of opinion that no action was taken. State bankers are badly divided on the latter. The weak concerns want such a law, but the stronger state institutions are decidedly opposed to it.

A score or more of bills were dumped into the legislative hopper the first three days of the session and it is expected that the figure will reach the hundred mark this week. Rep. Frank Nimocks of Minneapolis as usual was accorded the honor of House File No. 1, a bill providing for certain jury exemptions, while in the senate James Dwyer, also of Minneapolis, came first with a bill relating to the powers and duties of the state board of health. Following came a number of bills, including the creation of the house interim committee on agriculture. These include a state bank guarantee act, the establishing of a system of rural credits as contemplated by an amendment to the state constitution, and a bill regulating the manufacture and sale of filled milk. The rural credits

With the railroads of the state reduced to nearly fifty per cent of normal efficiency the commercial truck has been a Godesnd to the farmers and small shippers of Minnesota and the threatened move to burden them with an increased tax because of road deterioration is not favored in some quarters. The hint is that the railroads are behind the move, but so far away they have not shown their hand in a legislative way. The car shortage of the past year cost the potato farmers of the Red River Valley millions of dollars, and what little salvage was realized was solely due to the commercial truck. That regulation might be beneficial is conceded but over-taxation would be suicidal. The truck is the admitted solution of the short haul problem and the sooner farmers and shippers of Minnesota realize it the better. Over 75 per cent of the milk produced in the state is now moved by trucks.

bill is one of the big things of the session and is due to be heavily debated. The bill proposes a commission for the carrying out of its provisions, but quite a few members in both houses are opposed to the creation of any new boards or commissions. They contend that present machinery of the state can do the work.

Again and for the fourth time Senator F. B. Kellogg announces and repeats that under no consideration is he considering or will he accept a cabinet or any other political position. He is through and he hopes that the good people of Minnesota will take his word for it. When his term expires Senator Kellogg says he intends to return to St. Paul to resume the practice of law.

To those concerned with the enactment of a law carrying out the principles of the rural credits amendment to the state constitution it might be of interest to know that the bill as framed is well within the demands of caution. Loans will be on the basis of about sixty per cent of valuation, interest will be not to exceed five and one-half per cent and the maximum loan will be about $15,000. Needed capital will be supplied through the medium of bonds.

My Christmas Vacation.

I had a pretty good time during my vacation. On Christmas day I was busy looking over the presents Santa Claus brought me. He was good to me this Christmas. In the afternoon we went visiting and had a fine time, but we nearly froze to death on the way. When we started for home it was pretty late. We had to work for a few days after that, we were out chopping wood and worked around outside. We also had to do the housework that was the hardest.

On New Year's eve we stayed up until 2 o'clock. We popped corn and made candy and many other things.

One night after Christmas we heard an awful noise coming down the road. My sister and I were the only ones in the house. We were kind of scared at first, but then we looked out of the window just in time to see some Christmas Fools coming into the yard. They started to jig around on the porch, so we went and opened the door. We were jure busys pulling masks off. We wouldn't have had to do this because we knew them all anyway. We got the mask off one of them when the boys came in the house. We had all kinds of fun that night.

Last Saturday night we went to a party south of our place. We left for home about half past 2.

On Sunday we were invited away to dinner, but we couldn't go as we had company. That was the best Christmas vacation I ever spent.

My Christmas Vacation.

Sunday we went to Uncle Jesse's place. We popped corn, ate apples and played games. On Christmas day we went to Uncle Bert's for a Christmas dinner. We enjoyed ourselves by playing dominoes and other games.

Tuesday, the day after Christmas, we had company, Klein and family, William Yonke and family, and Orlando Aga and family. We enjoyed ourselves by playing games. Some of the games were old maid, dominoes, Lotto and Tiddle Winks. We went out and played hide and seek.

Wednesday we went to Uncle Habner's. But when we came there they had gone away; so we had to go home. In the afternoon we ate candy and nuts. We played some of the games we received for Christmas.

Friday we went to town and visited Hoium's. After dinner we went out on a snow bank and slid down. Then we had lunch and went home.

Saturday we had company. Bessie Foster of Lockhart, Minn., and Florence Thorstad. Bessie, Marina and I went out for a skii ride. We enjoyed ourselves very much. We played games, ate candy and nuts.

Sunday, the day before New Year's, we went to Uncle Lester's. We played the phonograph and played games. On New Year's day we went to Uncle Habner's. They were home that day. We played the phonograph and ate candy. Tuesday we stayed home, ate nuts and candy and played games. On Wednesday we stayed home and worked. Thursday evening we were invited to Uncle William's for supper.

Some of the guests were Fred Rux and family and Uncle Habner and family. We enjoyed ourselves very much. We ate candy and nuts and played games and had a large supper. It was 12 o'clock before we got home.

Friday we stayed home and worked. Saturday evening we had a party at our place. The evening was spent in playing games. Some of the games were ten pins, Old Maid and rummy. A supper was served at 11 o'clock and a lunch at 1:30. The guests went to their homes at 3:30 o'clock.

Sunday Mr. Husby and family were over. I made the meals and washed the dishes. I enjoyed my vacation very much.

My Christmas Vacation.

The day after our program mother was ill and father went to town to buy Christmas things and left us children to battle for ourselves.

In the evening mother was well again and father came home from town with lots of things, but we didn't see a single thing until Christmas evening.

We all stayed at home on Christmas day looking over the presents we received. The rest of the week we were visiting, except Saturday.

One day the folks went to town and left us alone, but we had a good time. We cooked candy and played games. While we were playing our candy almost boiled away, only a little bit was left.

When Saturday came I was rested and felt like working, so we fixed up for New Year's. On New Year's eve we stayed up until 1 o'clock and ate candy and nuts, and also waited for Christmas Fools, but our luck was slim as no one came. New Year's day we spent playing dominoes, eating our candy and nuts. We received a large salmon fish from Seattle, Wash., but it wasn't a live one. During the rest of my vacation I had a very bad cold.

The last day we determined to have a good time, and we had it, too.

The Better Way to Health

Did you ever stop to consider the cost of doing without HEALTH?

We all admit the necessity of good health, but how many of us give the matter sufficient thought to realize the cost of poor health.

Frankly, we should be just as much concerned about keeping our bodies in perfect running order as we are about looking to the welfare of our automobiles. If we neglect them, they soon become big troubles, and then we begin to pay. Most of us have our cars looked over occasionally to prevent that very thing.

How many of us show the same consideration for our bodies? Do we care for the little troubles as they arise, or do we wait until they become serious? Strange, isn't it, that we seldom count the cost of neglected HEALTH?

We must absolutely get away from the idea that we cannot afford to care for our health. Let us rather be convinced that the cost of ill health is far more expensive than going to the Chiropractor to get well and keep well. The one incomparable gift you possess is your health. You cannot afford to do without it. Let us explain more fully why Chiropractic is the better way to heatth. Consultation is free.

Vol. 22. No. 46 THIEF RIVER FALLS, MINNESOTA, WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 31, 1923. $2 a Year in Advance

ACCUSED LIQUOR VENDORS ARE RELEASED BY JUDGE ON CASH BAIL

Historical Society

The [illegible] men, Chas. B. Bradley, Conrad Vinje, A. H. Erickson, Alfred Okstad, Ole Ystesund and Sidney Voldness, arrested last week by Federal officers who swooped down on Thief River Falls late Wednesday evening and spread a dragnet about certain places of business under suspicion of selling "moon," appeared before Judge William Watts at Crookston Monday and bail fixed. Bradley, Erickson and Vinje each furnished a cash bond of $1,000, and Ystesund, Okstad and Voldness, employed at the places raided, furnished bonds of $500 each.

A motley crowd of curiosity seekers appeared at the Great Northern depot Monday afternoon to witness the departure of the men under arrest, who had been in jail from Wednesday evening until placed in charge of a U. S. marshal Monday for conveyance to Crookston. Unshaven during the time of their incarceration at the county jail, the accused men put in rather a rough appearance with a several days' growth of whiskers on their faces. They appeared jovial enough, however and seemed confident that they would secure their release before Judge Watts. Among the crowd present at the railroad station was a scattering of women, apparent relatives of the accused.

Officials Surprise Populace.

The Federal men appeared suddenly in Thief River Falls, coming in on the evening train, and simultaneously went to work on the Erickson, Vinje and Bradley places. The first mentioned is said to have recently purchased the soft drink parlor owned by Bennie Vigen. At each of the places the officials found a goodly amount of moonshine, which was gathered by the officers and turned over to local authorities. At the Bradley place the liquor was found in a safe, which the authorities requested the proprietor to open. At the first command to open the "strong box" the proprietor is said to have claimed he did not know the combination and that it was not used by him. However, when the officers stated that unless it was opened they would use explosives, Bradley is said to have complied with the result that a quantity of "moon" was found.

When the officers approached the Vinje place, the proprietor is thought to have secured advance information of the impending visit of the raiders and was in the act of pouring the "moon" through a hole bored in the floor, into which he had placed a funnel. The officers arrived on the scene, however, before completion of the job and a quantity of it was secured. At the Erickson place the men gathered more of the hard stuff.

By this time several score of onlookers had gathered on the streets to view the performance. The line extended almost across LaBree avenue and, although the night was cold and freezing, the crowd stayed until after the officers had completed their work.

Alfred Okstad, one of the men arrested, was experiencing his first day on the job at the Erickson "soft drink" parlor and in view of this the sudden swoop of the Federal men made quick work of his job.

May Invoke Abatement Law.

It is understood by The Tribune that abatement proceedings will be started against owners of the buildings where the arrests were made in the event that the accused men are convicted. Contrary to the view held by many, proceedings may be instituted before a second conviction and it is said all three of the places visited can be closed for a period of one year.

Owing to the fact that the arrests were made by Federal officers, it is not known when the men will appear for trial, but it is thought that it will be some time early in the spring, depending oltogether on the time when a Federal judge can hear their cases.

Great Northern Freight Wrecks

Broken Rail Thought to Be Cause of Serious Tieup Tuesday Afternoon.

A Great Northern freight train, northbound, was badly wrecked Tuesday afternoon at a late hour when seven cars left the track and were badly smashed up, the cars piling up on one another and reducing a couple of them to splinters. The wreck occurred two miles this side of St. Hilaire on a level stretch of track. A broken rail apparently caused the bad spill.

It is unknown whether the rail was broken before the approach of the train or whether the steel caved in under the weight of the heavy locomotive. The engine and several cars passed over the broken rail when suddenly the train bulged in the center and seven cars left the track and crashed together.

The wreck was peculiar in that after the seven cars had piled up, a coupling broke and the remainder of the train passed the broken rail. Fortunately the rest of the train stayed on the track.

The train was traveling at a moderate rate of speed at the time and trainmen were at a loss to explain the cause of the broken rail. No one was injured.

A wrecking crew arrived on the scene shortly after the spill and cleared the right-of-way and at a late hour Tuesday trains were again running on schedule.

Garage Raided For Moonshine

Quart Bottle of Liquor Is Found Secreted in Office of Auto Company.

Alfred Rasmussen, proprietor of the Jefferson Cafe and who has an interest in the Northwestern Auto company garage (formerly known as the Sundahl garage), was arrested late Tuesday afternoon by Sheriff O. L. Ihle and Deputy L. O. Kongelf on a charge of having moonshine on the premises. The two officials were assisted in the arrest by Chief of Police Erickson.

One quart bottle of liquor was found in the office of the garage, according to the officers, and the moonshine confiscated.

Rasmussen appeared before Judge Tarrant in Municipal court last night and was bound over to the February term of the district court. The judge fixed bail at $500, which was furnished by the accused. As a result of his arrest yesterday, Rasmussen faces two counts at the next term of court, having been arrested several weeks ago when officers found liquor in the cafe operated by him.

According to Deputy Kongelf of the sheriff's force, who was in charge of the raid, the officials approached the garage and immediately went in search of evidence. They entered the office and soon found what they were looking for in the form of a quart bottle of "white mule" hidden away in a small box in one corner of the little room. Sheriff Ihle was in the rear of the premises and approached the office, accompanied by Rasmussen.

When confronted with the evidence uncovered by Kongelf, Rasmussen at first denied that he had knowledge of the fact that there was liquor on the premises.

In a statement to The Tribune yesterday, Deputy Kongelf stated that the sheriff's force is determined to rid Thief River Falls of the illicit liquor evil and declared that the officials intend to make raids upon every place under suspicion. Coming close upon a raid conducted last week by government men, the way of the transgressing moonshine peddler is commencing to look dark, indeed.

"We intend to make the going mighty tough for these fellows who persist in peddling their stuff in this community," said Deputy Kongelf, "and we're not going to rest until every last one of them gives up the traffic. The raid yesterday is a mere forerunner of what will follow unless conditions improve."

MRS. HERRON AWARDED $7,500 VERDICT AGAINST COLSAET BROS.

Colsaet Brothers Must Pay Widow of Wm. Herron Full Amount Under Workmen's Compensation Law.

Attorney H. O. Chommie received notice today from the State Industrial Commission that Mrs. August Herron, widow of Wm. Herron, who was accidentally killed on June 19, last year, in a fall from a wagon load of tile, had been awarded $7,500 under the Workmen's Compensation act.

Following the death of her husband, Mrs. Herron sued Colsaet Bros., sewer contractors, for the full amount allowed by law under the Workmen's Compensation act. The claim was resisted by the contractors and the Maryland Casualty Company on the ground that Herron was employed to haul tile by Alphonse Fontaine. At the hearing conducted on December 1 in this city by Chas. Allbright, referee for the Industrial Commission, much testimony was taken, and the referee in his findings holds that Mr. Herron was employed by Fontaine, who is held to be an employe of Colsaet Bros., thus establishing the claim of the widow to full protection under the compensation act.

The award of $7,500 will be paid Mrs. Herron in weekly installments, and in addition thereto she will receive $150 for funeral expenses. While an appeal may be taken, the facts in the case have been established, and it is unlikely that any change will be made in the verdict.

Mrs. Herron was represented by H. O. Chommie of this city, while the respondents were represented by A. Robt. French of Minneapolis.

DR. FROEHLICH AGAIN HEADS THIEF RIVER COMMERCIAL CLUB

President Douglas of Beet Sugar Company, Principal Speaker at Noon Luncheon Next Thursday.

Dr. H. W. Froehlich was honored by re-election as president of the Commercial Club at the annual election, which took place last Thursday. The doctor has so actively promoted the interests of the city during the past year that club members gave no heed to his protest that other dtuies would prevent him from again serving as head of the club, and he was given the unanimous vote of those present. W. W. Prichard, Jr., was elected vice president, and Albert Lonson was re-elected treasurer. Directors were chosen as fololws: Hans Anton, F. J. Stebbins, H. A. Brumund, H. W. Protzeller and Math Barzen. Mr. Anton refused to serve and the board filled the vacancy by electing Nels Christianson.

A large attendance is requested at all meetings as matters of extreme importance will come up for consideration. Especially is it important that business men get out next Thursday when Mr. Dougla, of the Beet Sugar company, will be the principal speaker.

CROWDED OUT

Owing to the large amount of legal matter in this issue, a number of items of local interest were necessarily crowded out, among them being the reports from the rural schools, which will appear next week.

1,500 ACRES OF SUGAR BEETS OVERSUBSCRIBED AT MEETING

If anyone entertained the idea that Thief River Falls and adjacent territory was lacking in enthusiasm over the prospect of securing an allotment of 1,500 acres for sugar beets this season, such notion must have been dispelled when representatives from twenty-one towns mingled with four hundred citizens and farmers of Thief River Falls, and placed the sugar beet question on a solid foundation by oversubscribing the allotted acreage.

Mayor Bratrud opened the meeting promptly at 8:30, stating briefly what had been accomplished by the local committee consisting of himself, H. W. Protzeller and Math Barzen. He then introduced Mr. Protzeller, who outlined the work of the committee in securing the 1,500 acres allotted by the sugar company. The company already has applications for 100,000 acres, but decided to try this territory out on account of the high sugar content of the beets raised here.

One of the main objects in securing a large acreage for this territory, said Mr. Protzeller, is to convince the officials of the Minnesota Sugar Beet Company of the advisability of locating a factory in Thief River Falls. The initial cost of a factory is $1,500,000. Its annual expenditure for beets and hired help is approximately $2,000,000. Such a factory would employ 250 men for 100 days during the rush season, besides employing a force of 25 factory men during the entire year. Forty field men are employed for nine months. This is exclusive of the large amount of labor employed in the cultivation of the beets. Mr. Protzeller announced that Manager Douglas, of the sugar beet company, would be in Thief River Falls on Thursday, February 8, to look over the local field.

Math Barzen next addressed the meeting as a practical sugar beet raiser, and he gave an excellent talk covering his experience of several years, his opinion being that the beets can be profitably raised in this territory. The farmers, especially, gave close attention to the remarks of Mr. Barzen and kept him busy answering questions for some time.

County Agent McCann, who told the meeting that he had worked for three years in a sugar factory at Chippewa Falls, Wisconsin, was the next speaker, and he dwelt largely upon soil conditions, the planting and cultivation of beets. The farmers present showed their interest by firing a long list of questions at Mr. McCann, who came through the ordeal with flying colors. Mr. McCann laid particular stress upon one point, the fact that sugar beets cannot be successfully raised upon peat land, the tonnage being ample but the sugar content of the beets entirely inadequate.

During the discussion it developed that beets raised last year on the Flattum farm two miles east of this city, broke the world's record for high sugar content, the average being above 19 per cent, and a sample testing as high as 22 per cent.

Attorney Peterson of Lancaster pledged support to the movement from his section. Similar sentiments were expressed by M. W. Serkland of Trail, R. J. Lund of Holt, S. O. Olson of Bronson, G. I. Brandt of Greenbush, and many others.

An organization was perfected as follows:

President—H. W. Protzeller, Thief River Falls; vice president, Math Barzen, Thief River Falls; secretary, J. J. McCann, Thief River Falls.

Directors—Newfolden, H. E. Olgaard; Strandquist, J. J. Oistad; Halma, O. P. Becken; Bronson, S. O. Olson; Lancaster, Adolph Swanson; Plummer, H. J. Enderle; Erskine, G. F. Walker; Mahnomen, F. L. Kennetz; Middle River, John Nordlum; Trail, A. A. Dahl; Waubun, O. W. Knauf; Holt, R. J. Lund; Hazel, Ed. Karwand.

Thos. H. Smith of Mavie headed the largest out-of-town delegation, namely 35 farmers from his territory, although other towns were well represented. It was the best meeting held in this city in many a day, and augurs well for the success of the culture of sugar beets in this territory.

A splendid program of addresses and music has been arranged and refreshments will be served. Following is the program:

A committee, in charge of Mrs. E. L. Rolland, will look after the refreshments and all members and their friends are urged to be present. "The success of this organization depends a good deal on the attendance of its members," says the committee.

Lloyd Alnes Injured in Serious Runaway Accident

Local Young Man Has Ribs Broken When Frightened Horses Gallop Down the Street.

Lloyd Alnes received severe injuries in a runaway accident last Saturday when a team of horses he was to drive in the funeral of Anton Myrland, held last Saturday, ran away and dashed down Main avenue. The horses, owned by Mrs. A. B. Remmem, were standing in front of the Masonic temple, when suddenly they started on a wild rampage down Main avenue with Alnes aboard.

Alnes was in the rig when the team started and attempted to hold them back, but their speed increased with each block. As the horses neared the Great Northern depot, a train startled them and caused them to swerve suddenly toward the offices of the Kiewel Products company and Alnes was thrown heavily to the ground and rolled up against a telephone pole, with the result that he received several cuts about the face and head and two ribs broken. He was taken to the Swedenburg & Bowers Hospital Clinic, where his condition was at first thought serious. He was taken to his home Tuesday morning and it is expected that he will recover from his injuries.

BILLS SHOULD BE KILLED

Two bills now pending in the legislature affecting the Red Lake project should be killed without further ado. The assessments of the protesting farmers are not changed in the least, and while it appears on the surface that an attempt is being made to so amend existing laws as to place a portion of the burden upon the power companies, yet the language is so complicated that even its author is puzzled as to its real meaning. Just why Senator Cliff, of Ortonville, and others who have no direct interest in this project, should be so insistent in putting it over is beyond our power to comprehend. The Tribune would therefore advise the objecting farmers to deluge the drainage committees of the House and Senate with letters of protest. Letters addressed to Senator Hansen and Representative Waldal, State Capitol, St. Paul, will have the desired effect. The best service both these gentlemen can render to their cnostituents is to attend to the killing of both bills.

Bowlers Banquet at Brumund Hotel

Various Clubs Draft Players From Strong Teams for Second Half's Play.

Thief River Falls bowlers, members of the City Bowling League, last Saturday night banqueted at the Brumund hotel, at which time, in addition to a splendid table set by the hotel management, the pinmen responded with stories or a talk when called on by Charlie Van, toastmaster of the evening.

Pete Morse, promulgator of the league, made a few brief remarks concerning rules and regulations that should in future govern the game and suggested proposals that would assure the various clubs composing the league of better strength, it being the opinion among several that the "good" men were packed on the roll of certain clubs. In order to assure a better balance during the latter half of the season, which is to start this week, the suggested changes were recommended.

The banquet Saturday came as a climax to the end of the first half of the season, which the Co-Operative Creamery men won after a spirited race. The start of the season generally found the team at the bottom of the heap, but by close appplication and efficient leadership they crawled steadily to the top—and copped the flag.

Last week the Thief River Grocery took three straight from the Soo Line, making a tie for first place, which was rolled off Thursday evening, when the Creamery bowlers were declared the winners. The championship games between these two teams were hard-fought, practically the whole league membership being present to witness the rolling. Following is the final result:

FUNDS ASKED FOR DOWLING HOME

Drive to Be Completed by February 17, According to Present Plans of Promoters.

"The fund of $100,000 to build and equip the Michael J. Dowling Industrial School must be raised by popular subscription by February 17," said E. K. Whiting, vice chairman of the committee in charge.

Organization of the entire state by counties is in progress, letters appointing leading men and women of the state as county chairmen having gone out last week. The response, according to Mr. Whiting, has been most gratifying and is indicative that the effort will be carried through to a successful conclusion.

"It has been definitely determined by the committee," said Mr. Whiting, "that the school will be located adjoining the State Hospital for Crippled Children at Phalen Park, St. Paul. It will provide vocational training and help these children to lead useful, self-respecting lives. The location," Mr. Whiting continued, "is perfect, for the state already owns 23 acres beautifully wooded and providing an ideal setting for the children."

"If every citizen of Minnesota could go through the hospital and see the pressing need for this school, the fund would be completed over night," Mr. Whiting said. "However, aside from the sentimental interest we all feel for crippled children the carrying through of this project presents a financial angle of almost equal importance. In some instances, the hospital is able to cure a deformity so that a child may live a normal existence. However, in the great majority of instances the child is incapable of self-support without special training. The committee believes that it is good business for the State of Minnesota to set these children on the road to independence by teaching them a trade or occupation by which they can support themselves."

"It is most fitting,' said Mr. Whiting, "that this school should bear the name of Michael J. Dowling, Minnesota's 'gamest man.' Without hands or feet, an orphan, a county charge, lacking even a grammar school education, Mr. Dowling recognized that his sole asset was his mind. The start of his career dates back to two terms at Carleton College where he learned how to study. It is hard to conceive of anyone being more badly crippled physically than was Mr. Dowling. Mentally he was all right. He forgot his liabilities and developed his sole asset. This school will do for the crippled children of Minnesota what was done for Mr. Dowling."

The school will be under the supervision of the State Board of Control. It is necessary that legislative action be had during the present session that will enable the Board of Control to include the school in its budget during the coming two year period. For that reason it is most urgent that the fund be completed by February 17 and the building assured in order that its maintenance may be properly arranged.

THE FIRST NORSEMEN.

Thirty Scandinavian missionaries reached America in the 14th century, 130 years before the date of Columbus' officially recognized discovery, and were presumably massacred by Minnesota Indians, according to Professor H. R. Holand, a graduate of Wisconsin university, who spoke here last Friday evening at the school auditorium on the "Runestone."

This stone, Professor Holand said, was found about 24 years ago near Kensington, Minn. It bore an inscription in Runic and this has been translated by Mr. Holand. It shows, he says, that in 1362 the missionary band pushed into the interior of America as far as Kensington and where this stone was left by them telling of the massacre of 10 of their number by the Indians. After leaving Kensington, the other members of the party were apparently also killed by the Indians. Mr. Holand exhibited a number of weapons found during recent years in this territory, which he claims were of the type used during the 14th century and which he said had been carried by this early missionary party. They included a sword, a bill hook, a broadax, a hatchet, a fire steel and a brass ornament. The speaker stated his conclusions are concurred in by the Minnesota Historical society.—Hitterdal Standard.

WHAT'S THE ANSWER?

The Baptist church at Owatonna recently printed the following story to arouse interest in one of its Bible lessons: Charley met his friend James upon the street and told him that he had been fishing. "How many fish did you catch?" asked James.

Charley replied: "If to the number of the books of the Old Testament you add the number of books in the New Testament; multiply that by the number of the apostles that were present at the transfiguration; divide by the number of books written by Luke; subtract the number of times the Israelites marched around Jericho; multiply by the number of pieces of silver Judas received for betraying Christ; divide by the number of spies Moses sent into Canaan; add the number of letters in the name of the city in which a man climbed up a tree to see Christ; divide by the number of apostles that were called the 'sons of thunder,' the answer will be the number of fish I caught."

DIFFERTNT NOW.

On a beach one summer day a half dozen girls in red one-piece bathing suits were playing ball. There were some cows in a nearby meadow, and after a bit the farm hand who was in charge of them went up to his boss and complained: "Say, boss, them gals is a scarin' my cows."

"Ah, Jethro," said the old farmer with a sigh, "times is changed since I was young. In them days it was the cows wot scared the gals."

But 14 Creameries in Whole Section Not Now Members of the State Body.

Co-operative marketing is getting "dollars and cents" results for dairymen of the Red River valley. Every pound of butterfat delivered by farmers of the section to creameries affiliated with the Minnesota Co-operative Creameries association brought a half cent more than would have been obtained had not the state association been in the field. This statement is based on a report just compiled by N. C. Lindberg, creamery fieldman for District No. 14.

The report shows that the net savings to creameries of the section, by reason of combining shipments to obtain carload rates to eastern markets, was $21,350. The 182 cars shipped from April 1 to December 31 contained 4,492,609 pounds of butter. The net cost of the state association to local creameries was three-eighths of a cent a pound; less than the savings on the single item of lower freight rates. In addition, each creamery received the benefits of the association's eastern sales agency and the continuous service of Mr. Lindberg, who is working to improve the quality of butter produced in the member creameries and to put the farmers' companies in position to market a uniform product.

In District No. 14, composed of Polk, Norman, Clearwater, Clay, Mahnomen, Red Lake, Pennington, Marshall, Kittson and Roseau counties, there are 56 co-operative creameries. Of these all but 14 are affiliated with the state association. At the recent district meeting held at Thief River Falls, 38 member and four non-member creameries were represented. E. O. Melsness of Erskine was named as chairman and state director.

GOOD ROADS PROVED PAYING INVESTMENT

Minnesota Already Collecting More From Tourists Than It Raises for All Highway Purposes.

Automobile tourists left more than $30,000,000 of new money in Minnesota last year, according to conservative estimates given in a highway bulletin. Although Minnesota has only just begun to develop its attractions for its tourists, it is added, automobile tourists in the state last season spent nearly $5 for every dollar paid by motor vehicle owners here for better highways, and $4,000,000 more than the aggregate raised in the state each year for all road work.

"It must be realized that it was our improved state trunk routes or so-called Babcock highways that made it possible for these people to visit us," said a good road advocate, "and if we are to continue to attract these people to Minnesota our road building program must be continued so that our highway system will stand on a par with the interstate highways leading into the state."

Here are the bulletin figures:

State highway traffic census takers counted a daily average of 15,568 passenger automobiles with licenses of other states, and it is estimated that they carried 50,000 visitors. Assuming that 30,000 were entertained at homes or camped out, it would mean $60,000 at $2 a day, and that the remaining 20,000 stayed at hotels at $5 a day for lodging and meals, bringing $100,000, would make a total of $160,000 a day for subsistence. Their miscellaneous expenditures at $1 a day would mean $50,000 more. The average tourist travels 150 miles a day, consuming 10 gallons of 24-cent gasoline and a quart of 30-cent oil and the tourist cars took $42,033 a day of fuel and lubricant.

So if the given averages are applied for only three months—a 120 day season—there was $30,240,000 of money left in Minnesota last summer by the highway tourist.

FIRST TO PREACH TEMPERANCE HERE

B. B. Haugan Says He Was Target of Many Missiles Hurled at Him Because of Extreme Views.

B. B. Haugan, who will deliver a Norwegian lecture at the Sons of Norway hall on Sunday, Feb. 11, claims the distinction of being the first man to deliver a temperance lecture in Thief River Falls, and he states that the lecture must have been a good one, for when he subsequently appeared on the street he became the object of many missiles such as chunks of hard coal which were hurled in his direction.

Mr. Haugan was a resident of Fergus Falls at the time and had a large following throughout the northwest owing to his extreme views upon the subject of temperance. He is a forceful and eloquent speaker and has engaged in verbal combat with many of the prominent men of Minnesota who occupied the stage of action in those turbulent days. He is now a resident of Redfield, South Dakota, and is occupied in writing songs and Norwegian literature for a publication which is printed in Chicago.

His lecture in Thief River Falls will cover the subject of traditions and history of the Norwegian people, and his intimate knowledge of and association with the leaders of the past generation should well qualify him to speak interestingly on such things.

Federal Officers Raid Bemidji Moonshiners

Bemidji Sentinel: Several face federal liquor charges as the result of raids conducted here Tuesday night by government men. The places raided were the Lakeshore hotel of which Patrick Stapleton is the proprietor. A couple of employes were taken into custody by the prohibition men at this place. The soft drink parlor operated by Garry Brennan on Minnesota avenue was also raided. Brennan is still at liberty. Mike Bertram, at the old Grand Gagnon soft drink place, is accused of violating the prohibition law. It is expected that the hearings will be held before United States commissioner H. A. Simons the latter part of the week.

Mr. and Mrs. E. Jones of Spokane, Wash., arrived Sunday evening from Winnipeg, where they have been visiting friends and relatives the past month, to spend several days here.

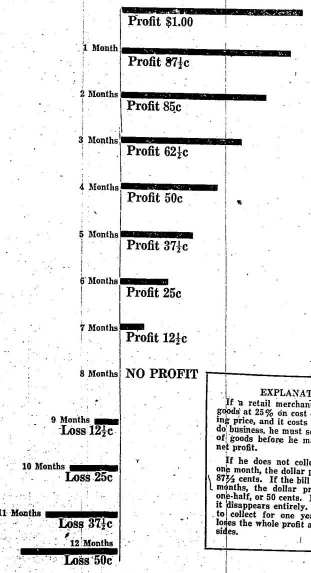
What Happens to the Retail Merchants' Profit on Slow Pay Accounts



EXPLANATION.

If a retail merchant marks up his goods at 25% on cost or 20% on selling price, and it costs him 16 2-3% to do business, he must sell $25.00 worth of goods before he makes one dollar net profit.

If he does not collect the bill for one month, the dollar profit shrinks to 87½ cents. If the bill stands for four months, the dollar profit shrinks to one-half, or 50 cents. In eight months it disappears entirely. Should he fail to collect for one year, he actually loses the whole profit and 50 cents besides.

BONDS WILL HASTEN ROAD IMPROVEMENTS

Every Locality in State Will Benefit and No Tax Increase Will Result, Says Executive.

Thief River Falls and vicinity have much at stake in the highway bond proposals which will mean more good roads for the present, cut waste of money for highway upkeep and lower highway transportation and travel costs, all without a cent of increase in taxes, according to Charles M. Babcock, state highway commissioner.

The bond plan, it is conceded, will bring in the next two years highway improvements, many of which otherwise must wait five and 10 years and even longer. Its supporters now are predicting favorable action by the Legislature and further that after results are apparent on trunk highways all over the state in the fall of 1924, the legislator who has voted against the proposals will have all the excuses to make.

Commissioner Babcock makes plain that the bond plan merely opens a fairer and better way to use the automobile taxes already coming in and that it is not a matter of taxes.

"Motor vehicle taxes being collected now will have to be paid each year and used on the state trunk highways under the Minnesota constitution, which even the legislature cannot change or modify," he said. "Although they are slightly less than under the old personal property tax law, the highway department is not asking or planning for any increase in the agreed tax of $18 on the average automobile. It has been carefully figured out that the money at the rate it is now coming in will pay the principal and interest on all bonds and leave sufficient each year to take care of other demands.

"The bond proposal is to put to the best and fairest use a given amount of money—the funds which will come from automobile taxes during the next 20 years," continued the commissioner.

"Under the present plan, as has been explained, the car owners of today are paying for past, present and future road improvements and not getting their fair returns for their tax dollars. More than $2,500,000 of the 1922 auto tax funds were used for permanent work—grading and so forth—which will serve for many years to come. If a like amount is used in each succeeding year, the 1923 taxpayer will profit by the use of $5,000,000 and the 1932 taxpayer by $25,000,000 of these permanent highway betterments, although the latter pay no higher automobile taxes than the owner of last year.

"The proposed bond plan will level the returns. Anticipating the taxes to be paid each year, it will enable the state to spread the entire costs with interest on bonds over the term, to apportion to each year its fair share of the whole expense and give the taxpayers of the present and the near future more just treatment. The only possible extra charge is that of interest, which can be justified. It will be paid from the general aggregate and that is only fair. Every investment must earn its interest and the use of the projected highway improvements will earn that many times over."

Members of the Legislature are said to be putting the highway bonds in a class by themselves because the plan does not call for any annual tax levy, especially to meet the interest from year to year. This difference brings out more strongly that the sinking fund as submitted by the highway commissioner provides for interest payments as they fall due and retirement of the bonds as they mature.

Following explanations by Mr. Babcock, the bond proposals are receiving endorsements from many sources, state organizations, county boards of commissioners, commercial clubs and other civic bodies. Good roads advocates in many localities are beginning active work to secure support for the plan and it is steadily gaining strength

One reason why so many automobile accidents occur is because the steam cars cannot detour when an auto attempts to take the railroad track instead of the highway.—Stillwater Gazette.

CIGARETTE

A conference of men interested in farm marketing will be held in connection with the Red River Valley Winter Shows on Thursday, Feb. 8, according to M. L. Warner, Warren, who will preside and have general charge of the meetings on that day. T. H. Hagen, Minneapolis, Minnesota manager for the United States Grain Growers' corporation; J. S. Montgomery, manager of the Central Farmers' Co-operative Live Stock Company, South St. Paul; A. J. McGuire, manager of the Minnesota Co-operative Creamery selling agency, and A. H. Dunton, manager of the Minnesota Potato Exchange, will address this conference. H. J. Hughes, of the state marketing bureau, will speak on transportation costs as a factor in farm marketing. Much interest has been manfested in an address given by H. N. Owen at the Tri-State Farmers' meetings at Fargo last week, on the subject of Controlled Production. Mr. Warner has secured Mr. Owen's consent to be present at this meeting of Red River Valley farmers to be held Feb. 8. It is expected that a large number of the farmers' co-operative marketing associations will send representatives to this conference.

GOOD ROAD SENSE.

In considering expenditures for roads at the present time we must remember that much of the work now being done is of a permanent nature. The grades that are now being built for our state aid trunk highway roads are such that they should be adequate for decades to come. On most of them the road bed will last for centuries and the only future work to be done on them will be surfacing and small repairs. Grading is construction work which will benefit many generations to come. It seems therefore only fair and reasonable that the future should be called upon to pay in part permanent work which we are now doing. This is the thought underlying the issuance of bonds.—Northfield Independent.

UNPRETENTIOUS.

A certain painter is confined in an asylum. To persons who visit him, he says:

"Look at this; it is my latest masterpiece."

They look and see nothing but an expanse of bare canvas. They ask:

"What does that represent?"

"That? Why, that represents the passage of the Israelites through the Red sea."

"Beg pardon, but where is the sea?"

"It has been driven back."

"And where are the Israelites?"

"They have crossed over."

These are the words of James Baxter, N. J.: "Ever since I tried RAT-SNAP I have always kept it in the house. Never fails. Used about $3.00 worth of RAT-SNAP a year and figure it saves me $300 in chicks, eggs and feed. RAT-SNAP is convenient, just break up cake, no mixing, with other food." Three sizes, 35c, 65c, $1.25. There will be no more trapping of muskrats in the fall, and there will be no more winter trapping or killing of the other fur-bearing animals in Minnesota if the other legislators agree with the sub-committee of the house committee on game and fish, which met Thursday with Carlos Avery, state game and fish commissioner. The sub-committee members and Mr. Avery agreed to prohibit absolutely the trapping of muskrats in the fall and to permit them to be taken for only two months in the spring. Mr. Avery declared that under the present system which allows the rats to be trapped in the fall the rats are not only being destroyed, but the public is being furnished with a grade of fur that is absolutely worthless. For other fur-bearing animals, worlves excepted, the open season would be from Nov 15 to Jan. 15.

GET BUSY, GENTLEMEN.

We wish to warn the Legislature not to allow any petty difference over the methods to be pursued in its administration to interfere with the early passage of a rural credits law as contemplated when the amendment was so overwhelmingly passed last fall. The people of the state are not much concerned whether the credits commission be composed of a board or one man, though we believe it to be the part of wisdom in this instance to create a separate commission.

The size of the undertaking is such as to call for the undivided time of those placed in charge, and to place it in the hands of any of the present state officials is not to be thought of, as that would mean procrastination and vexatious delays in administration which would tend to throw the whole law into disfavor—a condition very much to the liking of the big loan companies.

The rural credits bill is sufficiently important to call for the undivided attention of the law-makers—in fact it is the one matter of great importance before them—and unless they get busy pretty soon and show signs of being alive to the situation, they are liable to hear from home in a voice which will bear the tone of command.

DEATH!

Only a few Sundays back, a Redwood Falls pastor gave a most wonderful talk on the subject of Death. His talk took from this dread all of its dreadfulness, all of the fear and horror and sadness, and left only the beautiful mystery, the promise, the surety and the sorrow which is less a sorrow than a sweet remembrance. The other day in reading the column of The Periscope Man of the Duluth Herald, we came across a simple bit of philosophy by "Uncle Gus," the simple, homely words and the simple, honest thought being a layman's clincher to a part of the pastor's message. At the risk of running up against the copyright laws, we are reprinting Uncle Gus' few words on the subject:

> "The' was a drummer in here a while ago," said Uncle Gus, as he leaned forward to light a broom straw on the red belly of the stove, "tellin' me about a friend o' his that had killed hisself. We got to talkin' about dyin' an' it kind o' tickled me the way we couldn't agree, him bein' young an' spry an' me old an' most wo' out.
> "Nature fixes things about right. When a feller is in his prime, she makes him hate death, so's he'll keep out o' danger an' take care of his health. If she didn't do it, like as not lots o' young folks would git kind o' discouraged an' kill themselves.
> "It was that-a-way when I was a young feller. Didn't even like to talk 'bout dyin'. It gives me the creeps. I wanted to keep on livin' fo'ever.
> "But now I'm gettin' old; death don't scare me none. Nature has done fixed my mind so's I'll be 'bout ready. I contemplate passin' out as a kind o' easy an' placid way o' goin' to rest. I reckon as our bodies gits weaker, the will to live gits weaker.
> "Nature is kind to folks, if they only knowed it. She don't require nothin' of 'em that she don't give 'em the strength to do."—Redwood Falls Gazette.

CHEAP LAND.

Freeborn county lands are cheaper, considering location, quality and climate, than any land in the Middle West.—Albert Lea Enterprise. Easy, there brother! Pennington county enters strenuous objection to the above statement. Land here will produce anything which can be grown in Freeborn county, besides being ideal for clover and alfalfa, and can be purchased for a third of the cost of land farther south. This, gentlemen, is the garden spot of the U. S. A. for the homeseeker who is looking for profit from his investment.

One of the worst cases of downright cussedness to come under our notice in a long time occurred last week near Albert Lea, when parties killed and carried away a pure-bred Duroc Jersey sow from one of the well-known breeding farms of that section. The thieves drove into the pig yard and killed the sow, mother of several prize-winners, then elevating her carcass into the wagon with rope and tackle. A reward of $100 is being offered for information leading to detection of the thieves.

Ottertail—M. C. Kroneman, Holsteins and Polands.

J. B. Irwin of Minneapolis has consigned 11 head to the Holstein sale. These Holsteins will also be in the show.

From Monday morning to Friday evening the program is one series of interesting, instructive and entertaining events. Space will not permit to mention in detail the week's program. Wednesday is livestock day. The judging Monday and Tuesday will hold the keen attention of those interested in that part of the show. On Wednesday more serious consideration will be given to a few of the immediate problems connected with livestock production. Thursday and Friday afternoon will be given over to livestock sales. Holstein sale on Thursday, February 8, and the Shorthorn sale Friday, February 9.

It has been some time since as good a selection of Holsteins has been offered at the winter sale. In this sale will be a fine individual cow with a 34.49 pound record. This cow was born March 21, 1918, and bred September 22 to a 1,100-pound bull. Another cow calved December 11, 1917, has a junior 3-year-old record of 23.53 lbs. butter from 546.8 lbs. milk. This cow is bred to freshen the last of March. Calved January 24, 1922, a beautiful show heifer light in color and splendidly grown; her dam has a 25.04 lb. record. A daughter of Dutchland Aaggie Tid's Prince 2nd (148528) the grand champion sire at the 1922 National Dairy show. This cow was bred May 13. Many other splendid A R O cows and heifers will be sold in this great sale; such as a yearling heifer from a 23.6 lb. dam and a 22.5 lb. cow calved January 6, 1918, due to freshen February 20 to the service of a son of 41st.

Look at the sales advertisement and note the list of Shorthorn consignors and one will be convinced that the sale February 9 is offering a real opportunity for foundation females or a herd sire of this excellent breed.

The bred sow and gilt sale of the Winter Shows has always been a good place to get the best blood lines offered in the breed preferred. A glance at the list of consignors given in the advertisement for the swine sale is enough to insure a high quality sale of Polands, Chesters and Durocs.

Your name sent to O. M. Kiser, at Crookston, sales manager, will bring you the desired catalogue. A visit to the livestock show will convince one that the 1923 show is equal to those of the past and that the stock offered in the sale is equal to any in the show.

A convicted bootlegger was denied citizenship papers in United States court recently by Judge Morris. "Bad moral character," was the dry comment of the judge. Who willl deny that the judge is 100 per cent right?

Judge Miller of North Dakota let several moonshiners off with a fine at a recent term of court. It would seem, therefore, that those who opposed him knew what they were talking about.

EDITORS STAND FOR STATE DEVELOPEMENT

Northern Minnesota Association Passes Strong Resolutions.

The Northern Minnesota Editorial Association in annual session at Red Lake Falls, January 25 and 26, passed strong resolutions favoring the retention of the State Immigration Commission to aid in Northern Minnesota Development. The editors also went on record as favoring the Babcock road plan of bonding for additional highway work. The resolutions adopted were as follows:

WHEREAS, the development, prosperity and progress of Northern Minnesota are of paramount importance to the members of the Northern Minnesota Editorial Association in convention assembled, we hereby pledge ourselves to greater efforts during the coming year towards the advancement of this rapidly growing section of the great state of Minnesota.

WHEREAS, there appears to be a concerted effort to either abolish entirely the Department of Immigration or by consolidation render it ineffective and valueless and, WHEREAS, in the opinion of this association this department has done a most valuable work for the State in conducting an honest advertising campaign setting forth the resources of the state and in bringing to the state a surprisingly large number of settlers and, WHEREAS, only harm to the undeveloped portions of this state can result from the abolishment or curtailment of this department.

BE IT RESOLVED, that we urge the legislature now in session to assist rather than hamper the work of the Department of Immigration and that this department be allowed to retain its past standing with such financial assistance as is bi-annually required through appropriations.

WHEREAS, this association has since the inception of the Babcock Road plan been one of its consistent supporters and, WHEREAS, we can see only good results from the proposed plan of issuing bonds so as to complete as rapidly as possible the necessary road work in this state.

BE IT RESOLVED, that we commend the idea of a ten million dollar bond issue as suggested for the purpose of pushing the development of roads to a successful completion.

WHEREAS, Northern Minnesota is rapidly becoming a mecca for tourists and, WHEREAS, there are many beautiful spots that should be the property of the public and thus be preserved for posterity.

BE IT RESOLVED, that we endorse the proposed state park system as recently outlined by State Auditor Chase in his report to the legislature. And in this connection this association again affirms its belief in the work that is being done by the Ten Thousand Lakes Association and urges a continuation by the legislature of the appropriation that makes its functioning possible.

WHEREAS, Dairying is of vital importance to Northern Minnesota and, WHEREAS, the National Dairy Show which for two years has been staged in this state is to meet this year in an eastern city.

BE IT RESOLVED, that we commend the plan of the Board of Governors of the State Fair to hold a Northwest Dairy Exposition in connection with the 1923 Fair.

WHEREAS, the people of the state have by their vote approved a Rural Credits Plan.

BE IT RESOLVED, that we urge the legislature to enact at its present session a law covering the operation of the plan that will be sufficiently flexible so as to be of real value to the farmers of this section of the state who are anxious to proceed with the development of their holdings.

WHEREAS, this convention sincerely believes that the publication of the personal property tax list under law now in force has been of material assistance in exposing the tax dodger and has resulted in increasing the returns to the several municipalities.

BE IT RESOLVED, that we strenuously oppose the effort that is being made to repeal the law and that the legislature be asked to leave it in its present form. This association further endorses the recently organized Association of Country Newspapers, Incorporated, formed for the purpose of co-operatively securing foreign advertising.

To Red Lake Falls, her hospitable citizens, her commercial club and the management of the Lincoln Hotel this Association expresses keen appreciation of the courtesies that have made this convention one of the most pleasant in the history of the organization. We especially present our thanks to those progressive and enterprising publishers of the Gazette, Messrs. Christie & Cutten for their untiring efforts in preparing for the convention just held.

"RECKLESS MISREPRESENTATIONS" CHARGED TO SENATOR BROOKHART FOR RECENT SPEECH IN U.S. SENATE

Chicago, Jan. 14—Samuel M. Felton, president of the Chicago Great Western Railway, and chairman of the Western Railway Presidents' Committee on Public Relations, today sent an open letter to United States Senator Smith W. Brookhart of Iowa, denouncing as "reckless misrepresentation" many assertions regarding railway matters made by Senator Brookhart in a recent speech in the Senate. Mr. Felton characterized as "base and unsupported calumnies" charges made by Senator Brookhart that railway officers did not loyally serve the government during the war. He declared that the policy of regulation of railways advocated by Mr. Brookhart would result in unconstitutional confiscation of a large part of the value of the railways, and referring to Mr. Brookhart's advocacy of government ownership and endorsement by the Socialists of Iowa for senator indicated that probably Mr. Brookhart advocated this policy "because you believe that confiscation of a large part of the value of the railways would be the best way to begin introducing a socialistic regime in the United States."

Mr. Felton's letter to Senator Brookhart in full is as follows:

"Sir: I have read carefully your first speech as a member of the United States Senate which was made on December 18. Your elevation to this high office apparently has not given you any more sense of responsibility for what you say than you have shown in the political addresses you have made recentlly in Iowa. It is doubtful if any man holding a high public office ever made, in an equal time, more baseless and reckless misstatements than you made regarding railway matters in this speech.

"An illustration of the way in which you make statements that have no basis in fact, is afforded by your assertion that, largely owing to inability to pay the freight rates, the apple growers of the state of Washington will this year be forced to dump 10,000 carloads of apples into the Columbia river. A telegram from the Wenatchee Valley Association, composed of the growers in the apple district of Washington, says that your statement "is not true," and adds "The district has already shipped about 8,000 cars, and there remain about 5,500 cars. No question but that balance of them will be shipped, especially the late hard varieties. Midwinter varieties are suffering on account of inability to move owing to lack of equipment, and it may be possible that a very small percentage will not move, but this is hardly possible.'

"As the telegram shows, the shipment of apples has been interfered with by shortage of transportation, not by freight rates. It is unfortunately true that there has been a shortage of transportation for some months, and that the farmers and business interests of the country have suffered heavy losses because of it. This shortage of transportation is due mainly to the policy of restrictive regulation which has been followed for years, and nothing could be better adapted to protract and increase it than the adoption of the policy of confiscating a large part of the value of the railroads which you advocate.

"As has been your custom in speeches you have delivered in Iowa, you made numerous statements upon the subject of railroad valuation which were grossly incorrect and misleading. You said: 'The valuation of nineteen billion dollars, in round numbers, as the basis of rates is unjust. It was made under the rules set forth in this law (Transportation Act..)' After having alluded to an estimate that the market value of all railroad securities was only twelve billion dollars, you added: 'This means all the stocks and all the bonds representing the entire value of all the railroads in all the United States could be bought on the market for seven billion dollars less than the valuation fixed by this law.'

"The Transportation Act said, with reference to valuation, that the Interstate Commerce Commission should determine the aggregate value of the railways, and that in doing so it 'may utilize the results of its investigation under Section 19-A of this act insofar as it deemed by it advisable.' What is 'Section 19-A.?' It is that part of the Interstate Commerce Act passed in 1913 requiring the Commission to make a valuation of the railways, and the author of which was Senator R. M. LaFollette of Wisconsin; and Commissioner H. C. Hall of the Interstate Commerce Commission on January 5, 1922, presented to the Senate Committee on Interstate Commerce a memorandum showing the valuation was made under the rules and based on the data prescribed by the LaFollette law of 1913, and not under what you call the rules of the Transportation Act.

"You said in your speech: 'This is the first time that watered valuation has ever been legalized.' Commissioner Hall's memorandum showed that the Commission gave no consideration whatever to bonds and stocks and that therefore not a dollar of what you call 'watered valuation' was included.

"You advocated legislation 'providing for a valuation based upon the market prices of railway securities. The market prices of railway securities were at the lowest point ever reached in 1920 because as a result of government operation the net return actually earned in the three years ending with 1920 was only 1.7 per cent, as compared with 5.2 per cent in the three years before.

"Do you seriously claim that the government should so manage the railways as to cause an enormous depreciation in the value of their securities, as it, in fact, did, and should then base a valuation of them upon this depreciated value? As a lawyer you know that such action by the government would involve wholesale and unconstitutional confiscation of property. Why do you, as a Senator, advocate a policy which, as a lawyer, you know the government could not constitutionally adopt?

"If you claim the market value of railway securities in 1920 was a fair basis of valuation, you must also admit it would have been a fair basis in 1923 when the LaFollette valuation law was passed. Clifford Thorne, a citizen of your own state, who is well known as a bitter critic of the railways, in 1913 estimated the total value of railway securities, based upon the market prices paid in October of that year, at $13,969,200,000. The additional cash investment which has been made in the railways since then is about $4,500,000,000. This added to Mr. Thorne's estimate in 1913, would make the present valuation of the railways $18,500,000,000.

"Every pertinent fact bearing upon the question shows that your assertion that the railways have been overhauled to the extent of seven billion dollars is without any foundation. Why, then, do you make such a statement? Your past advocacy of government ownership, your participation in public gatherings of socialists who are seeking the destruction of all private property, and the fact that you were endorsed by the Socialists of Iowa for United States Senator, may afford the answer. Perhaps you believe that confiscation of a large part of the value of the railways would be the best way to begin introducing a socialistic regime in the United States.

"You asserted that under the Transportation Act the Interstate Commerce Commission is 'now commanded to levy rates high enough to yield a return of six per cent upon the valuation of $19,000,000,000,' and you referred to this as a 'guarantee' to the railroads. If the law gives such a command the Commission has thus far disobeyed it. The net return the railways have earned on the valuation since it was made in 1920 has averaged only about 3½ per cent, or more than a billion dollars less than a 6 per cent return. The Interstate Commerce Commission, however, has expressly and repeatedly held that the law does not give the railways a 'guarantee.' In its opinion in the reduced rates case decided in the spring of 1922 it said: 'Determination of the percentage (of net return allowed to be earned) implies or carries with it no guarantee. Read in connection with the provision for the recapture of one-half above six per cent it is, indeed, a limitation.'

"You have been as reckless in the use of railway statistics in the past as you are now. In December, 1917, when you were an ovowed advocate of government ownership, you appeared as a witness before the Senate Committee on Interstate Commerce and estimated that under government management railway operating expenses could be reduced over $400,000,000 a year. Government operation was immediately afterward adopted, and in the first year it was in effect operating expenses increased over one billion dollars. Perhaps you thought some explanation was due from you as to why your estimate of railway expenses under government operation proved to be $1,500,000,000 too small the first year. This may be the true reason why in your recent speech in the Senate, in referring to the results of government operation, you said: 'I do not question the integrity of the Director-General of Railroads. He was both able and loyal to his country, but down below him, perhaps below his possible touch, were managing officers who were niether loyal to him nor to the government of the United States. They wanted to discredit government operation so that the railroads would be turned back. They were traitors as truly as was Benedict Arnold.'

"I was not in active railroad service during the war, but was serving as Director-General of Military Railroads. I do know something, however, of how railway officers served their country at that time, and I denounce the charges you make against them as base and unsupported calumnies.

"Statements made by both W. G. McAdoo, who was Director-General of Railroads in 1918, and Walker D. Hines, who was Director-General in 1919, are the best answers to your charge. Mr. McAdoo in his report to President Wilson said: 'The full and sympathetic co-operation of the various regional directors, federal managers, operating officers and employes has proved most effective in meeting the enormous problems facing the railroads, and their work ahs assisted enormously in keeping the transportation system of the country in a healthy condition.' When Mr. McAdoo retired as Director-General, he issued a statement to the public in which he said, with reference to his successor: 'I can ask nothing better for him than that they (railroad officers and employes) shall give him and the country the same loyal and efficient service they rendered during my term as director-general.'

"Mr. Hines, on February 28, 1920, in rendering his final report as Director-General, said: 'A final word of appreciation is due to the loyal and steady support of the officers and the great bulk of the employes and their organizations. The times have been exceedingly difficult for officers and employes and these difficulties have been faced and dealth with in admirable spirit and temper.'

"You were not during government control and have not been since in any position to form or express an opinion upon this matter which directly contradicts the statements made by both Mr. McAdoo and Mr. Hines.

"There are many other misstatements in your speech which are as easily refuted as those I have mentioned.

"A sound solution of the railway problem depends upon an intelligent and fair public opinion. Such an opinion can be based only upon knowledge and understanding by the public of the facts regarding railway affairs. Such speeches as yours have a direct tendency, and are apparently made with the deliberate purpose, to mislead the public and thereby to prevent a solution of the railway problem under private ownership which will be fair to the railroads, and which, at the same time, will promote the welfare of the public. A determined effort is being made by the enemies of private ownership through false and malicious propaganda, to destroy public confidence in private management, and your past advocacy of government ownership indicates the real object of such speeches as that with which you began your career in the Senate.

"Yours very truly, S. M. Felton."

St. Peter Herald: Any man who is reckless or foolish enough to defy the federal government may make huge profits by engaging in moonshining or bootlegging. In the natural course of events he will be detected, and when this happens, no sympathy should be wasted on the offender. Most communities have distilleries and distributors who are in the traffic with their eyes wide open—who are familiar with its emoluments and who know the penalties. A large percentage of them believe they are sufficiently skillful and adroit to escape arrest. It is to be remarked that, in an increasing number of cases, this belief is proving to be entirely erroneous and unsound. In time perhaps numbers of these men will conclude that there is more permanent prosperity connected with going back to work.

The explanations of some of the terms used by bankers are amusing as well as surprising. Take the use of the word "teller" for cashier. In the early days, when banks were still more or less a curiosity, women used to drop in and ask clerks unnecessary questions. The officials, feeling that their duty was to attend to bank matters rather than to inquisitive inquiries of the fair sex, got into the habit of passing the visitor on to a neighbor, remarking as they did so, "You tell her; I'm busy."

Secretary of State Mike Holm has made his recommendations relative to the automobile license law. Mr. Holm wishes the tax to be reckoned on current factory list cost, thus eliminating the inequality now existing. He also wants the minimum car tax reduced to $5 with the exception of trucks weighing less than one ton, which would still pay a $15 minimum. Mr. Holm also asks that a gasoline sales tax be instituted to make up the difference in the tax lost by reducing the minimum. He further asks that the time for the payment of the tax be extended for two months, making it March 31st instead of January 31st.

Representative W. T. Noonan of Baudette would amend the hunting laws so that the partridge and grouse seasons would be open on the same years instead of alternate years as the law now stands. "If a hunter kills a partridge in an off year he calls it grouse, and vice versa," says the Baudette member, and he is right about it. A couple of prairie chickens fooled us this fall when they jumped up in front of us in the brush, and we took a shot at 'em. But in this instance no harm was done, for we are not as quick on the trigger as we used to be and we missed 'em. We hope "Billy" gets his bill through for our protection. We don't want to accidentally break the law.

One John Kowoski, an alleged moonshiner said to have pursued a traffic in more or less passable brew in the vicinity of Argyle for some time past, was nabbed by Marshall county authorities at Argyle Tuesday evening and taken to the county jail. Three deputies from the sheriff's office are said to have followed Powoski's movements during the evening, making the arrest while he was in the act of making a sale and with a quantity of the stuff still on his person. Argyle citizens are becoming aroused over the activities of the moonshiners of that territory who have been supplying their vile concoctions to boys of high school age, and it is quite likely that further arrests will follow—Stephen Messenger.

Gunstyn Bergland of Thief River Falls has enrolled in the Creamery Operators' Short Course which is now being given by the dairy husbandry division of the University of Minnesota. Fifty-two young men, coming from 30 different counties in Minnesota, and from four different states, have registered for this course. Dr. C. H. Eckles, chief of the dairy division of the university, says: "This course is designed especially for beginners in creamery operation. Special stress is laid upon such principles as testing butter, controlling the composition of butter, keeping accurate and uniform accounts, and doing practice work in buttermaking. We aim to give every student a practical course in butter making and in the ordinary business connected with butter making. We have a splendid class of young farmers, creamery operators, and helpers." J. R. Keithly, professor of dairy husbandry in charge of the course, is assisted by several members of the dairy husbandry staff. Among the special lecturers are Chris Heen, dairy and food commissioner; James Sorenson, secretary of the Minnesota Creamery Operators' association, and A. J. McGuire, of the Co-operative Creameries Shipping association.

THE BJORNARAA LECTURE

The Tribune inadvertently neglected to mention last week the entertaining lecture presented at the Sons of Norway Hall by Bj. Bjornaraa of Hickory, who is doing a noble work among the Scandinavian people in arousing them to a sense of duty toward the traditions and matters of historic interest so far as their native land is concerned. He is also writing a history of the early settlers in the northwest. While in the city Mr. Bjornaraa spoke to the young people at the Trinity church basement.

BOYS GET DRUNK.

Two high school boys staggering down the street beastly drunk yesterday afternoon make disgraceful spectacles of themselves. The incident should make it the limit of toleration for bootleggers or whoever is supplying young boys with liquor, and to deal with them as they should be dealt with, it is the citizens of Argyle resorted to the vigilance committee of the old frontier days order to deal with these unscrupulous characters.—Argyle Banner.

Letters and photographs have been received this week by Mrs. Ingrid Nordhagen from Mrs. J. A. Whitmark (formerly Miss Ella Nelson of this place), who is now making her home near Billings, Ore. Mr. Whitmark is at present employed as scaler in a big lumber camp, and evidently enjoying life, the only drawback seems to be that they are located 135 miles from the nearest railroad, and consequently quite isolated from the rest of the world. A snow slide about Christmas time blocked the mail route and they received no mail for more than three weeks. The Whitmarks expect to leave in the early spring for Utah as work at the present lumber mill be closed. A photograph of their little daughter, Eunice Clara, now six weeks old, was enclosed.

AN ORDINANCE REGULATING THE SALE OF NON-INTOXICATING LIQUORS AND BEVERAGES IN THE CITY OF THIEF RIVER FALLS.

The City Council of the City of Thief River Falls, Minnesota, do ordain as follows:

Sec. 1. DEFINITION. A refreshment business, for the purpose of this ordinance, is defined as a business conducted or proposed to be conducted for the sale or offering for sale at retail for consumption on the premises where sold, either as a separate business, or in connection with any other business, of any malted or vinous beverage, any soft drink (except tea, coffee, milk, chocolate and cocoa), any carbonated beverage or liquor produced by the process by which beer, ale, porter or wine is produced. The word "person" and "applicant" as used in this ordinance shall include any individual, society, club, firm, partnership, corporation and association of persons.

Sec. 2. LICENSE. A refreshment business, as hereinafter defined, shall not be established, maintained or conducted within the City of Thief River Falls without first having procured from the City Council a license for that purpose. Every person, before establishing, maintaining or conducting any refreshment business, as herein defined, shall, before being so licensed, pay to the City Treasurer the sum of $10.00 for each year or fraction of year thereof for each stand, place, room or enclosure, or for each suite of rooms or enclosure which are in direct connection with or contiguous to each other. All such licenses shall expire on the first day of February next following their issue.

Sec. 3. APPLICATION FOR LICENSE. Any person desiring to establish, maintain or conduct a refreshment business, as defined herein, shall make application for a license in writing to the City Council upon blanks prepared and furnished by the City. Such application shall contain the names and residences of the applicants, if an individual, firm or partnership, or the names of the principal officers and their residence, if the applicant is a society, club, corporation or association of persons. It shall also give the name or names of one or more persons whom such society, club, firm, partnership, corporation or association of persons shall designate as manager or persons in charge, with the addresses of the same. Such applicant shall further state the following:

(a) The length of time such applicant or applicants, if an individual, firm or partnership, or the manager, if the applicant is a society, club, corporation or association of persons, has resided in the City of Thief River Falls, his or their places of previous employment, whether married or single, whether he or they or any of them have been convicted of a felony or misdemeanor, and, if so, what offense, when and in what court.

(b) The premises where such refreshment business is to be conducted or maintained, giving street and number.

(c) Whether such business is to be carried on in connection with some other kind of business.

(d) Whether the applicant or manager had, either alone or with someone else, previously engaged as owner or employe in conducting a saloon, cafe, club or other business of similar nature, where intoxicating liquors were sold; when and where and how long.

(e) The floor on which such refreshment business is to be located, and whether any partition or obstructions separate and divide the rooms therein or in any way prevent a clear view thereof from the street, if on the ground floor and from the entrance, if on any floor other than the ground floor.

(f) Such other information as the Council may from time to time require.

(g) The application shall be signed and acknowledged before a Notary Public or other officer authorized to administer oaths in the City of Thief River Falls.

Section 4. INVESTIGATION OF APPLICATION. Upon receipt of any such application the Council shall cause an investigation to be made concerning the statements contained in such application, the character and reputation of the applicant or applicants, and the cleanliness and sanitary condition of the premises, equipment and methods to be used, with a view to the preservation of the public health peace and safety. For the purpose of such investigation the Council shall have the assistance and co-operation of the building inspector, health commissioner, the chief of police, and every other department, bureau or officer of the City of Thief River Falls.

Section 5. WHEN LICENSE MAY BE REFUSED. A license may be refused by the Council to any applicant or applicants if any of the persons in the application or connected or associated therewith are not of good moral character or have, within five years of the date of the application, been convicted of a felony or within one year of a misdemeanor; if any of such persons have previously been connected with a refreshment business, the license for which has been revoked, or in which business any of the provisions with reference to the refreshment business have been violated, or if the refreshment business sought to be licensed does not comply in any way with the regulations, ordinances and laws applicable thereto. No license shall be refused except for a specific reason, and for the protection of the public health, safety, good order or morals. No applicant to whom a license has been refused, shall make further application until a period of at least six months shall have elapsed since the last previous rejection, unless he or it can show that the reason for such rejection no longer exists.

Section 6. TRANSFER OF LICENSE. No transfer of license as to location or ownership shall be granted except after application therefor upon forms provided by the Council, who may grant or reject such application after investigation. If the application for transfer is approved, this action shall be endorsed upon the license by the clerk.

Section 7. POSTING LICENSE. Every person licensed in accordance with the provisions of this ordinance, shall immediately post such license and keep the same posted while in force in a conspicuous place in the premises where such business is authorized to be carried on. The license shall be enclosed in a suitable wood and metal frame, having a clear glass front and a suitable wood and metal back, so that the whole of said license may be seen therein. It shall be unlawful for any person to post such license or to be permitted to post it upon premises other than those named in the application for such license or knowingly to deface or destroy any such license. Whenever a license shall be lost or destroyed, without fault on the part of the holder or his agents or employees, a duplicate license in lieu thereof under the original application may be used by the council in its discretion.

Section 8. CLOSING HOURS. It shall be unlawful to keep open to the public or to conduct a refreshment business, as herein defined, on any day between the hours of 11 o'clock P. M. and 6 o'clock A. M. This section, however, shall not be construed to prevent regular employes from performing necessary work during these hours to maintain the premises in a sanitary condition.

Section 9. VIEW NOT TO BE OBSTRUCTED. Any room in which a refreshment business is conducted shall be so constructed and maintained that a clear view of the interior of such place may be had from the street in which such business is located, and shall be free from any screens, partitions, or obstructions which prevent a clear view from the street; provided, however, that such place of business is not located on the ground floor or which room does not directly front or abut on any street, shall be so constructed and maintained that such view of the interior, as above described, may be had from any entrance to such room. If a bar is maintained in such a place, it shall be unlawful to obstruct entrance behind such bar by gates, fences, doors or any other form of barrier, or to permit empty bottles or any other thing to obstruct the entrance to the rear of such bar. This section shall not apply to a drug store or pharmacy where a pharmacist, duly registered under the laws of the State of Minnesota, is in actual and personal charge and the business therein conducted is carried on in good faith as a drug store or pharmacy.

Section 10. NOT TO HARBOR INTOXICATED PERSONS. It shall be unlawful for any person owning, conducting or in charge of any refreshment business, as defined in this ordinance, to harbor intoxicated persons on the premises or to permit the drinking of intoxicating beverages therein, or to allow intoxicated persons to resort thereto, or to permit any disorderly, indecent, immoral or unlawful conduct on or in such premises.

Secton 11. LIQUOR ON PREMISES PROHIBITED. No person to whom a license is granted under the provisions of this ordinance shall receive, possess, give away or sell, have or permit on the premises, any liquor or beverage which contain any alcohol in excess of the amount permitted by law. This section shall not apply to a drug store or pharmacy wherein a pharmacist, duly registered under the laws of the State of Minnesota, is in actual and personal charge.

Section 12. NOT TO ENDANGER HEALTH. No person either as principal or agent, shall sell any beverage described in section one containing ingredients detrimental or deleterious to health.

Section 13. PREMISES TO BE KEPT SANITARY. It shall be the duty of every licensee at all times to keep the premises where such refreshment business is conducted, clean and in a sanitary condition. All persons employed or working in such premises shall be clean and cleanly clothed, and free from communicable diseases. All utensils, appliances, vessels, receptacles, refrigerators and any other place or thing whatsoever, which are used for the purpose of serving or storing, must at all times be kept in a clean, wholesome and sanitary condition. An adequate supply of hot water and cold water for cleaning purposes shall be provided, and glasses, dishes, and spoons shall be sterilized in boiling water or live steam after each use, or where it is impossible to use boiling water or live steam, sterile dishes, cups and spoons made of paper, wood, or any other suitable material and handled in a sanitary manner, for one service only, may be used. All glasses, dishes and straws used shall be reasonably protected from dust and flies.

Section 14. INSPECTION BY OFFICIALS. It shall be the duty of the Health Commissioner and he is hereby authorized and empowered from time to time to inspect and examine or cause to be inspected and examined all of such premises where a refreshment business, as herein defined, is conducted, for the purpose of ascertaining whether all of the ordinances of the City of Thief River Falls and laws of the State of Minnesota, relative to conducting such business, be made at any time when the place inspected shall be open to the public for business or otherwise occupied as provided in section eight thereof. It shall be the duty of each and every person conducting a refreshment business as herein defined, and his or its representatives or employees, to assist the Health Commissioner and his inspectors or employees in the making of such inspection, and when required, to furnish samples of any material whatsoever, which are kept or offered for sale, which samples shall be examined or analyzed in a proper manner by or under the direction of such Health Commissioner and the record of such examination or analysis shall be made and kept on file in his office. It shall be the duty of the Chief of Police, and he is hereby authorized and empowered, from time to time, to inspect and examine, or cause to be inspected and examined, all premises where a refreshment business is conducted, for the purpose of ascertaining the general reputation and character of the place and of the persons who habitually frequent such place; that nature and kind of business conducted at such place by the licensee or by any other person; that nature and kind of entertainment, if any, of such place; and whether such place is conducted in a lawful, quiet and orderly manner. Such inspection and examination shall be made when the premises are open to the public for business or otherwise occupied as provided in section eight thereof.

Section 15. REVOCATION MAY BE RECOMMENDED. The health commissioner or chief of police may at any time in writing recommend the revocation of any license issued pursuant to this ordinance, stating the grounds upon which such recommendation is made, and the council may revoke such license by notice, in writing, whenever it shall appear to its satisfaction from the recommendations of the health commissioner or chief of police or otherwise, that such license has violated any of the provisions of this or any other ordinance of the City of Thief River Falls or of the laws of the State of Minnesota. The health commissioner, chief of police, members of the police force and all other officers who are charged with the enforcement of this ordinance, shall at all times when such premises shall be open to the public for business or otherwise occupied as provided in section eight, have access to any part of the premises occupied by a refreshment business, and shall be allowed to take samples of any liquors or beverages found upon such premises, and refusal by any person conducting such business or in charge thereof to permit the examination of such premises or the taking of any samples shall be a violation of this ordinance and shall be sufficient reason for the revocation of the license.

Section 16. HEARING ON COMPLAINT. Upon complaint, in writing, filed with the Clerk, or upon his own motion, the Clerk shall cause to be served upon any licensee a notice specifying the grounds for a complaint and fixing a time and place at which the council shall hear and determine such charges, which time shall not be less than three days from the date of service of notice, at which time and place the person against whom the complaint is filed shall have an opportunity to be heard and to make his defense against such complaint.

When a license has been revoked no other license shall be issued to the same licensee within one year.

Sleepy Small Town Is Transformed by Crooks

"Get-Rich-Quick" Wallingford" and His Confederate Are Forced Into Honesty.

How a sleepy little town, without ambition, smugly satisfied with its own conservative traditions, can be transformed into a thriving, hustling and prosperous small city is amusingly set forth in "Get-Rich-Quick Wallingford," a Cosmopolitan production for Paramount, directed by Frank Borzage, which will be shown at the Lyceum theater Friday and Saturday of this week.

The picture details the adventures of those master confidence men, J. Rufus Wallingford and G. Horace Daw, who descend upon Battlesburg, a Middle Western town, to fleece its citizens by means of hair-brained schemes.

They find the town ultra-conservative but gradually the magnificent suavity of the crooks wins over the citizens and they "invest" generously.

Wallingford and Daw, of course, have no intention of carrying out their so-called manufacturing projects, but their industry starts a real live boom and Battlesburg makes tremendous progress.

Sam Hardy is seen as Wallingford and is supported by Norman Kerry as "Blackie" Daw and Doris Kenyon as Fannie Jasper.

Moving Into New Quarters.

The Tribune is informed by H. K. Strand that he has purchased the J. L. Bean building, 303 Main avenue north, where he expects to be established in the grocery business by Feb. 6. Mr. Strand now conducts a store on Third street, but found a change advisable because of lack of room. The new building is being remodeled and decorated.

AUTO CLUB OFFICERS

The Pennington County Automobile Club held its annual election of officers last Monday at the Commercial club rooms. Fairmont Sentinel: Claude Ackerman, a painter, 60 years old, who lives at Lakefield, is back from a three months' trip to Germany, where he went to claim an inheritance. Mr. Ackerman stopped in Fairmont Sunday night on hi return trip. He was given a bed at the city hall and Monday morning the chief of police buoght him a ticket to Lakefield. His German inheritance left him stranded. Had the German mark held anything like its pre-war value, Mr. Ackerman would now be comfortably rich. As it is he is much poorer than he would have been had he never claimed the "fortune" his relative in Alsace left him. Ackerman received several great bales of marks in settlement of his legacy. On exchanging them for real money he received $110. With this he undertook to make his way back to America. He got a far as Madelia. Here the last cent of his resources was spent. He walked to Truman and caught a ride from that village to Fairmont. Thanks to the generosity of Chief Serle he ate and slept while in Fairmont and from here traveled on the velvet. Ackerman is ready to shoot the next relative in Germany who dies and leaves him a "fortune."

REV. CHAS. GERLINGER:

Investor or spendthrift? There is a wide difference. Both spend money. The one spends wisely—the other just spends. We differ much in the amount of money we have to spend. But we all spend equal amounts of one thing—time. It is possible to be an investor or a spendthrift of time. He is a wise man who makes his spending bear interest. Then we call it an investment. Time may be invested to bear perpetual interest to ourselves and descendants, to our neighbors and those who will be our neighbors. How much of it do you invest and how much do you just spend? The opportunities are sufficient in Thief River Falls for all her citizens to put in a good share or two. Would we not do well to invest a little more of it in the welfare of our young men and women and less in ourselves?

An Iowa newspaper says a Webster City woman dropped a nickel in her bedroom. It rolled under the bed, of course. She could not see it, so she lighted a match and crawled under. The match fired the mattress, she couldn't put the fire out and screamed for help. The fireman saved the room, but the mattress was destroyed and with it $600 in savings she had sewn in it, all because a nickel rolled under the bed.

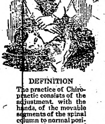
Chiropractic Differs Fundamentally



DEFINITION
The practice of Chiropractic consists of the adjustment, with the hands, of the movable segments of the spinal column to normal position for the purpose of releasing the prisoned impulse radically and absolutely from any other method of getting the sick well.

If this were not true there would be no excuse for asking state legislatures for recognition as a separate, distinct science, by the appointment of a Chiropractic examining board.

If we were to take a little from allopathy, a little from each of homeopathy, osteopathy, dietetics, etc., and label this conglomeration Chiropractic, we would not deserve to be recognized as separate and distinct from other professions.

To justify our claim for recognition as a separate, distinct science, we should differ fundamentally, radically and absolutely from any other method of getting the sick well.

For this reason all chiropractors, worthy of the name, scorn to use any of the methods used by others.

Unless Chiropractic is different from all other methods it has no excuse for existence; and unless it is superior to all other methods it is bound to perish in the struggle for existence.

If it is a superior method, abuse and misrepresentation will not avail its opponents; and if it is an inferior method it will perish because of its inferiority.

Employ none but a competent chiropractor.

WAKE UP FARMERS, MERCHANTS, AND EVERYBODY, WAKE UP NOW!

Rural Credits Law Will Fail Unless People of the Country Make Demands Known to Legislature.

The Tribune has been talking rural credits for two years in the hope of getting a response which could be plainly heard in the halls of the legislature when the time for action arrived.

THAT TIME IS HERE NOW.

The rural credits bill now pending in the legislature is all right with a few minor amendments, but at every hearing so far conducted ten enemies of the bill have appeared where one real friend was present.

The Tribune wants to make it plain that the bill is of greater importance to northern Minnesota than to any other section, for the simple reason that under its provisions northern Minnesota will be enabled to secure farm loans on the same favorable basis now extended to the better settled sections, and that is why it is up to the people of this section to be alert and on guard RIGHT NOW.

The opponents of the measure are those loan agents who regard northern Minnesota as the abiding place of suckers who will continue to pay a high interest rate on short time loans, and they do not want a law passed which will place this territory on terms of equality with other sections.

There is no reason on earth for the discrimination which now takes place. It is contemplated that the man who pays ten per cent will have to pay his obligation just as the man who pays a lesser interest rate, and if the security is good the farm loan rate should be as favorable in Pennington county as in Freeborn county.

This will be the case of the rural credits bill now pending becomes a law.

It means that a class of renters and farm investors who have shied at farm lands in this section because of the higher interest rate, will be attracted by the superior quality of our land, when it can be purchased on as

GREAT CAST IN "THE OLD HOMESTEAD"

Theodore Roberts and George Fawcett Head Splendid Roster of All-Star Players.

The phrase "all star" has been much abused, but the cast of "The Old Homestead," which comes to the Lyceum Theatre Sunday and Monday, may truthfully be said to be of that caliber. Theodore Roberts, George Fawcett, T. Roy Barnes, Fritzi Ridgway, Harrison Ford, Kathleen O'Connor, James Mason, Ethel Wales and others make up a list that is hard to surpass.

This Paramount picture is based on Denman Thompson's famous play in which that celebrated actor appeared for thirty-two years, but is far more extensive in character and presents a great drama with plenty of comedy and a smashing climax.

The story is familiar — how the son of Uncle Josh is falsely accused of theft and goes away to meet with stirring adventures and finally to be restored to his home and sweetheart. But there is far more than that to the story. There is adventure, love, human character in abundance, humor that is rich and spontaneous and pathos that is deep and convincing. Tears and laughter abound.

James Cruze directed with discretion and sympathy, this great story, which was adapted by Perley Poore Sheehan and Frank E. Woods, scenarized by Julien Josephson and supervised by Walter Woods.

Old Knox School Goes Into River

Now Necessary to Tear Down Structure and Move Piecemeal.

The old Knox school building, purchased last fall from the Thief River Falls district by the Church of St. Bernard with the intention of moving the structure into the vicinity of the church's property, late Saturday night went through the ice and is now standing partly submerged in the waters of the river.

The building had been split in half on the old site near the new Knox school and the front part of the building taken to the rivers' edge about two weeks ago. This week the contractor in charge started operations on taking the structure across the river and up to the time of quitting work Saturday evening it had been towed half way across the river by windlass and a team of horses. It appeared that everything was going along smoothly and it was the opinion that the building could easily be taken over the thick ice of the river without mishap, the ice at this time of the year being more than two feet thick.

Some time between 11 and 12 o'clock, however, the ice gave way and the front end of the building did a nose dive through the ice, the structure now standing at an angle of about 30 degrees forward. The old school house soon froze fast to its moorings and it is now believed impossible to extricate it.

It is not yet known whether the building can be completely salvaged as it will now be necessary to tear it down and move it piece by piece. There are many versions of the mishap, one being that water escaping through the dam about 700 yards below the point where the building was being taken over the river had caused a hollow under the ice, the ice thus being rendered unable to withstand the hundreds of tons of weight bearing down upon it. Another version is that the balmy weather of the past few weeks had caused rotting of the ice. The fact that the building went through several hours after the crew had stopped work indicates that the former theory may be the most plausible.

State Supreme Court Decides Against Pennington County in Red Lake Project

According to information reaching The Tribune late this afternoon, the State Supreme Court on Friday affirmed the decision of Judge Andrew Grindeland in levying an assessment of $10,000 on Pennington, Beltrami, Red Lake, Clearwater and Marshall counties to create a fund for further preliminary work on the Red Lake project, the money to be expended as the Red Lake Drainage and Conservancy Board sees fit.

The affirmation of the supreme court will mean that the Pennington board of county commissioners will be compelled to devise means by which this county's portion of the amount (estimated to be somewhere in the neighborhood of $2,000) can be raised. This will be rendered difficult in the face of the fact that the budget for the year has been planned and the board made no provision for the payment of its proportionate share under the Grindeland decision. The amount now to go to the Conservancy board will be used in making further inquiry into the possibilities of the Red Lake project, which is in addition to $5,000 formerly expended by the board.

The Pennington county board had appealed to the supreme court to set aside the decision of Judge Grindeland, but it now appears the money will have to be provided. As far as is known, none of the other counties mentioned appealed from the decision.

The recent decision is viewed in the light of a temporary victory for proponents of the Red Lake River project, although it is known that the actual starting of operations on the big drainage job, which involves the expenditure of approximately $670,000, will be fought to the bitter end by its opponents.

Local High School Quint Will Clash With Warroad

The Thief River high school basket ball five will clash with Warroad next Thursday evening at the City Auditorium and in preparation for the contest the local five is going through a course of intensive training under the guidance of Coach McFarland, physical director at the high school.

Warroad this year is credited with having scored 100 per cent in games won and not a single team has been able to show up effectively against them. Taking full measure of this "rep," the local team is judging them according and leaving nothing undone that will assist in stinging the visitors here Thursday evening.

The game will commence promptly at 8 o'clock and former popular prices will prevail to students and citizens alike.

Groundhog Sees Shadow; Fun Starts for Six Weeks

Frozen Stiff as a Mackerel When He Peeps Out at Sun on February 2.

Mr. Groundhog saw his shadow, all right, and by the looks of things we can now "sit tight" for six more weeks, shoveling coal in the furnace and keep our goloshes in shape to outlast the season.

Blind followers of tradition can now prepare for the worst, for Mr. Groundhog must have been frozen stiff as a mackerel when he ventured forth on that fateful day—February 2. He must have seen a dozen shadows of himself.

And it looks as if there might be something to this "groundhog business," after all. Ever since Saturday weather conditions have been threatening and affairs took full form today (Wednesday) when what looks for all the world like a real blizzard threatens to envelope us. A lot of snow is blowing up and piling high the highways and byways. It is too early in the day to foretell its extensiveness, but The Tribune feels satisfied that Mr. Groundhog made a fine mess of things for not staying in the house with his wife and children when the weather was so bad up above.

Former Pastor Here Gives Sermon Over Radio Route

Rev. F. J. Seltz Speaks Sunday From Electric Company's Station at Minneapolis.

Rev. F. J. Seltz, formerly pastor of the German Lutheran church in this city, now in charge of Stephanus Evangelical Lutheran church at St. Paul, delivered a religious sermon Sunday over the Commonwealth Electric Company's broadcasting station WAAH at Minneapolis. The regular vesper services of Stephanus church, including music and a sermon by the pastor, was broadcasted at 5:30 p. m. Sunday. The program lasted for about one hour.

For 12 consecutive Sunday the various Lutheran churches of the twin cities will take turns providing the Sunday radio services.

Rev. Seltz delivered the first sermon over the Commonwealth broadcasting station. He left Thief River Falls about three years ago and since that time has been in charge of the above mentioned church at St. Paul.

The Thief River Falls high school debating team, composed of Herbert Johnson, Albert Stengelson, Marion Hilden and Rose Costello, defeated the Crookston high school debaters Friday evening when they argued the negative side of the issue, "Would the Adoption of the Kansas Court Prove a Solution of the Industrial Problems of Minnesota?"

The victory of the local team is the third one this winter and gives them a 100 per cent record. The team is in charge and under the tutelage of Miss Katherine MacNair of the faculty and has built up an enviable reputation.

Arrested Men Complain of Inhuman Treatment in Jail

Declare in Interview That County Bastile is Unfit for Incarceration of Human Beings.

Chas. B. Bradley, A. H. Erickson and Conrad Vinje, three of the men arrested two weeks ago by government men on a charge of having liquor in their places of business and locked up in the county jail, where they remained from Wednesday evening until Monday afternoon when they were taken to Crookston for appearance before a United States commissioner, made vehement protests to a Tribune reporter this week for alleged unsanitary conditions at the jail, which were declared by Bradley, spokesman for the three men, to be unfit for human occupancy.

The men arrested, said Bradley, were without sufficient bed clothing, and he stated further that the government men assumed super-authority in refusing permission to wives of the men from consulting with the accused, and that the women were subjected to uncalled for and unwarranted violations of courtesy on the part of the federal men. In substance, Bradley stated that the officers made their stay in jail here as miserable as possible.

Bradley did not state whether or not charges would be filed against the federal authorities, but wishes it known that the accused men have a genuine grievance.

Contrary to a statement made last week, the men were released on $500 bail instead of $1,000, and they appeared before Commissioner Kostrand instead of Judge William Watts, as stated.

$300 Already in Y. M. C. A. Fund

All Community Organizations Give Hearty Support to Proposition.

Committees this week were extremely active in the city arranging plans for the establishment of a Y. M. C. A. center in Thief River Falls and soliciting teams already have secured more than $300 as an initial working fund. A committee will also wait upon the Commercial club in an attempt to secure the consent of the club to use their clubrooms for the purpose of a gymnasium. Several years ago the clubrooms were used as a regular "gym," there being shower baths and other features already installed.

Seventy-five high school boys of the city already have signed up for $2 memberships and it is planned to select some man popular with the younger element to tage charge of the "Y." It has been decided that all boys under the age of 14 years will be eligible for membership.

All community organizations of the city are lending their hearty support to the plan for establishing a Y. M. C. A. center in this city, every church in the city planning to assist in raising funds by the giving of suppers, socials, etc., to which a small fee will be charged. There is also a committee of women at work, under the chairmanship of Mrs. Chas. Gerlinger, which will solicit funds among certain classes.

No elaborate plans are contemplated this year, according to the officials of the association, and nothing will be done on an extensive scale until the association is on firm footing. Work will open in about a week, at which time membership cards will be ready for distribution.

An election of officers was held last Friday evening, at which time the following were selected to act as a permanent organization: President, C. D. Gustafson; vice president, Rev. Chas. Gerlinger; secretary, H. E. Nelson; treasurer, E. P. Brevig.

The directors are: W. W. Prichard Jr., H. O. Chommie, F. F. Haynes and Dr. O. F. Mellby. Ex-officio members of the board are all the ministers of local churches, as follows: Rev. J. B. Smith, Methodist church; Rev. T. E. Sweger, Trinity Lutheran; Rev. E. H. Kreidt, German Evangelical Lutheran; Rev. George Larson, Zion Lutheran; Rev. Albin A. Larson, Swedish Lutheran; Rev. M. J. Noesen, Church of St. Bernard; Rev. O. J. Lundell, Swedish Mission, and Rev. Chas. Gerlinger, Presbyterian church. I. T. Simley, superintendent of schools, also will act as ex-officio members of the board, as will O. R. Sande, county superintendent.

Committee on supervision, appointments and in charge of property are as follows: I. T. Simley, chairman; Rev. T. E. Sweger, Rev. O. J. Lundell and Rev. J. B. Smith. Committee on purchasing equipment includes the following: H. E. Nelson, chairman; W. W. Prichard, Jr., and Rev. E. H. Kreidt.

A list of donators to the fund will be published as soon as such a list is made ready for publication by the officers of the association, probably next week.

Sons of Norway to Give Dance and Social Affair

A "hard times" dance and social affair will be held Friday evening, February 16, under the auspices of the Sons of Norway at the lodge home of the order and will be in the nature of an all around good time. A committee is in charge of arrangements and will meet this week to make final preparations for the event, at which time an announcement will be made. The Daughters of Norway met at the home last night for installation of officers.

Red Lake Falls Bank Closed.

The Merchants State Bank of Red Lake Falls has been temporarily closed pending the liquidation of frozen assets. Being unable to collect past due paper and suffering a reduction in its deposits the bank was forced to close its doors. It is likely that arrangements will be made to reopen the closed bank at an early date.

H. C. WOOLSON GUERNSEY CHAMPS WIN HANDILY AT CROOKSTON SHOW

Local Exhibitor of Purebred Cattle Wins With Herd in All Classes Except Senior Champion Bull.

The glory of the H. C. Woolson herd of Guernseys was again sung at the Crookston winter show this week when the well-known breeder's exhibit was declared high by the judges in charge. Woolson's Guernsey herd has long been recognized as perhaps the finest in the Northwest and for this reason the decision did not create the surprise usually manifested when this vicinity "comes home with the bacon."

Mr. Woolson won all the Guernsey championships, with the exception of senior champion bull, in which there was no entry. Natilal Woolson and Bernice Woolson also won with their display calves. Hence it is clear that the Woolsons scored 100 per cent in perfectness, pureness and quality.

Jens Letnes displayed his herd of Shorthorns, and Gordon Hunt a display calf.

F. A. Uggen, McIntosh, won first in the amateur classes, and Alfred Paradis, Brooks, was the only Aberdeen Angus exhibitor, and took all firsts and champions.

Honors in the Poland China show were quite evenly divided among all the breeders, with Charles Widner, Stephen, a strong contestant for first honors.

Peterson Bros., New Richland, won grand champion sweepstakes in the 50-ear corn contest. The grand champion sweepstakes in the 10-ear contest was won by Donald Ringeison, Fairmont. These winnings carry with them silver trophies. A. A. Chapman, Olivia, showed the champion lot of sweet corn. Fred Schumacher, Spring Valley, won the trophy offered for the best 10-ear exhibit of Minnesota 13 corn. Peterson Bros., Ringeison and Schumacher are all from the southern corn section.

Delbert Kron scored 96 points in the contest, while Gordon Hunt scored 93 1-3. The record of the two students is considered extraordinary in view of the severe test made of the ability of the contestants.

Everybody Anxious For "Three Musketeers"

Sixteen duels, a man holding up a broken bridge while three riders cross it, the stealing of a queens' jewels, a desperate fight with a conscienceless woman for their recovery, the smashing of one of the greatest intrigues of history—these are but a few of the dramatic incidents in Douglas Fairbanks' sixth United Artists picture, "The Three Musketeers," which appears at the Lyceum on Wednesday and Thursday, Feb. 14 and 15.

History retold in celluloid! That's what is claimed for this feature by the management of the Lyceum. Based on the marvelous adventures and escapades of the dashing D'Artagnan and three of King Louis XIII's Musketeers, this photoplay unfolds the history of France in the early Seventeenth century when that monarchy was dominated by the designing and crafty Cardinal Richelieu, a soldier by training but a statesman and churchman only by virtue of intrigues he devised.

No more vivid and picturesque tale has ever been presented on the screen than this, according to Manager Brumund. From a photographic standpoint it is a work of art, and costumes and sets, are marvelous. It is believed that this photoplay will go down in film history as one of the classic productions.

Fairbanks' interpretation of the dashing and impulsive D'Artagnan will present him to his admirers in a new light, and the work of the all-star cast that supports him will insure satisfaction to all photoplay goers.

HOLT ON CHILDREN? STAR HAS NEW RULES

Star of "The Bachelor Daddy" Acknowledged Authority on Care of Kiddies.

Between scenes for his latest Paramount picture, "The Bachelor Daddy," Thomas Meighan diligently read Holt on the care of children. In this new picture, which comes to the Lyceum theatre Friday and Saturday, he is the custodian of five lively youngsters, and between registering for the camera and keeping the kids in good humor, the genial star had his hands full.

By the time the picture was finished Mr. Meighan had compiled the following rules for the care of children, Holt notwithstanding:

1. A cuckoo clock is the best pacifier.
2. Never try to wash little Johnny's neck unless you have a supply of candy as a "persuader."
3. When children are taken on a Pullman car one should always have an encyclopedia handy to answer all questions.
4. When at dinner in a dining car, children should be given free rein, for any attempt to cramp their style is sure to result disastrously.
5. Never leave children alone on a motion picture set if you expect it to remain the same.
6. When you have guests for dinner, don't leave the children alone in the nursery, for there is sure to be a riot, which will not only disturb you but your friends.

INCOME TAX FACTS

The numerous inquiries at the revenue office relative to the liability of taxpayers for filing income tax returns have indicated that there is still a considerable doubt in the mind of the average individual as to his status, according to L. M. Willcuts, collector of internal revenue.

Mr. Willcuts believes that a majority of taxpayers can satisfy themselves as to their liability by first determining their status as a single or married person.

A single person is an unmarried person, a widow, or widower, or married person living apart from husband or wife on the last day of the taxable year. By living apart is meant living apart by mutual consent, not because one of the parties is temporarily absent or forced through sickness to reside at a hospital or asylum. Divorcees are classified as single persons.

A married person is one living with husband or wife on the last day of the taxable year. In respect to the taxable year for the twelve months of 1922 a person married on December 0, 1922, would be a married person while a person separated by death or divorce from his or her legal mate on December 30th would be a single person.

The liability for filing returns is based on the amount of the net income for the year without taking into consideration the amount of personal exemption and credits for dependants.

A single person should file when the net income is $1,000 or more and a married person when the combined net income of husband and wife is $2,000 or more.

Any individual with a gross income of $5,000 or more must file a return, or when the combined gross income of husband and wife is $5,000 or more a return must be filed.

Personal expenses such as doctor bills, streetcar fare to work, clothing and the like, are not deductible from gross income in arriving at the net income subject to tax.

Taxpayers who are in doubt are urged to call at a revenue office or write to the Collector of Revenue, St. Paul, Minn.

Many are now taking advantage of the assistance offered and are discharging their liability before the March rush.

High Percentage Hatches
With the Queen Incubator
Everyone wants big hatches, and the Queen will deliver them. Besides being wonderfully well constructed, in the way of materials and workmanship, the Queen embodies the most scientific principles of artificial incubation.
The Queen is doubly insulated. First there are double walls of California Redwood, forming a dead air space. Second, corrugated strawboard is used between the wooden walls. Proper insulation adds considerable expense to the manufacturing cost, but it is an absolute requirement of a good Incubator.
The Queen is the only Incubator that carries out the double Redwood wall construction all around, and provides a double wall front, in the way of two separate doors. The outer door is a solid panel of Redwood that is hinged entirely independent of the inner door and is fastened with a sash lock that draws it tight, thus making the loss of heat impossible.
The inner door is also of Redwood construction, containing a panel of glass the full length and height of the egg chamber.
Queen Brooders are Good Step-Mothers
They are designed to raise the chicks in all kinds of weather at any time of the year, with complete protection day and night. The heating system gives an abundance of heat, distributed properly, while plenty of fresh air is provided automatically without draughts.
We sell the Queen because we are here to stay and cannot afford to trifle with your eggs. Come in and see how a Queen operates.

THE BIG BLIZZARD FIFTY YEARS AGO

Willmar Paper Writes Interesting Story of Terrific Storm Which Took Place in January, 1873.

The fine winter we have had so far does not suggest anything like the terrifying blizzard encountered by the pioneers years ago. Last week occurred the fiftieth anniversary of the big storm of 1873, when 12 people lost their lives on the prairies of Kandiyohi county.

The following is a description of the storm as it is published in the History of Kandiyohi County:

Blizzard of 1873.

"A blizzard, the most destructive to human life in the history of Kandiyohi county, occurred in January, 1873. The ground was covered with snow and the weather was so balmy during the first part of Tuesday, Jan. 7th, as to encourage farmers to make trips to town or to the woods for fuel. About two o'clock a great many were wending their way homeward with their sleds and teams of horses or oxen. At that hour there was no indication of a coming storm. The thermometer was about at the freezing point, the wind, which had been blowing gently from the southwest, suddenly went down and a perfect calm settled over the vast expanse of the snow clad prairie. Light, fleecy clouds floated lazily in the heavens and occasionally a flurry of feathery snowflakes came sifting down through the tranquil atmosphere Such was the stillness for a few moments that human voices, the barking of dogs or the lowing of cattle could be heard for miles.

Tremendous Polar Wave.

"Suddenly a muttering and rumbling as of distant thunder was heard in the direction of the far-away northwest. At first these sounds were more suggestive than real, but in a moment they began to increase, and swell in volume until the fierce roar of the coming hurricane struck the ear of the anxious and affrighted listener. Simultaneously there appeared upon the northwestern horizon a white cloud like a snowbank, which mounted upward, increased in volume and approached with astonishing rapidity. Within a few moments after these premonitory signs the storm broke in all its fury. The temperature fell steadily and it became intensely cold. Great clouds of snow, resembling powdered and hard frozen ice, were driven by the gale, with such force that a person no matter in which direction he turned would be blinded. Within a few minutes the bright light of midafternoon was changed almost into darkness by the frozen moisture that came down from the clouds and was swept up from the ground and swirled about in the wild fury of a tempest. A person sitting in a sled would be unable to see his oxen or horses, though only a few feet away.

"So sudden was the coming of the full force of the storm that farmers or members of their families who were working near their barns barely had time in many instances to reach the doors of their dwellings before the darkness and the bewildering terrors of the blizzard enveloped them.

Lasted Three Days.

"The terrific storm which had so suddenly come up on the afternoon of the 7th, continued with unabated fury during the night, all day the 8th, and during the night following. Toward morning on the 9th it began to moderate slightly and throughout that day the weather conditions might be decribed as an ordinary blizzard. On the 9th the farmers for the first time in two days ventured outside their houses as far as stables to provide such feed as they could for the suffering stock.

The Sad Aftermath.

"Immense banks of snow had been heaped up around the buildings and along the roadsides, wherever an obstruction impeded the free sweep of the wind. When the storm was over and communication was established between the villages and the various settlements it was learned that a great many had perished. In Whitefield township Claus and Jorgen Strand, brothers, were found frozen to death near Peter Monsons' place. They were on their way home from the woods east of Lake Waganga. In Roseland township, a party of five men, consisting of John O'Neil, Charles O'Neil, Stephen O'Neil, Thomas Holden and Michael Holden, while enroute from Willmar to Olivia, were overtaken by the blizzard and all met death except Michael Holden, who still live at Olivia, with one crippled hand to remind him of the terrors of his experience. Charles O'Neil lived nearly two weeks, but died after amputation of legs and arm at St. Paul. Lars Nelson of Whitfield while returning from the woods at Green Lake was caught in the storm and died later at Willmar from the effects of having both legs amputated. In section 7, Norway Lake township, the body of Ole K. Skau was found. He was returning with grist from the mill at Chippewa Falls to his home near Lake Johanna when the storm overtook him. Markaret Soland, 24 years, and Helga Stengrimson, 13 years, froze to death while returning to their home in Norway Lake from Kerkhoven. Ole Gronseth of Kerkhoven perished in section 4, Norway Lake township while on his way home from the woods. In Roseville, William M. Crump was lost in the storm and his body found within ten rods of R. C. Bentons' house."

Further details of each one of these events will be found in the various township departments of the history.

J. Henrik Nelson in Mamre saved his life by crawling into a large muskrat house, where he lay two days and two nights. Many ox teams were lost. Many of those caught on the roads obtained shelter in the nearest cabins or dugouts until the storm was over. J. K. Jacobson of Green Lake was frozen so as to require amputation of both legs. It is still a topic about which old settlers will tell many a thrilling story.—Willmar Tribune.

THE CURSE OF THIS CITY!

The Tribune has been requested to retract or modify recent statements made concerning arrests and other activities of those engaged in the moonshine traffic in this city. If we have made positive statements that liquor was found in certain places, we stand by such charges, believing that the court records will bear out our published statements. As a matter of fact more has been withheld from publication than has been printed, and so far as The Tribune is concerned no word of apology in this connection will be made.

The Tribune cannot be cajoled nor induced by threats into any attitude of indifference toward the moonshine question in this city.

Neither will our attitude be modified because of the loss of a little business or a few subscribers.

Much as we dislike to lose business, and sorry as we are to see otherwise decent citizens in sympathy with the moonshine evil, yet we prefer to take our stand on the side of the wives and mothers whose husbands and sons face ruin and despair because of the nefarious traffic.

The Tribune is not out to "get" anyone, but we do know that men and boys who daily appear on the streets of Thief River Falls in various stages of intoxication, did not get that way from drinking snow water.

We have seen the sons of respectable parents jerked off dance floors in this city because of MOONSHINE.

We have seen women insulted on the public streets of Thief River Falls because of MOONSHINE.

We have received letters from women in this city who stand in constant fear of their husbands because of MOONSHINE.

Apologize to such as make it or sell it? Not in ten thousand years.

When The Tribune reaches the stage where it can be dictated to by moonshiners or any other brand of lawbreakers, it will print "dishrag" in a conspicuous place at the head of its editorial columns.

A sugar factory in Thief River Falls is no idle dream, but it never can be obtained or maintained by the pessimists in city or country.

We wish to make it plain—once and for all—that The Tribune is committed to the proposition of ridding Thief River Falls of moonshine, and we do not care to quibble about minor technicalities. If those who feel aggrieved over articles appearing in this newspaper will tell their troubles to the policeman much needless waste of time will be avoided.

RURAL CREDITS.

The Tribune has had a great deal to say during the past three months with reference to rural credits—so much in fact that we have about run out of argument. But one more thing should be emphasized at this time. The sickest of all industries is that of farming. It seems like the irony of fate when the man who raises the food for the American people is reduced to practical beggary because readjustment has hit him the hardest.

It cannot be denied that the farmer now pays too much for the commodities which he stands in need of, among them the commodity of credit, and the rural credit bill now pending in the legislature presents a most favorable opportunity to right that injustice to a certain extent. The law may not do all that is promised for it, but at least it is a start in the right direction.

The farmers cannot pay ten per cent under the most favorable conditions, and under the unfavorable conditions which now confront them such a rate must inevitably lead to bankruptcy.

Therefore The Tribune would suggest that leaders in the legislature be appealed to for quick action upon this measure. We would like to see a law passed enabling the board to loan up to 70 per cent of the appraised value of farm land and 40 per cent upon the improvements, but the main thing now is to get some kind of a law through in order that the plan may be thoroughly tried out.

THE TARIFF BURDEN.

Times are fearfully out of joint yet. When everybody thought "Normalcy" was about ready to burst forth in full bloom, comes another report from the East of another big advance in prices of dry goods materials. A local merchant tells us he was in receipt of news last Wednesday from one of the biggest wholesale dry goods establishments in the country, the John V. Farwell Co., that advances were made on all cotton and woolen goods which would affect the selling price very considerably the coming summer and fall.—Blue Earth Post.

Didn't we tell you what would happen? The Fordney-McCumber tariff holdup is doing its perfect work.—Fairmont Sentinel.

Why not tell the exact truth about this condition of affairs, namely place the blame upon the robber manufacturers who are milking the American public to the limit. The people of this country are accustomed to paying without investigating, a fact well known to the manufacturers, and any sensible man knows that this condition rather than the tariff is responsible for the present price inflation in many instances. We would like to ask Frank Day to inform his readers how much the tariff has increased the price of clothing to the manufacturer, and how much of this increase goes back to the producer in the shape of higher prices for wool and cotton. This country has never prospered under a low tariff and no one knows this any better than Frank Day, erstwhile Republican.

DESTROYING THE BIG REDWOODS.

Fred Hadley, the plute who edits the Winnebago Enterprise, who is traveling in California, contributes the following paragraph to his newspaper anent the destruction of the big redwoods in the sunshine state:

"It is really a crime to cut these gigantic trees. There are only a few of them in the whole wide world, and there never will be any more such as these. We have slaughtered the bison and the passenger pigeon to extinction; we have decimated the other wild life of America, and now the redwoods are falling. If the people of the United States could but know of these trees, if the people only understood what their loss will mean, they would demand that Congress take action to perserve them and perpetuate them for the forthcoming generations and for the eternal glory of our country. But while the public remains apathetic, the lumbering companies are busy, and a real tragedy is being enacted in the name of the Almighty Dollar. Folks, its nothing short of a downright shame and a national disgrace! Are we so money-mad that we must sacrifice everything for a few more pieces of gold?"

HORNED JACKRABBIT.

Coincident with the report from Fairmont that Frank Day had purchased a pint of whiskey on a doctor's prescription, appears the following story in the Fairmont Sentinel, (lending color to the whiskey story):

Morris Raygor shot a jackrabbit Sunday. Nothing very remarkable about that, is there? But that isn't the point of the story. This jackrabbit had horns. It was on display at the gas engine company for two days, and today it was viewed as a curiosity by hundreds of school children. The kids say the horns are there. The horns are about three inches long, and about as big around as a lead pencil. One of the horns is pointed and the other is gnarled at the end. Mr. Raygor's fellow workmen first insisted that he had shot the wandering Silver Lake billy goat, but when he produced the rabbit they unanimously concluded that prohibition does work wonders. After viewing the remains, Mr. Raygors' fellow workmen at the shops agreed that it was fortunate that he was heavily armed when the horned patriarch of the rabbit tribe charged out of the underbrush.

Gran-Burtness Nuptials Weld Wednesday, Jan. 31

The marriage of John M. Gran of this city to Miss Olga N. Burtness, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Nels Burtness, occurred Wednesday, January 31, at the home of the bride's parents five miles east of this city, in the town of Smiley.

Marcus Evenson as best man and Caspara J. Gran, sister of the groom, attended the couple at the ceremony, which was performed by Rev. T. E. Sweger, pastor of Trinity Lutheran church.

By Rev. Chas. Gerlinger:

The Church is an army. Denominations are merely the regiments. Some specialize in one kind of tactics; the others in another. But all are on the march. Then there are the camp followers. They never really enlisted but wanted to go along. Sometimes they encourage the regulars and sometimes they are in the way. But they would not be in the way if they would get in the ranks. Armies today do not have much need of camp followers. They insist that all who join the march sign up and join in the fighting, because the march is only for the purpose of battle. Spectators are not of much benefit in battle—except [illegible] the news of the mistakes in [illegible]. Real soldiers are needed, soldiers who fight.

Boy Scouts to Have Free Use of Cottage at Lake

At the last regular meeting of the Elks Lodge, an organization which has always acted as godfather to the Boy Scouts, a committee was selected to co-operate with Scout officials to the the local organization in order to extent of giving all necessary aid to bring the membership up to the full quota. The boys were slightly behind in their membership dues and this was made up by the Elks, who promptly sent the amount to the national organization.

Among the important announcements which will give pleasure to the Boy Scout members is one to the effect that W. J. Brown will donate the use of one of his cottages at Union Lake for the summer outings of the Scouts. When not in use by the Scouts, the Campfire Girls will be permitted to make use of the cottage.

It means also a large saving to farmers upon their farm loans.

Under the pending rural credits act a farmer may secure $5,600 on a farm appraised at $50 per acre, providing his improvements are worth $2,000, and the carrying charge on that sum, which includes part payment upon the principal, will only be $336 per annum, the amount which he now pays at 8 per cent on approximately $4,000.

The loan may run for 35 years or may be paid up in part or in full at any interest paying period after three years.

Be not fooled by those who loudly proclaim that the farmers have had too much credit. This law was not designed to give away the state funds, but the real intent of the bill is to extend credit to those worthy of the same at a LOW RATE OF INTEREST ON A LONG TIME BASIS, thus placing the borrower in better position to arrange his business to conform to constantly changing financial conditions.

Such a law will benefit every person in this section of the state, and The Tribune earnestly requests its readers, whether they be farmers, merchants or professional men, to write the members of the legislature urging the passage of a rural credits law.

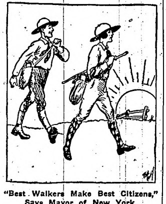
8,000 HIKING CLUBS IN GREATER NEW YORK

They Swing Along Highways and Through Woods in Groups of Varying Size.

New York.—One must walk nowadas to be in the swim. Statistics gleaned from the out-door departments of the newspapers, from the Boy Scout and Campfire Girls' organizations, from the Y. M. C. A. branches and kindred bodies, from scores of amateur athletic clubs and from the leading dealers in sporting goods, indicate that today there are no less than 8,000 hiking clubs in Greater New York, with a total membership of more than a quarter of a million men and women, who are keeping themselves in the pink of condition and experiencing the real joy of living by getting regularly out into the open country with no other means of locomotion than their God-given legs.



"Best Walkers Make Best Citizens," Says Mayor of New York.

The city of New York has taken official notice of the movement. On three occasions recently Mayor Hylan has congratulated the boys and girls of the public schools upon their enthusiasm in taking up the new sport of hiking. In his dedication of the great new public playground in the Bronx the other day Mayor Hylan extolled the athletic tendencies of the boys and girls and impressed upon them that there was no better or more profitable way in which they could pass their vacations and utilize their holidays than by the excursions into field and forest of their walking clubs. He gave the same message to the Amateur Athletic Union of Brooklyn a few days later, and when a club of East Side boys and girls visited him at city hall preparatory to a hike to the tomb of Roosevelt at Oyster Bay he assured them that the best walkers among them would make the best citizens.

Walk and Be Well

No less enthusiastic a champion of the walking game is Dr. Royal S. Copeland, city health commissioner. "The benefit to health and the safeguard to morals to be found in long walks," said Dr. Copeland in an interview, "are too apparent to speak of them. If one takes long walks alone it is well, for he walks the road of health, but if he takes long walks in company it is better for he adds the tonic of companionship to his exercise. Walking is the one form of exercise in which there is the minimum risk of overdoing it. In short, I consider walking the most beneficial of all exercises and it is never out of season."

"Never in my life-time," said Edward R. Wilbur, manager of a nationally known sporting goods store, "have I known such a demand as now for outdoor garments and shoes and stockings and appliances for the tourist's luncheon box. The rapid spread and tremendous popularity of the walking-club idea has no parallel in our experience..

"The hiker can make his requisite just what he feels like spending. Really, there are only two or three articles indispensable to hiking—thick walking shoes that allow lots of room, thick woolen socks and clothing that will give freedom of limb. He should have a canvas or leather musette bag, such as the soldiers used in France.

"To get the real benefit and joy out of hiking luncheon should be carried and prepared and eaten in the open. Bread and cheese, a few slices of bacon, some coffee, a can of condensed milk, and a cake of chocolate furnish high-powered fuel for the hiker and are readily and happily assimilated even by those who in their pre-hiking days were afflicted with digestive apparatus so feeble as to balk at crackers and milk. Fortunately for the hiker, he can replenish his simple larder at any cross-roads store and provide himself with the most nutritious and appetizing food in a form that can be conveniently carried.

"No single development in the problem of food transportation for the hunter, fisherman, hiker and all lovers of the out-of-doors can compare with the gift bestowed by the man who first found the way to make condensed milk, thereby putting a dairy in every man's knapsack. Before long there will be a national association of hikers, and Gail Borden will be its patron saint. Such an association could do much to encourage the spread of the most beneficial and universal of all outdoor pastimes, map out interesting routes, secure the establishment of shelters, rest-stations, and camp sites suitable locations, and insure the [illegible] of pedestrians on country

Pennington County Schools

HIAWATHA SCHOOL, Dist. 26.

School reopened Jan. 8, after a two weeks' vacation, which we all enjoyed. However, we are glad to be back to work again.

The pupils who received perfect attendance certificates for December are Marie and William Grundhaus, Elmer and Anna Johnson, Earl Turnwall and Esther Brown.

Those who have had perfect spelling lessons the past month are: Ruth Turnwall, Margaret Brown, Mildred Asp, Marie Grundhaus, Elmer Johnson, Arthur Asp, Erland Anderson and Eunice Gilmet.

The upper grades are very busy preparing for the spelling contest.

The artist studied last month was Raphael. This month we will study pictures by Corot.

The sewing class has been making handkerchiefs but will soon take up garment making.—Agnes Kvall, Secretary of Citizens' League.

A Winter Day—Early one frosty morning I looked out of my window and saw the frozen river covered with sparkling snow. On either side was a beautiful background of giant trees and sparkling underbrush. The trees, with their crystal mantle, which Jack Frost had so beautifully painted during the night, resembled millions of diamonds shining in the light.—Pat Beerbower, 8th Grade.

A Mountain Scene—In the background there is a low range of mountains covered with glistening snow. Far beyond is the blue sky with the fleecy white clouds floating gently over it. In the middle there is a thick growth of pine and fir trees. In the foreground there is the sparkling water, with the little whitecaps dancing here and there upon the waves.—Arthur Asp, 6th Grade.

SOUTH STAR SCHOOL, Dist. 166.

Blanche Lind, Teacher.

In the beginning of the school term a Litle Citizens League was organized. The following officers were elected: President, Eleanor Swanson; secretary, Lora Larson; treasurer, Luvern Mogen. Three committees were appointed, one on programs, one on games and one on cleanliness. The committee on programs gives programs which are selected, rehearsed and conducted by the committee alone. So afr two programs have been given when parents and others were invited. Members of this committee are Eleanor Swanson and Lora Larson. The committee on games is Anton Larson and Roy Mogen. The duty of this committee is to learn new games and teach them to the rest. Lufern Mogen and Ellen Larson comprise the committee on cleanliness. Their duties are many and varied as for instance they see to it that there are no dirty hands and faces and that the school room is kept tidy, etc.

The poem studied and learned in December was "A Christmas Carol," by Lowell. It seemed like everyone enjoyed this beautiful poem.

BANNER SCHOOL, Dist. 53.

Our banner month for perfect attendance was November when 14 pupils out of 20 received perfect attendance certificates. Those who received these certificates are: George Baker, Roy Baker, Caroline Baker, Leonard Sauter, Ellen Grinde, Clara Grinde, Olous Buringrud, Sigred Buringrud, Theodore Homme, Clarence Homme, Gustave Homme, Ole Homme, Ina McMahon and Olive Nelson.

Those who received perfect attendance certificates for December are: Olous Buringrud, Ellen Grinde, Clara Grinde, Melvin Grinde, Theodore Homme, Clarence Homme, Roy Baker, George Baker, Caroline Baker and Leonard Sauter.

Our first Play Day proved very successful in spite of the weather man's effort to stop it. It was too cold for any outdoor play, so we gave our indoor exercises and games.

We tied in a spelling match with District 28. Our visitors on Play Day were Mrs. Sauter, Mrs. Baker, Miss Bergrin, Mr. Hanson and Mr. Letnes.

Our Christmas Program—On Thursday afternoon (before vacation) our teacher shooed the little folks home. I knew what she was going to do, but oh, me, we could see nothing till evening. I worked hard all afternoon so I could get to school early. I always believe in being early.

I got to school about 7 o'clock and I went right in because I could not stand to wait any longer. Oh, I wish you could have seen it.

There stood our tree in a corner. It fairly glowed in its brilliant splendors. But that wasn't all. There were many packages under the tree which contained many secrets that had been carefully guarded for weeks.

Our boards were decorated with pictures of Santa Claus going down a chimney, of Santa Claus in a sleigh and of the Three Wise Men.

Then came our program. My, we worked hard on it, and I'm glad we did, for it was splendid.

My greatest surprise came when the presents were to be given us. Our teacher sat down near us and there was one minute of painful waiting and then who should come strolling in but Mr. and Mrs. Santa Claus! Weren't we tickled! We had never seen Mrs. Santa Claus. Then they gave us our presents. Mr. Santa Claus was quite irritated with Mrs. Santa Claus at the first because she gave him the names too fast and as he has a poor memory he forgot them and had to ask her over and over again.

Have you ever seen Mrs. Santa Claus? She is kjust as jolly as Santa Claus himself.

I wish Christmas came twice a year.

The Story of the First Christmas.

By an Eighth Grader.

Once upon a time there lived in a far away land of Palestine a Virgin whose name was Mary, and her husband whose name was Joseph.

The King of Rome had ordered all people to go to Bethlehem to pay their taxes. So Joseph and Mary went to Bethlehem. They could not find any room at the inns because there were so many people in the city, so they had to take lodging in a stable. It was while they were here that Jesus was born.

There were some shepherds near the town of Bethlehem who were watching their sheep that night when suddenly there appeared a star in the east. The shepherds knew that this must mean something so they talked to each other about the star. At last they became frightened and did not know what to do. Then an angel appeared in the heavens and bade them not to be afraid because the star told of the birth of the Christ child, who was to be their new king.

Soon there appeared a host of angels who sang, "Glory Be to God in the Highest and on Earth Peace and Good Will to Men." Then the shepherds went to Bethlehem and found the child. They gave him a lamb for a present.

There were also some wise men who had seen the star. They, too, followed it and came to the stable in Bethlehem. They offered presents of gold, myrrh and incense.

It is many years since that glorious night but we still give presents to show our love and kindness for one another.

FAIRVIEW SCHOOL, Dist. 56.

Clara Oski, Teacher.

It seemed quite a task to settle down to work again after a vacation, but after the first week everyone seems to have fallen back into the old path and all are even more enthusiastic over their work than before.

To make the "Eskimo' 'study of the primary grade more interesting, we have learned an Eskimo song and have the blackboard bordered with a drawing of snow huts, ice bergs and the like. It maeks it seem quite wintry, but as the weather is not severe we rather enjoy it.

The Little Citizens League held a meeting Jan. 13. A new chairman on entertainments was chosen, the former one having been recalled. It was decided that we have a candy pull to reunite again. It was held Saturday evening at the school house and was attended by a large majority of the members. The evening was spent in playing games, cooking and pulling candy, and lastly a light lunch was served and finished with eating the taffy. Everyone enjoyed teh evening greatly and showed that they were not only game in studies, but in recreation as well.

The attendance this month has improved greatly over that of previous months. I think we owe it to the weather conditions as most of the pupils have long distances to school and are unable to attend in bad weather.

We are really hoping that this section will claim a winner to compete in the spelling contest at Crookston Feb. 2.

The Star Light Reading Circle will again meet Feb. 2 after a period of almost two months. This school is usually the place of meeting.

We are wishing everyone as happy a New Year as we are having.

NEWTON SCHOOL.

The Little Citizens League of the Newton school had their meeting on Jan. 12. The roll call was answered by riddles and the program committee gave a cheer-up program which was highly appreciated by all.

The seventh and eighth grades are studying "Snowbird" and find it quite suitable ofr this time of the ear.

Lars Barstad, Willie Helgeland and Miss Shefveland attended the spelling contest held at the Banner school on Saturday Jan. 27.

Miss Selma Newton visited our school one day last week.

January has been a fine month for hard work and much has been accomplished. The activity and conscientiousness of the pupils please their teacher very much. Each one who daily does his very best is sure to succeed, but the one who gives up before his work is done fails. The pupils realize as well as the teacher that "Success is not gained at a single bound, but by a steady effort."—Mabel C. Shefveland, Teacher.

PLEASANT VIEW SCHOOL, Dist. 34

We have organized a Citizens League in our school. The following officers were elected: President, Bergena Rome; vice president, Lewis Mandt; secretary, Myrtle Mandt, and treasurer, Martha Singer. Committees were appointed as follows by the chairman: Program, Leonard Singer, Peder Mandt, Alice Anderson; Library, Thilda Stolaas; Health, Thelma Dale, Oliver Bakken, Ruth Syversrud. The committees serve for three weeks, and then new officers are chosen by the president. The president will give a report on the life of Abraham Lincoln at our next meeting Feb. 9. Patriotic exercises in the form of poems, songs and stories are being observed in celebration of Lincoln's birthday. We intend to make this a good league and all are anious to begin such work as will help make us better citizens.

Our sectional spelling contest will be held in Dist. No. 52. Bergena Rome and Lewis Mandt are the local winners.

Those who have received perfect attendance certificates are: First month, Helen Szymanski, Rose Szymanski, Ruth Syversrud, Selma Bakken, Alice Mandt, Annie Mandt; second month, Helen Szymanski, Rose Szymanski, Martha Radeck, George Radeck, Bernice Radeck, James Radeck, Ruth Syversrud, Gladys Syversrud, Selma Bakken, Myrtle Mandt, Alice Mandt, Oscar Olson, Annie Olson, Thelma Dale, Martha Singer, Leonard Singer, Peder Mandt, Eddie Olson; third month, Rose Szymanski, Helen Szymanski, Leonard Singer, Martha Singer, Myrtle Heden, Bernice Radeck, Martena Radeck.—Gunhild Haugen, Teacher.

WASHINGTON SCHOOL, Dist. 221

Clara Sorenson, Teacher.

Our Little Citizens League is doing good work under our new officers, Helen Wiken as president, Selma Stromme, vice president, and Ida Lokken, secretary-treasurer. Our program committee is preparing a patriotic program for our net emeting.

To vary our work we have had a series of contests. The winners are: Seventh and eight, geography, Helen Wiken; seventh, geography, Ida Lokken; seventh and eighth, spelling, Thelma Torkelson; second, spelling, Sophie Torkelson.

Those having perfect attendance for this month are: Helen Wiken, Margit Loken, Selma Stromme and Bert Torkelson.

On Feb. 14 we will give a rag ball social to raise funds for play ground equipment. Girls are requested to bring a rag ball, with their names in the center, and lunch for two. Everybody welcome.

LITTLE OAKS SCHOOL, Dist. 65.

Our local spelling contest was held last week and enjoyed by spectators. The following day a sleigh load of participants and patrons journeyed to the sectional "meet", of the Starlight Circle, where a hard fought battel took place. One of our pupils won by a close margin. We are "rolling 'em up" for further battle.

We are enjoying a good average attendance.

The sectional spelling contest was enthusiastically attended and much "peptimism" shown. The parents showed a great interest, one taking part in the written spelling test. We are glad to note "The Home Fires" so active.

Some very ecellent work was exhibited. Annie Rindahl, first, and Lillian Loylan, second, carried away the honors o the occasion.—Secretary.

AS OTHERS THINK

ERIE MAN GIVES VIEWS ON RED LAKE PROJECT

Editor of The Tribune:

I notice from the columns of the local papers since the hearing on the Red Lake project that outside of the small number favoring the project in the town of Hickory, those favoring the project have dwindled down to practically include those connected directly or indirectly with the Conservancy Board.

I notice in the issue of the Times of January 18th that Ellev Aakre is favoring the Red Lake project and is airing his views thereof, and is casting slurs upon those opposing it. The fact that the son of Mr. Aakre is employed by the Conservancy Board as secretary probably accounts for the interest of Mr. Aakre in pushing the project. At that I am somewhat surprised at the attitude of Mr. Aakre for the reason that at the hearing before the court, those opposing the project were asked to remain after Court adjourned to talk the matter over and all others were requested to leave the room. Only a few left and when it was discovered that Mr. Ellev Aakre was still present, he was asked openly if he was in favor of the project and his answer was that he was an objector. At that time it was believed by many present that he was in favor of the project because of his son's connection with the Conservancy Board, but he nevertheless made the above statement and remained at the meeting of objectors. The public can make their own conclusions.

Mr. Aakre goes on to state in his letter that he pays more taxes than those objecting farmers whose articles appeared in The Tribune on January 3rd. It seems to me that Mr. Ellev Aakre is going back to the time when the Declaration of Independence was written and when the constitution of the United States was adopted. At that time there were restrictions on the soverign rights of the people and the power to govern, and the right to vote was in the hands of the minority who had the required property qualifications. This country had several decades of experience before the removal of the property owned qualification for voting gave the manhood of the country practically uniform suffrage. Thomas Jefferson said that the people of the nation, as a whole, will always be nearer right than those who have a selfish interest prompting them, and Mr. Aakre can take this home to himself.

Mr. O. L. Dent, former referee in ditch matters in Beltrami county, pointed out that there are 487 miles of public drainage ditches in Beltrami and Koochiching counties and that a large proportion of these ditches have their outlet in Red Lake. Why are not those lands and the lands along the streams emptying into Red Lake assessed?

Practically seven solid townships in Pennington and Marshall counties opposed the project vigorously and only a small number outside of those holding jobs with the Conservancy Board are in favor of it. The farmers are assessed to death already for ditches, many of us having three or four drainage assessments before, mostly unpaid. Be fair and be on the square about this Red Lake River drainage project and any man can plainly see that the tax payers who are called upon to pay for it cant' afford it and don't want it at all.

Yours truly,
HANS C. SOLBERG.

Lumber Deliveries Discontinued

For the good of the service we have decided to discontinue the delivery of lumber on and after this date. This has been a very expensive service and the cost has had to be passed on to the customer. By coming prepared to take away your own orders, costs will be considerably lowered as it will no longer be necessary for us to maintain teams and trucks. This policy is in line with that announced by lumber dealers in many sections of the country in the interests of economy. It will eliminate a heavy expense and enable us to pass the saving on to our customers.

Roseau Man Wins in Wheat Contest

Wallace Miller, Roseau, won first prize in the acre Marquis wheat contest, samples of which are on display at the winter shows at Crookston this week. He grew 53 bushels and 38 pounds of wheat which scored 99.

The Spring Wheat Crop Improvement association of Minneapolis furnished $150 in prizes for the 10 best acre yields of Marquis wheat grown in 1922. Second in the contest was Alfred Carlson, Hallock, who raised 42 bushels and 39 pounds on his acre.

An exhibit of bread baked from various wheats was staged in connection with the wheat exhibits. Thirteen samples of bread were on display, baked by the Pillsbury laboratory. According to Bert Ball of the Spring Wheat Crop Improvement association, this is probably the first bread exhibit which has ever been held in connection with a wheat display of this kind. Bread baked from the Marquis wheat was a fine loaf, showing that Marquis wheat makes a very desirable flour and works well. Wheat of this variety, according to Mr. Ball, demands the highest premium. Kota wheat, a new variety, works well in the dough but fails to spring or expand in the oven. The flour has a yellow color, the loaf has a coarse texture and is about equal to the most inferior Minnesota or South Dakota wheat sold on contract grade. Kubanka durum is a high quality durum wheat, desirable for making macaroni but not adapted to bread making. It makes a poor dough, small sized loaf of very yellow color with characteristic cracks showing wheat gluten. A mixed durum wheat tested in the oven proved to be neither adaptable to bread making or macaroni.

Another variety of wheat which the wheat association is discouraging for the northwest section of Minnesota is Minturki, a Minnesota winter wheat. This makes flour of poor strength and color and is decidedly inferior to spring wheat. Mindum, or Minnesota durum wheat, is fairly good for macaroni but is not a wheat bread. Canadian Marquis, like Minnesota and Dakota Marquis, makes a flour of excellent strength and is strongly recommended by the spring wheat association.

The ill effects of weed seed in milling wheat was shown by one loaf of bread baked from wheat containing corn sockle. This made a heavy, dark loaf of doubtful digestibility. It is said that the weed seed shipped into Minnesota in wheat cars last year would fill 14,000 freight cars, all of which were badly needed to move the wheat crop to market.

Other winners in the acre contest were P. M. Cameron, Hallock, who won third prize; A. Wardeberg, McIntosh, fourth; Ed M. Johnson, Hallock, fifth; William S. Ash, St. Vincent, sixth; Boraas Bros., Hallock, seventh: Arthur Norem, Hallock, eighth; John Rydeen, Clearbrook, ninth, and Martin Manahan, Chatfield, tenth.

LENTEN SERVICES AT CITY AUDITORIUM

Following the custom inauguarated last year, Rev. Emil H. Kreidt of St. John's Lutheran church has arranged for a series of six sermons on Christian Truth. The services last year were held in Trinity Lutheran church. The active interest of the people at large and the favorable comments by not a few encouraged Pastor Kreidt to continue the plan and to expand it. He has secured the City Auditorium for the place of meeting, and the services of very capable men.

The sermons this year will present the general theme: "The practical value of Christianity for Man." Among the speakers engaged is Rev. H. F. Buegel of Grand oFrks, N. D. The Rev. Buegel is an elderly man, tried, and not found wanting, by the many years of his active ministry. He now holds the responsible office of Mission Director in the North Dakota and Montana District. The Rev. Buegel will preach the first sermon Feb. 21.

Rev. H. A. Nuoffer of Cass Lake has consented to preach the third sermon. On repeated occasions the Rev. Nuoffer has shown himself a capable preacher, well able to present his theme and to hold the interest of his audience. Two years ago he was honored with the office of Superintendent for the North Park Region Lutheran congregations.

Pastor Kreidt feels especially fortunate in securing the services of Rev. Erdman Frenk of Bemidji, perhaps the most brilliant of the young pastors in this part of the state. While a student at Concordia Seminary, St. Louis, Mo., the Rev. Frenk was engaged to lecture at Washington University on "Psychology of the New Testament." Thus he should give an instructive and interesting portrait of "Jesus Christ the Savior."

With the other speakers, who have already preached to large and attentive audiences in Thief River Falls, Pastor Kreidt feels that his Lenten Services have made a large step forward. All the services, naturally, will be held in the English language. The public is cordially invited to attend these services. Detailed announcements will be made at the proper time through the local papers.

The Lenten Season, commemorating the Great Passion of Jesus Christ, has for ages been looked upon as a call to mankind to "get closer to God." These sermons with their inspiring truth, presented by men at home in their topic and in the language as well will help you.

Ministerial Quarterly Meet Is Held at Mission Church

The ministers of the Red River Valley Mission Covenant churches held their quarterly meeting in the Swedish Mission church of this city. Every member of the congregation was present.

The conference began January 30 and continued until February 3, with three daily sessions. The first session was devoted to business affairs of the covenant and the following in discussing various themes of interesting character, pertaining to the welfare of the church and the spiritual life and growth of the Christians.

These discussions were the means of creating new thoughts and larger visions of what God is doing and will do, according to the great prophetic truths of the Bible. We are sure that those who attended these meetings went away with an inspiration and determination that the Bible is the divinely inspired book of God and within its sacred pages is revealed the ground, means and conditions which will determine the eternal state of man.

The conference sermon was delivered by Rev. C. W. Olson of Tein, Minn. He spoke on Acts 8:26-40: The obedience of Philip to the voice of God, the route he was to pursue and the grand results of his obedience.

The evening meetings were exclusively evangelistic and large gatherings turned out. The different pastors and field missionaries delivered addresses. The president of the Ministers' association, Rev. O. J. Lundell, presided.

If You Should Break Your Arm

DEFINITION
The practice of Chiropractic consists of the adjustment, with the hands, of the movable segments of the spinal column to normal position for the purpose of releasing the prisoned impulse there is a "power within" the body that mends the broken bone.

If you lacerate the flesh, there is a "power within" that heals the wound.

What is true of a broken bone or of a flesh wound, is also true of burns, scalds and bruises.

Chiropractic teaches that this "power within" is the only power on earth that heals, cures or mends, and that what that power cannot or will not heal, cure or mend, is beyond the power of anything on earth.

Chiropractic teaches that the power within moves the body, regulates the heat of the body, converts common food into living flesh and blood, develops the body from a single cell to an adult organism and reproduces the species.

It teaches that this power performs these physical functions by means of impulses sent over the nerves, and that when a nerve is impaired the impulses are interfered with and the result is called dis-ease.

This is what the Chiropractor does.

Employ none but a competent chiropractor.

Objectors Jubilant Over Decision of Judges Grindeland and Stanton Dismissing Huge Water Project

Opinion Is Outcome of Hearing Held in Thief River Falls December 12, When Hundreds Protested Its Establishment—Bitterly Fought Proposal Considered Unjust and Unwarranted by Jurists.

The petition of the Board of Directors of the Red Lake Drainage and Conservancy District for deepening the river and straightening its course, better known as the Red Lake river project, was denied last Saturday by Judges Andrew Grindeland and C. W. Stanton, sitting at Crookston. The case was made notable several weeks ago when a large number of objectors appeared in Thief River Falls to protest the injustice of levying assessments for questionable benefits to be derived from the project.

The dismissal of the entire proceeding brings to an end one of the most bitterly fought drainage propositions in the history of Minnesota and is an unqualified victory for farmers and land-owners of eastern Pennington county and along the Red Lake river, most of whom were opposed to the project in all of its essential details.

The dismissal documents handed down by the judges are most complete and cover all of the facts in the case. The jurists sitting in the case had evidently taken full cognizance of the fact that farmers and land-owners except those resident in the town of Hickory and vicinity opposed the establishment of the project. Community "Y" to Open Here Monday

75 High School Youths Already Hold Memberships. City Boosts Movement.

The Community Y. M. C. A. will open in rooms in the library building next Monday evening, the directors in charge having decided to lose no time in giving the youth of the city an opportunity to learn for themselves what a "Y" can do for them in the line of wholesome recreation, such as reading rooms, games and athletic diversions.

The box social held at the Auditorium Monday evening under the auspices of the women's fund raising committee was a success in every way and the undertaking netted the assiciation approximately $150, which increases the quota to about $600 altogether, enough to get the movement under way. Dinners given by various religious organizations of the city have aided the movement considerably. a goodly amount having been realized through this medium. Business men of the city also have given the Y. M. C. A. proposition hearty support and a list taken around last week was well subscribed to.

The clubrooms in the library building will be in charge of Clarence Pope, faculty member of the local high school, and all boys of the city over the age of 14 years are eligible for membership. Already 75 high school boys hold membership cards and it is expected that many more will join later on. Cards are now ready for distribution and all young men of the city who intend to join the community "Y" are urged to secure their cards as soon as convenient.

So far a considerable amount of gymnasium paraphernalia has been secured and will be installed in the clubrooms. These include parallel and horizontal bars, Indian clubs, boxing gloves, medicine balls, basket balls, etc., as well as other small games, chairs and tables. Everything possible has been done to make the rooms attractive to the youth of the city and it is expected that their interest in the movement will be aroused from the outset and the officials plan to retain that interest. As soon as funds are available to enlarge upon the present equipment, the purchasing committee will consider installing other forms of games, such as bowling, etc. This may also include the purchase of a radio set to provide entertainment for the boys during the evening.

A woman's committee, headed by Mrs. G. W. Booren as chairman, will be permanent, and has for itss purpose the raising of funds to keep the new organization going until the movement is placed upon firmer footing or until a building is erected and the association will come in for assistance from the regular Y. M. C. A. association.

Dr. O. F. Mellby heads a committee that will wait upon the Commercial club in an effort to secure the club's consent to use the athletic paraphernalia now stored in the Commercial clubrooms in the Auditorium. This would be added to the supply already on hand at the library.

Better Prices For Farmers is Aim of February Meeting

Leaders Back Move to Make Farmer's Dollars Worth 100 Cents Apiece.

The Northwest Agricultural Price Stabilization Conference, the single aim of which is to make the farmers' dollar worth 100 cents when used to buy necessities instead of 67 cents, as at present, will be held in St. Paul, February 27 and 28.

There will be a public meeting of farmers and business men at the Commercial cluf rooms Saturday afternoon at 1 o'clock for the purpose of selecting delegates to represent Thief River Falls at the Price Stabilization conference to be held at the capitol building in St. Paul, February 27 and 28. All who are interested in the movement to secure better prices for farm products are asked to attend. The St. Paul meeting has been called at the suggestion of Gov. J. A. O. Preus and will be attended by many prominent men of the country, including Andrew Mellon, secretary of the treasury.

Machinery to make the conference parallel, in point of scope and importance, the Conservation Congress of esveral years ago, was set in motion last week. The movement is fostered by the Farmer-Banker council, organized late in January and composed of two persons from each congressional district in the state, one an outstanding farmer, apopinted by J. F. Reed, president of the Minnesota Farm Bureau Federation, and one banker, named by the Minnesota Bankers' association.

Meet Lady Bruce of Clovercrest

The First Guernsey of the State

LADY BRUCE OF CLOVERCREST

Ladies and gentlemen. The Tribune begs leave to introduce Lady Bruce of Clovercrest, champion producer of butter fat in the State of Minnesota and one of the first ten Guernsey cows in the entire world!

Just get that straight and fixed in your mind: The whole wide world.

It seems almost a myth that Thief River Falls should be the home of the champion butter fat producer of the whole state, yet such is the case. Lady Bruce of Clovercrest, distinguished, undefeated and supreme, stands at the head of the class proudly flaunting her record of 710 pounds of butter fat for the year and daring any other prize bossy to equal it.

Lady Bruce of Clovercrest makes her home on the farm of F. B. Conklin, well-known breeder of Guernseys in this section of Minnesota and the possessor of the finest show animals in the state, who have won several blue ribbons at various National Dairy shows throughout the country. She is but three years old and has not yet arrived at the height of her career as a champion, and The Tribune does not dare venture an opinion as to how high in the legends of Guernseydom her fame will land her.

Suffice it to say, she may safely be placed as one of the first 10 Lady Guernseys in the whole wide world, and that's something to crow over when one hears and reads of the fame and reputation of dairy animals in far away Denmark, Scotland and Germany, where raising dairy producers is almost a religion with the inhabitants.

Lady Bruce of Clovercrest first saw the light of day on the Jensen dairy farm at Clearbrook. She spent her heifer days there and when one year old, Mr. Conklin fell in love with her and brought Lady Bruce to Clovercrest, where she has been hobnobbing with others of her kind ever since. Little did Mr. Conklin realize then the fame and glory the little lady was later to bestow upon her new owner. She looked innocent and insignificant enough as a yearling and nobody really expected any great things from her. But 710 pounds of butter fat! Thats' almost enough to garner fame for a pair of pure-breds. And Lady Bruce did it alone!

Champion boxers, runners, wrestlers, politicians, financiers and journalists go through many years of conditioning and training before they attain fame—if they ever do—but Lady Bruce broke a state record the very first year of her career.

Just take another look at Lady Bruce standing down there on the bank of the Red Lake River and see if you don't think she indicates champion caliber! If ever a young lady appeared proud and could look the world square in the eye it is the Lady from Clovercrest. There she stands as healthy as a Canadian maple tree, her sturdy supports firmly on the ground, ears pricked up and her little four-inch horns shooting defiance straight at you, challenging the world to dislodge her from her claim to the championship of the Great State of Minnesota. Lady Bruce is just as pure as the air she breathes, kind, loving and affectionate.

There are about 23 other Guernseys on the Conklin dairy farm and Lady Bruce shares the regular bed and board. There are no trimmings to the bill of fare of Lady Bruce, and she thrives on substantially the same food her 23 brothers and sisters subsist on. She doesn't lay claims to frills and fancies of her own and is the most democratic kind of a Guernsey you ever saw.

Lady Bruce of Clovercrest has one daughter, who also makes her home at the Conklin farm. The youngster possesses all the familiar traits and character of her famous mother and the indications are that she will develop into some champion herself.

The record made by Lady Bruce this year is considered remarkable in face of the fact that last summer and fall, during the busy season on the Conklin farm, she had to worry along with one milking a day instead of two, which is customary with heavy producers. The record was taken down by representatives of the State Dairy department, who have made semi-weekly trips to the Conklin farm to make tests and in order to make the record authentic in every way.

Jean Du Luth Cornet, a pure bred Guernsey from the famous Jean Du Luth farms near Duluth, last year sold at the National Dairy show for the snug and handsome sum of $7,500 in cold cash. This animal was not the possessor of a champion record yet she brought that neat sum last year when placed on exhibition. The Tribune mentions this detail so that some indication of the value of Lady Bruce may be gained.

All hail the glory of the Lady from Clovercrest! Standing at the head of the list of butter fat producers with a total of 710 pounds for the year, she deserves the plaudits of the multitude and The Tribune bows in humble recognition of the fame she brings to Thief River Falls and Northern Minnesota as The Home of the Dairy Cow.

Sapero Department Store Sold to Albert Lieberman

Well-Known Local Clothing Merchant Enters Ladies' Ready-to-Wear Field.

The Sapero Company, one of the leading Thief River Falls stores catering to ladies' ready-to-wear lines, this week passed to the ownership of Albert Lieberman, well-known Thief River Falls clothing merchant. Mr. Lieberman already has taken charge of the store.

C. S. Sapero, who has been in charge of the Sapero Company here for the past several months, will remain in Thief River Falls for several weeks closing up the affairs of the company here, after which he will go to the iron range to connect up with one of the other two stores of the concern.

The disposal of the Sapero company came as a distinct surprise to many in Thief River Falls, it having been announced three weeks ago that the company would enlarge and enter the department store field with the lines generally carried in stock by department stores.

Mr. Lieberman left Thief River Falls Sunday night for the twin cities on a buying trip, and will later visit the markets at Chicago and Cleveland, it being his intention to completely restock his new acquirement.

Chimney Fire Threatens.

The fire department was called to put out a chimney blaze yesterday noon at the home of Carl Hillard, 707 Knight avenue north. The department made two hurry-up trips to the Hillard home, the fire having started up again after apparently having been extinguished. No damage was reported.

Miss Dahlen Returns.

Miss Eleanor Dahlen, teacher in the public schools at Fosston, spent Saturday and Sunday visiting at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. S. Daheln, and to visit her brother, Stanton, who is ill at a local hospital. The younger Dahlen is, however, showing steady improvement and it is expected that he will return to his home this week.

It's a lovely world. Dudes are generally confined to society.

FACTORY CERTAIN AFTERMATH OF SUGAR BEET GROWING HERE, SAY OFFICIALS IN SPEECHES AT CLUB

Beet Growing Is Positive Cash Return Crop and Admirably Fits in With Regular Rotation of Crops Here. Declares H. A. Douglas, President of Northern Sugar Beet Corporation—This Section Has Proven Its Adaptability for Growing Beets of High Sugar Content.

President H. A. Douglas: "Demonstrate that you can—or will—grow sugar beets and a sugar beet factory would be a certain aftermath. You have the soil and the climatic conditions. Now show us that you will grow beets. It's the greatest cash return crop in the world and fits in with your regular order of crop rotation. The United States grows only one-fifth of its normal sugar consumption, which provides ready markets."

The most important gathering of farmers and business men in the history of Thief River Falls was held last Friday afternoon when approximately 350 persons gathered at the Commercial club luncheon and afterwards assembled in the City Auditorium to hear addresses by H. A. Douglas, president of the Northern Sugar Beet corporation; Earl C. Moore, agricultural manager of the Mason City factory, and W. H. Baird, general manager of the Mason City factory, and also Thomas E. Sands, freight traffic manager of the Soo Line.

Worst Blizzard in Years Brings Havoc to Roads

Traffic Completely Paralyzed When All Trains Tie Up During Storm.

No Damage Yet Reported But Snow Is Heavy—Mercury Steadily Rising.

Reports to Soo Line officials from St. Paul today state that the traffic tieup in the Northwest is practically complete due to the intensity of the storm yesterday, which is said to have been general throughout the entire north country. No trains moved in and out of the twin cities yesterday, as was also the the case at Duluth. One train which left this city yesterday tied up at Adams, N. D., after it was seen that it was impossible to continue the run to its terminal.

Thief River Falls was visited Tuesday by the worst blizzard experienced in years and as a result all railroad traffic in and out of the city remains paralyzed up to a late hour Wednesday. A heavy snowfall, accompanied by a 35-mile gale, has raised havoc with all forms of travel in and out of the city. It is reported that the storm is general throughout the entire Northwest.

No trains completed their schedule over the Great Northern railroad yesterday, southbound trains remaining at their terminals at Warroad and northbound trains staying at Crookston. The tieup on the Soo road was practically as bad, neither one of the fast trains being run over the Winnipeg division.

At an early hour yesterday morning the streets and sidewalks in the city were piled high with snow and the mercury fell to 25 degrees below zero. During the morning hours, however,

Odd Fellows Plan Erection of Lodge Home in Spring

At a regular meeting of the Thief River Falls lodge of Odd Fellows held last night at the lodge rooms of the order, a committee was appointed to look up a suitable building site, it being the intention of the local order to erect a structure that will provide more commodious quarters as well as furnishing room for possible other business institutions.

The local lodge has shown a sure and steady growth over a period of years and has completely outgrown the present quarters. The building now owned by the lodge is of brick construction and houses the Curtis Drug company, and occupies one of the best business locations in the city.

COURT AGAIN POSTPONED WHEN STORM INTERFERES WITH ARRIVAL OF JUDGE

The Febraury term of district court was today postponed until Monday morning, when the storm of yesterday compelled the Great Northern train from Crookston bearing Judge William Watts was compelled to tie up at Red Lake Falls and left his honor stranded there with no conveyance to take him to Thief River Falls to open court.

Jurymen in the city were excused and allowed to return to their homes until Monday. This is the second adjournment taken of this term of court, the first having been made necessary because of the illness of Judge Grindeland, who is now at his home at Warren.

Many Pennington Farmers at Show

Pennington county farmers were well represented at the 13th annual farmers' week and women's meetings of the Northwest School of Agriculture, which were held last week at Crookston, in connection with the Red River Valley Winter Shows. The meetings are an outgrowth of the farmers' short coures begun at the school in 1910. While no official registration was kept, the attendance exceeded all previous records. On the last day a special train on the N. P. alone brought in more than 450 men and women from towns enroute from Detroit to Crookston.

Diversified farming topics took up the major portion of the time at the meetings. The womens' sessions were devoted to home, school and community problems.

Prominent speakers, including Dean W. C. Coffey, Dr. Preston Bradley, Dr. Roy L. Smith, Dr. Chas. W. Gordon (Ralph Connor), Dr. E. C. Stakman, Prof. Andrew Boss, Prof. W. H. Peters, H. J. Hughes, J. S. Montgomery and others made the weeks' program of unusual value.

The winter shows included a large exhibit of pure bred livestock, the Minnesota Crop Improvement State seed show and the Northern Minnesota Poultry association poultry show. These exhibits were placed in three large buildings owned by the 2,000 members of the Red River Valley Livestock association without which an exposition of the size to which the Valley shows have grown would not be possible. No state aid has been asked for these buildings as they have been financed entirely through the sale of shares of stock of $10 each. purchased by progressive farmers and business men of 18 counties who are interested in the work that the Valley is doing.

Special committees from the state legislature spent one day in attendance at the meetings and shows. They were greatly impressed with the size and scope of its activities.

It is becoming increasingly evident that Red River Valley farmers are turning their attention to the practice of a more diversified system in which, of necessity, livestock has an important part. These annual meetings fostered by the Northwest School and the Red River Valley Winter Shows have proved and will continue to be an important factor in this development.

Sales of pure bred cattle and swine that were held showed that better conditions exist than during the past two years as reflected in the prices reached.

More Lasting Work Is Good Roads Aim

Real Purpose of Bond Plan Given By Commissioner in Fifteen Words.

Light on Most Important of Legislative Matters Presented in Paragraphs.

"Stop frittering away road money on endless repairs and put it into lasting improvements."

The whole purpose of first state highway bond issues was boiled down in these fifteen words by Charles M. Babcock, state highway commissioner, talking over the radio the other night.

"Plug the leaks of highway funds for constant patching and mending by building more and permanent improvements and the saving will more than pay the interest," he added. "There will be more good roads for public use all over the state and every year without a cent of increase in auto or road taxes. It's just a way of getting the most value for a given amount of money."

Seems to Be the Thing to Do.

A member of the legislature was at home on a week-end visit and here is what the local newspaper printed:

"John says he has been against the bonding proposition of C. M. Babcock and that he went down with the intention of not yielding on that point. But he says he cannot vouch for what he will do or what anyone else in the legislature will do, now that a convention of representative farmers from all parts of the state after passing resolutions against bonding changed their minds after Babcock talked to them for fifteen minutes.

" 'These men,' says John, 'could only stand the pressure for fifteen minutes before giving in. But the same fellows will kick a legislator for hot standing a much harder and more systematic pressure for fifteen weeks.' "

Cash payments of $877,866.22 to counties in trunk highway refundments and reimbursements from 1921 and 1922 taxes paid on automobiles are shown by official records. Auditors of counties entitled to this money will verify the statement to prove that the state has relieved the counties of the burden of improving and maintaining the expensive main highways.

Other like claims soon falling due will be met promptly, officials said, if loans of highway funds to other state departments as authorized by the legislature are repaid on time.

Many counties are using money returned by the state to speed improvement of local roads and others are reducing local road and bridge taxes.

Foes Are Twisting Facts.

False statements that higher taxes will result, that the highway fund is overdrawn and that no sinking fund will be set aside to pay off the bonds are being made by opponents of the highway bond proposals.

The bond plan is not a proposition of how much taxes but one to get the biggest results with money now coming in, highway officials assert.

Every dollar of motor vehicle tax receipts must go into the trunk highway sinking fund first, under the state constitution, and only after the necessary amounts are provided for bonds and interest can any amounts be used on the highways.

A pessimistic farmer insisting that the highway bonds would be paid from general tax funds learned that he couldn't lose anyway. Minneapolis, St. Paul and Duluth owners pay one-third of the automobile taxes, but nearly half or 46 per cent in general property taxes and therefore would be obliged to contribute even more to the cost of good roads in the country.

Constituents or Conscience.

A report from the capitol is that many members of the legislature are trying to decide whether to vote state highway bonds which they know ought to be authorized or to vote against the highway bonds to please a few letter-writing folks back home who don't understand and don't know that the bonds will profit them.

Surest Help For Farmers.

Good roads advocates everywhere point out that one of the surest ways to help the farmer is to build better highways to reduce his expense of hauling products to market and enable him to sell at top prices.

The Minnesota legislature will act on a plan to give the farmers of this state the use of more good roads without delay or any tax increase, according to highway officials. The plan is advanced as one which will benefit the farmers most and in many ways, raise the value of his land, increase his net returns from it and add to his comfort and prosperity.

Yet a few farmers are opposing the plan, it is reported, and urging adoption of questionable experiments.

Must Be More Reasonable.

Farmers everywhere in Minnesota are making demands on the state highway department and on boards of county commissioners for road improvements. Yet some of them fail to realize that the first necessary step is to provide funds.

Some are actively opposing the highway bond proposals which Highway Commissioner Babcock gives positive assurance will put the road program ahead five years and give every year the use of more good roads without any increase in taxes.

One suggestion is that the bond-opposing farmers are unreasonable.

Favored By Those Who Pay.

Representatives of all the automobile clubs in the state last week gave the state highway bond proposal a unanimous endorsement.

The action was rated significant because all trunk highway tax outlays are paid by automobile owners. Minneapolis, St. Paul and Duluth car owners pay about one-third of the money which must be used on roads outside these cities. A club official asked when the automobile owners want to pay for and speed the building of better roads through farming communities, why should the farmers object?

Lila Lee Pleased With "One Glorious Day"

Actress Delighted With Will Rogers, and Players and Director.

Lila Lee confesses that when she first started to play in the new Paramount comedy, "One Glorious Day," in which Will Rogers and herself are the featured players, she was at a loss to understand Will Rogers, who plays the leading part of Ezra Botts, a professor of psychology. The picture will be seen at the Lyceum theatre Friday and Saturday.

"Once, when we were about to start work," said Miss Lee with a smile, "Mr. Rogers cried: 'Knock on 'em!' I hadn't the least idea what he meant till he explained that it meant to 'get busy.'

"Another day he looked at some scenes in the projection room: 'Those are forked!' he declared. I looked at him in astonishment: 'What does that mean?' I asked. 'Oh,' he replied, 'that means, they're great.'

"I've learned that these are cowboy expressions and I'm getting so I can understand him better now. Mr. Rogers is one of the most charming men to work that it has ever been my pleasure to meet. He is so considerate and he keeps everybody in good humor. I almost laughed myself sick at times. Alan Hale, who plays the 'heavy,' is wonderful, too—and really, we've got a dandy company. As for our director, James Cruze, he is always kindness personified—so I'm very happy."

Miss Lee plays the feminine lead of Molly McIntyre with whom the quaint professor is deeply in love and too bashful to say so. There are many laughs and not a little pathos in the development of this unusual story.

A new bunch of critics are assuring us that Longfellow, Lowell, Dickens and Scott were just dubs. Of course, they were somewhat benighted—they did not think the highest reach of art was to describe a sewer or to make fun of marriage.

Rev. Buegel to Talk at Auditorium Feb. 21st

Wednesday evening at 8 o'clock in the Auditorium, Rev. H. F. Buegel of Grand Forks, N. D., will begin this years' series of Lenten sermons offered to the people of Thief River Falls by St. Johns' Lutheran church. In his sermon the Rev. Buegel will lead his hearers into the garden of Eden, portraying man in his first estate of holiness, perfection and bliss in the presence of God; man's fall into sin and from God; his loss of perfection and of Paradise, with its consequent dire results for the individual and the world at large; the utterly lost and hopeless condition of man under sin. Then he will lead his audience into another Garden: Gethsemane and the suffering Son of God, showing that God's plan for the salvation of man, as portrayed in the prophesies of Old, has been fulfilled in Jesus of Nazareth; that whosoever believes in Him shall be saved.

REV. H. F. BUEGEL.

Daniel Webster, our greatest statesman, has said: "The Bible is the book of all others for lawyers as well as for divines, and I pity the man who cannot find in it a rich supply of thought and rule of conduct. If we abide by the principles taught in the Bible, our country will go on prospering and to prosper; but if we neglect its instructoins and authority, no man can tell how sudden a catastrophe may overwhelm us and bury all our glory in profound obscurity."

We share the conviction of Webster, and therefore it is our sole aim to present to our audiences the great truth of God's Book. He who hears the Rev. Buegel Wednesday evening will hear a firm believer in the authority and the imperishable value of the Bible for man. His sermon will be a Bible sermon.

The Rev. Buegel is a preacher you will want to hear. His thirty-two years as a missionary in Canada and North Dakota, and as pastor in Grand Forks, have brought him into close touch with the needs of humanity; he has shared the joys and sorrows of high and low, of rich and poor; he knows their problems and their difficulties. Now, after thirty-two years, he knows more firmly than ever that the greatest message he can bring to man is the Gospel of Jesus Christ. Make an effort to hear him.

The Rev. Buegel has risen high in the councils of his church; for fifteen years he was Superintendent of Congregations in his territory, and for eight years the vice president of the North Dakota and Montana District; at present he is Director of Missions in North Dakota and Montana.

The people of Thief River Falls are cordially invited to attend the Lenten services at the Auditorium. Familiar Gospel Hymns will be sung by the audience. No admission charge will be made, but an opportunity will be given for a free-will offering to defray the expenses. The entire service will be conducted in the English language.

A lot of people are always taking God into their confidence, and they cannot understand why He does not reciprocate.

Loyalty to the Service

Almost daily something happens that strikingly proves the loyalty and devotion of telephone employees to the public they serve.

Storm, flood, fire, tornado, explosion, wreck, or disasters of any kind, are met in a manner that emphasizes the spirit of service underlying the daily work of telephone people.

Each year the younger men and women who come into the service to help meet the growing demands made upon the telephone, are imbued by the other employees with the spirit of devotion to the public welfare.

This loyalty, this thought of "service first," is more than devotion to an organization. It is devotion to the whole telephone democracy, to the millions of people who form the telephone-using public.

Lecture on Christian Science

Entitled

Christian Science: The Interpretation of Truth

Delivered at the Church Edifice, First Street and LaBree Avenue, Monday, February 12, by Frank K. Leonard, C. S. B., Member of the Board of Lectureship, Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Mass.

Whenever I hear or think of that quotation from John, "And ye shall know the truth, and the truth shall make you free," I likewise think of the question asked of Jesus, "What is truth?" And perhaps the most interesting thing, so far as I am concerned, in the entire quotation, is the fact that Jesus did not answer that question. He practically said: If in view of everything that you have known to be done in Judea under my ministry you are still asking the question, "What is truth?" then no words would ever convey one single item of information on that point. My conviction is quite well borne out by the fact that when John the Baptist again became doubtful, after he had admitted that Jesus was the Redeemer who was looked for, and sent to Jesus to find out whether or no he was the one they had expected, Jesus did not answer directly. He did many things, and then he said: Now, go and tell John what I have done, then let him find out for himself who I am; and on the basis of what Jesus had accomplished, John knew that he was the Redeemer.

Now, Truth is one Truth. In my recent lecture tour in Europe, a very prominent divine in the Lutheran Church remarked that it was dangerous to say God is Truth, because he said, there are so many truths that it would be a question as to which one God is. That was a theological opinion, but it was not Christian. All the human opinions on the face of the earth as to what constitutes Truth may be wrong. There are millions of human opinions, but when we begin to limit Truth, when we begin to say that there is this truth and that truth and the other truth, we are getting away from the Bible fact, which tells us that there is just one Truth, and that this Truth is God, the infinite One. In order that any one may be free from any kind of discord, he must know the truth that proves the discord untrue. In other words, nothing can really exist without Truth.

Truth is the same yesterday, today, and forever. Truth never began and it never will end. Truth is always good, it is always pure, it is always lovely, and it always accomplishes just one result, and that is the fruitage of God. Humanly speaking, we could not build this building if we did not have Truth, for, humanly speaking, nothing on earth could be accomplished were it not for Truth. Why, as a matter of fact, you cannot even lie until you know the truth. Have you ever thought of that? Because a lie is a misstatement about the Truth. And so you see the whole of our investigation and research along all lines will lead us straight and absolutely to the contemplation of Truth.

We must answer, each of us, and for ourseves the question—what is Truth? We must every one of us prove in ourselves and to ourselves and for ourselves the freedom from everything untruthful which a knowledge of the Truth that is God brings to us.

Truth Comes to Human Consciousness.

Christian Science came into this world as it came, not accidentally. It did not come under the impulsion of human opinions at all, but it came because away down underneath with every one in this world is a desire and a hope for Truth. And so, naturally, sooner or later, Truth began to appeal to human consciousness, in a way it could apprehend until Truth finally sprang forth arrayed in all its beauty and glory and majesty, the manifestation of God himself, in order that Truth itself should be known, and our acceptance of it be justified by reason of what it accomplishes in the world.

We have had a wonderful experience with Truth in our own day as it has been presented to us. It has been a marvel to those who have known it why or how any one could question the fact that Christian Science reveals the Truth. This has been questioned because it has been questioned as a revelation. It has been questioned as a revelation because it has been questioned as having had a revelator; and the whole thing has been questioned because the world, until Christian Science brought the fruitage of Truth into it, has not comprehended Truth at all in its spiritual sense; because men have turned away from the teaching and preaching of our Lord and Master while he was on earth, and have gone away after strange teachings and divers theories and beliefs.

Christian Science brings this Truth to us in such form and manner that the little children understand it. They understand it so well that they are every day of their lives doing wonderful things to bring out the realization of Truth.

I just want to tell you one thing that came under my notice. A little girl seven years of age had gone out to play with another little girl. She came in in about half an hour with a face which showed conclusively that she was not very happy. Her mother asked her what was the trouble. The little girl just shut her lips together and went right to her own room, sat down and played with her own things. She had been in there about 20 minutes when she came out with her eyes wide open and said, "Why, mother, what do you think? I almost forgot that we are both God's children." Then she went back to play with her companion again.

You see, she had analyzed Truth without human or personal distinction, and when she had done that, Truth appealed to her as belonging to every one in exactly the same quantity and quality that it belonged to any one, therefore she recognized that what she had been doing was to limit Truth in seeing only herself as God's child. It then occurred to her if one of them was God's child they both were, and as soon as she saw this the disturbance was healed, the anger and resentment disappeared, her thought had been cleansed and purified, and with the simplicity of a child she said so frankly and went back to her playmate.

Now that ought to teach us how we may use the truth of being to bring about a cessation of discord and dissension, and to establish a universal brotherhood of man wherein there shall be no distinction, no line of separation, no difference of any kind, but we shall all be working for the universal good. That is the mission of Christian Science in this world.

The only way the Christian mission can possibly be accomplished is by the spreading of the truth about God, about Jesus the Christ, about man and the universe, so that the whole world shall understand and comprehend the infinite God and the infinite capacity and ability of His children to go to Him in any of their misunderstandings, whether these are called want or woe, sin or sickness, and find for every one the help which the Bible teaches us God has for us.

The Coming of Christian Science.

One of the questions that has been asked very often is why we should assume that this revelation had come through a woman of whom no one had ever heard up to that time, rather than through some of the men or women who had consecrated years of their lives to the study of the Bible. Well, really, we cannot understand that question. Only God can answer that. But we can say as did Christ Jesus: "I thank thee, O Father, Lord of heaven and earth, because thou hast hid these things from the wise and prudent, and hast revealed them unto babes." Mrs. Eddy assuredly conformed to what babe means in her loyalty to the teachings of the Bible, in taking them as being absolutely true.

When other children were hearing the little fairy stories and things of that sort, to which we all have loved to listen, Mrs. Eddy was hearing from her mother the history of things recorded in the Bible, the stories of true events. Her mother did not tell her about what this or that one said; she was constantly telling her stories of their works, and what the Word of God accomplished, so that Mrs. Eddy was familiar when a young girl with all the activities recorded in the Bible, to her they were not mere historic accounts or events, they were real, living, actual facts, the proofs of God's allness. She clung to them as she grew up; then when she had reached maturity she met with an accident which the doctors said would result fatally. All of her friends accepted and believed this, and her minister stopped to pray with her in the morning, believing, as they all did, that she would not be on earth to be prayed with at the termination of the morning service. After he had done his kindly loving work for her, she asked those with whom she was staying to give her her Bible, and to leave her alone with God. They did as she requested, and when the minister stopped again later to see if he could be of any assistance, Mrs. Eddy herself opened the door to him and stood before him for the first time since her girlhood, perfectly well, normal and natural in every particular.

The Bible tells us of many happenings of that kind. Yes, and there are many events of that sort about which we know that have happened outside of Bible times. But what is the difference between those and Mrs. Eddy's case? This—the others all accepted their healing to be a manifestation of a special dispensation on the part of God, and the next time they had a pain they took a pill. They thought their healing was a special occasion and that a special privilege had been given to them to be specially made well by the Word of God. Mrs. Eddy did not accept this. We know in Christian Science that there is no such thing in heaven or in earth as a special dispensation, because if we believe what Jesus said, we know he said that if we believe what Jesus said, we know he said that if we believe on him, we shall all do the works he did. He intended, therefore, to say that it was not a special dispensation which had enabled him to do these things, but that it was a universal gift to men when they were willing to follow God in his footsteps as he had taught them to do. Mrs. Eddy did not accept her healing as a special dispensation, for she knew that she had been made well through the activity of the law of God, and that she had a right to her birthright, the knowledge of God and Jesus Christ whom He had sent, which would give her dominion over the earth and the fullness thereof, and take from her every sense of fear that God might be absent, or that there was another power to which she might be subject, therefore that God might not be omnipotent, omniscient, and omnipresent. Then she became a student night and day, week in and week out, month in and month out, year in and year out. She studied. And what did she study? The Bible. It was the only book she had to study. No commentaries would help her, nothing but a determined and consecrated effort to know the truth of being in its spiritual import would suffice to bring about the knowledge which she felt was her birthright and which she was entitled to have. So she studied and studied and studied, and then after a while her old theological belief, instead of being a cloud, became simply a mist, and then that grew less and less, until finally she began to get hold of the light of God in its eternal activity, so that she was able to heal others even as she had been healed, and thus she learned to know God even better. She found herself able to tell others how to heal as she had been healed, and then her revelation fulfilled itself when it came to her so clearly that she was abe to put it down in words that you and I can grasp and understand and comprehend, so that as we take what she said and go to our Bible with it, we, too, find the spirit of the Word of God which enables us to worship Him in spirit and in truth, and so fulfill His law.

So we know by results that the revelation came to Mrs. Eddy and through her to the whole world.

Impartiality of Truth.

Please do not think that we Christian Scientists imagine that we have a peculiarly close position relative to God. Do not think for a moment that we are indicating or mean to indicate that we think God loves us better than He does anybody else. He does not. His attitude towards all His children is the same, and never changes. Truth is irresistible, irrefutable and irreversible and is equally applicable by all. The only distinction to the human sense of things might be illustrated in the difference between perhaps a dozen students in a classroom in school. One grasps the fundamentals, the law, the progression and the rule, and so brings out a successful answer to his problem. Another does not grasp it so well, and fails to get a complete, correct answer. The others have not grasped it at all, and they do not get any answer that shows any intelligent knowledge of the subject whatever. But the principle is there, and when one uses it correctly he finds himself in direct line and he is able to solve the problem and to get the right answer.

So it is just a question, my dear friends, of service. It is a question of using what you have or abusing it, or turning your back upon it. We find that it is essentially true that we have departed far from God. I always wondered why it seemed to be that there began in the year 300 such retrogression from the use of the Word of God for the solving of all problems. But when I learned, as I did in my trip in Europe, that Constantine, crowning himself as the vicegerent of God on earth, never became a Christian, never laid down his false Gods, and that the Christian people of that day did not ask him to, did not expect him to, but followed him just because he was a successful fighter in war, I could understand then why at that time and period the Christian people began to find themselves incapable of understanding the law of God sufficiently to make it operative in the meeting of their necessities and desires.

One thing you may rest assured of. Your application of Christian Science must be honest from the inside out. It does not make much difference what you say if your speech is not the manifestation of what you have accomplished, what you know you are capable of accomplishing, when you are obedient to the Bible command wherein it is said unto us, "Let this mind be in you, which was also in Christ Jesus." You see that it requires something of us in order that we may get this mind of Christ, because the Bible says, "Let this mind be with you, which is also in Christ Jesus." And so it requires and demands of us that our human theory and opinion shall be set aside, and that we shall no longer glory in what we call diversity of opinion, but that we shall glory in the single purpose which brings out the one Truth, the one God, and the one Christ.

The Bibe the Guide.

The Bible to the Christian Scientist is not essentially a Church book. Of course, he uses it in church—but it is also to him a work book. To the business man it is a business book. To the housekeeper it is a book of rules telling how to keep house comfortably, pleasantly and harmoniously. To the child in school it is the textbook which teaches that child how to think. And to every man, woman and child on earth it is the foundation of right thinking wherein we may find our freedom.

Christian Science is a field for everybody on the face of the earth upon which to get busy and work out his own salvation. We have not been accustomed to think that the laity should work particularly hard on religious subjects, because a man has sometimes thought that he was a pretty good Christian if he kept a pew in church, saw that his family attended regularly and he himself occasionally when the opportunity seemed ripe. He would go and he would listen to the result of another man's hard labor and work, and come away and nod his head, "That was a pretty good talk." He would feel that he had done his part of the religious work until he again associated himself with other members of his church in its meetings.

But, my dear friends, there is a great difference between creed and religion. Religion demands of us that we shall work constantly and continuously to think right, and consequently to do right. Well, one might say, it is pretty hard work to be a Christian Scientist. Consider, however, your human experiences, and all of the human differences between persons, and you will find it is pretty hard work not to be one. The fact is that you have had enough trouble in the experience you have had, and you would like to change it if you could. We have all had that suggestion. No, it is not hard to be a Christian Scientist; not as hard as it is not to be one.

Where do you start to be a Christian Scientist? With every right thought you think. That is your start. Therein is to be found your progress, and in the successful attitude of always thinking right do you find the key of heaven. You have had the thought that heaven is afar off, and yet, every time you use the Lord's Prayer, what do you pray? "Thy kingdom come. Thy will be done in earth, as it is in heaven." Have you meant it? When you talk about "Thy will be done in earth, as it is in heaven," have you meant it? Have you ever stopped to think whether you meant it or not? Has it ever meant to you that you are praying that there should come unto you and through you and in you such a consecrated knowledge of God that you would stop thinking and doing wrong, and think and do the right and that would bring what has been termed the millennium here,—in other words, the kingdom of God and His righteousness on earth as it is in heaven?

Our Lord and Master saw the necessity for it, so he taught us all to pray that prayer, and he did not mean that we should pray for it to come at some other time. One thing we must learn is to know that we are not praying for a kingdom that is yet to come, but we are praying for that knowledge of God which brings that kingdom into our midst in proportion to our right thinking.

Christian Science and Prayer.

But it has been said that Christian Scientists do not pray. Why, the whole activity of the Christian Science movement is prayer. It is entirely prayer. You know that the Bible says that we are to pray without ceasing. Now, you ask some Christian of the orthodox churches: "Do you know that the Bible says that you are to pray without ceasing?" And he will say, "Yes." Then you say to him: "Do you do it?" And he will say: "Why, no, of course I don't, I have to take care of my house, I have to take care of my business, to keep my books, to do my stenographic work; I have all these things to do and I could not do them if I prayed all the time."

I want to say that Christian Science teaches us, beyond preadventure that we must pray without ceasing, and that there is no such thing as the possibility of true success unless it is predicated upon constant prayer.

The trouble is that we have a wrong conception of what constitutes prayer. We have thought prayer to be simply a petition to God to do this or that, or to give this or that, or to take away this or that. To be sure, the Bible says that God is the same yesterday, today, and forever, without variableness or shadow of turning. Nevertheless, in the human misapprehension which surrounds the term prayer, it has been constant appeal to the Unchangeable to become the very essence of changeableness.

Now, just to illustrate it, let me ask, have we ever thought how strange it would sound if we were suddenly endowed with the power to hear all of the petitions called prayer which are sent up to God at the same time? For instance, here are two perfectly sincere Christian business men in the same city. Their stores are on the same street in the same block and they are side by side. One sells umbrellas and rubbers and the other sells spring bonnets. One man prays for rain, and the other prays for fair weather, and what is God going to do?

That is not the kind of prayer that Jesus used at the tomb of Lazarus. He did not ask God if God were willing that Lazarus should live. He simply said, "Father, thank thee"—and then on the foundation of this thanks unto God he turned to the tomb and said: "Lazarus, come forth": and Lazarus came forth.

Now, the greatest book of prayer that there is in the whole Bible is the book of Psalms. We all know that David had been wonderfully blessed: that he had more opportunities to serve God than it seemed possible for a human being to have: then he began to be pretty proud of David: he began to think that David was doing a lot of these things instead of God's doing them, and the result was that he began to slip backward and downward until he finally got down into the mud and mire of disloyalty to God but that if we turn in the right direction we shall find God standing by our side giving us, in proportion to our willingness to accept the Christ mind, relief and surcease from the discord which has environed us. And so in the very depths of his wretchedness and misery, David found God again. If we will take the Psalms we shall see how full they are of praise, how David glorifies God, how he recognizes that all there is is the manifestation of God in His great consideration even for the sons of men in their striving to work out their salvation. To be sure, once in a while we find a psalm that is pretty doleful—that is the human side of David—but he always gets hold of it in the next psalm and his prayer then is more joyful than ever. So it shows that he recognized that thanksgiving unto God is real prayer; and that indicates to us that there is nothing so infinitesimal in our daily occupation than we may not praise God for it.

I want to tell you—it may not interest the gentlemen much, but it will interest the ladies—that we can praise God in washing dishes. How? By being happy that you have the dishes to wash and the ability to wash them, rather than getting mad because you have to do it. In every human experience we can praise God because every blessing flows from Him. He is the Father of light, and every good and perfect gift cometh out from Him unto His children, and for the service of the sons of men when they are willing to use them.

Christian Science and Business.

We have heard a great deal of the discord surrounding us, that we are in the midst of the greatest financial depression the world as a world has known in history. Everybody is worried—that is, no, not everybody, but everybody who is not a Christian Scientist is worried, and perhaps a few of the Christian Scientists are, too, because we find ourselves at times looking on the doleful side of things.

Some person maybe asks the question: "Do you use your religion for the solution of your financial problems?" We must assuredly do, and why not? Well, then some one of you says that the Bible says that the Son of man had not a place to lay his head. Yes, it does say that, and on the basis of that we have been taught from generation to generation that Jesus was poor beyond the expression of words. But if we are thoughtful, and become familiar with the conditions and circumstances of the age in which he lived, we shall see that he simply made reference to the fact that like all religious teachers of that time he wandered continually from village to hamlet, doing the work of a man of God as he saw it, and resting peacefully with some true believer wherever the shades of night found him; because the Bible tells us that at the time he made that statement he was clad in a seamless garment, the most expensive form of clothing that they knew in those days. Poor, Why, the riches of Jesus were beyond human computation or expression. He made the greatest demonstration of provision the world has ever known anything about. I am going to tell you just a moment how he did it.

It was at the time when Jesus stood as usual discoursing to the people, and one of the disciples came up to him and said in substance: "Master, the collector for Caesar's tribute waits without and wants his money." And what did Jesus do? Did he dismiss the concourse of people and gather the disciples together to see if amongst them they might be able to raise the pittance required so that Jesus might go on raising the dead? Isn't it strange that the incongruity of the two beliefs has never appealed to us as it does now? This is what he did. He did not dismiss the people at all. He just stopped for a moment and said to one of his disciples: "Peter, you go down and cast in your line and the first fish that you get, open its mouth and there you will find a piece of money which will be for Caesar's tribute."

A lady in Kansas City said to me one time she was glad I spoke of that, because she had always thought that that passage meant that Jesus told Peter to go down and fish, and that Peter went down and fished long enough to get fish enough to take up to town and sell for money enough to meet the demand of Caesar's collector.

Well, as a matter of fact, is there any other interpretation to it when we come to know the spirit of the Word as Christian Science gives it to us? A person asks a Christian Scientist: "Do you believe that that thing actually happened?" "Absolutely." There is no question about it whatsoever. It is absolutely proof to us when there is a time when we seem to be called upon to be obedient to the demand of owing no man anything save to love one another, that we can take the word of God and find the wherewithal to do it if we glorify God and cling to Him everlastingly.

What do you say? You say that your money will do just such and such a thing, just so much, and that is all that it will do. Well, so long as you count your dollars that way that is all they will do for you, there isn't any question about that. But do you remember the multitude which Jesus fed with the few loaves and fishes? Do you remember that five thousand had all they could eat, and that after they had finished there was more left over than they had when they started?

Oh, yes, you say, but that was Jesus. He said that if we believed on him we should do the things that he did. Are you going to let God be true and believe it, and let every man be a liar, as the result of the human theory of limitation?

I want to tell you a little experience of my own on the question of finance that will probably be helpful. I had at one time a salary of one hundred dollars per month. I was always rather methodical about such things, so I took my hundred dollars and I put it down here, and on the other side I put house rent and clothing and food, and incidentals, and my little innocent amusements, and then church—when I got down to church I didn't have anything left, the other things took the whole hundred dollars. May I say—and I say it without criticism or intentional criticism—that oftentimes the penny or the nickel in the contribution plate represents the thought of the man who has put everything else down and the church last. But I did that for a while and then it began to worry me: in other words, a knocking at my thought said to me: The only reason you are upon the face of the earth is because of what Christian Science has done for you, and yet you are putting the church last; and after a while I saw it, and then I took a desperate plunge; and I turned it around and put the church first. And I put down for the church what seemed to me a perfectly enormous amount—yes, and I put it in, too. I did not just put it down, I put it in. I did not change my method of living. I was not conscious of having made any change whatsoever; but at the end of the third month I found that I had paid all my bills, I had given to the church what I had pledged my own conscience to give, and I had five dollars left over to put in the bank.

Now, then, what was the difference in the two methods? In the first I trusted my God and I found the limitation removed and in this present-day crisis it is for the Christian Scientists to put trust in their God and go on with joy and happiness in the realization that the inexhaustible treasure of God is at their command, until they stop counting their dollars, and begin to count their blessings, and the result will be that Love "will life the shade of gloom" and for all "make radiant room, midst the glories of one endless day," as Mrs. Eddy has taught us in the "Communion Hymn."

Christian Science is the open way for us to come out from "the shade of gloom" to find the real, legitimate, lovely peace which passes understanding, wherein God is glorified first, last, and all the time.

Synonymns for God.

Mrs. Eddy has unfolded to us a marvelous knowledge of God in the synonymns which she has given in "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" for the word "God." Many people have thought that they did not believe in God, but every one believes in God when he knows what He is; and so these synonymns which Mrs. Eddy has given to the world would eventually have been sufficient to have saved the entire world if she had never written another thing. And I am going to speak briefly on a few of these, in order that we may have the blessing which comes to the Christian Scientist, who knows these synonyms. They are not unusual, except in perhaps one instance, but they are exceptional in the enlightenment which they give us as to what God is.

Now Mrs. Eddy, in using these synonyms, does not limit or consent to the truth of the statement that there are two kinds of love, for instance; one that may turn into envy, murder and hatred; and the other the love which Jesus Christ showed when he was enabled to say of those who were attempting to destroy him: 'Father, forgive them; for they know not what they do."

Mrs. Eddy teaches us that God is Life. The Bible teaches us that God is Life, says so in so many words—Life, that is without beginning or without ending; Life, which manifests itself to be the eternal activity and creator; Life, that we are all longing and looking for. Any one knows that God and Life are one, and we are all working for Life—we all believe in Life; and that is why we are working for it, and so because we believe in Life, we do believe in God.

I have spoken to you of the teaching that God and Truth are one, and we do know that nothing on earth can be accomplished if it be not for the realization of Truth which is changeless; and because we all do believe in God.

Then Mrs. Eddy teaches us that God is Love, the Love which Jesus showed in that hour of great testing and tribulation, and when we acquire that depth of Love we have reached a place—and not until them—when we can love our neighbors as ourselves, and when we find our own in establishing another's good.

Then Mrs. Eddy teaches us that God and Principle are one. A person when he hears that statement very often will say: "Well, now, that is one of the objections that I have to some of the teachings of Christian Science. It takes my God away from me, and it gives me nothing but an ephemeral theory that I am to take and believe in."

The Bible says that God is Life. Do you think that Life is a person? The Bible says that God is Truth. Do you think that Truth is a person? And the Bible teaches us that God is Love, and you know that Love is not a person. It is the impossibility of the finite grasping the infinite that makes the appeal to some of us in a strong way humanly that we want a God who is like ourselves. We want to think of a man sitting on a throne in a place as a judge; and we cannot have that kind of a God, my dear friends, if what the Bible teaches us about God is true, because the Bible teaches us that God is omnipotent, omniscient, and omnipresent, All-in-all, and we know that no human sense of person can possibly be omnipresent, or All-in-all.

Mrs. Eddy teaches us that God and Principle are one, and, as I say, that seems to be an abstract statement, but it is not when we understand it. What is it that always brings to a successful issue, if properly used, every problem? Is it [illegible]? No, it is the principle of mathematics which underlies all mathematical problems on which the superstructure of all harmonious action is builded, and the result is the correct answer. It is in this method and manner that Mrs. Eddy uses the statement that God and Principle are one. She means that God is the foundation, the literal foundation we build the superstructure wherein God, man, and the universe are coincident and in co-agreement, all of them manifesting eternal Life, Truth, and Love, which constitute God.

Mrs. Eddy also teaches us that God and Mind are one. That has been a controverted point, perhaps more so than any other of Mrs. Eddy's teachings. I don't know why. There isn't anything new in that statement or teaching. She has not propounded anything new for our acceptance in teaching that God and Mind are one.

What does John say in opening his gospel? He says this: 'In the beginning was the Word, and the Word was with God, and the Word was God." On a simple analysis let us see where that statement leads us, so far as the foundation is concerned.

What is the word? The word is the expression that accompanies or precedes the thought. Thought is the activity of Mind. Therefore, because this is true, Mrs. Eddy's statement would be equally correct if it were used to say that in the beginning was Mind, and Mind was with God, and Mind was God—and then we instantly see why it is implored of us that we should let that Mind be in us "which was also in Christ Jesus," and we see what our Master meant when he said that it was not he that did these wonderful words but that it was the Father working in him who accomplished them. And, incidentally, therefore, in further corroboration of the correctness of this teaching, let us revert to the first chapter of Genesis, wherein we read: "God said . . . and it was so": and we know that the spoken word is the expression of the thought which goes with it, and thought is the activity of Mind.

Therefore, it is not an abnormal, it is not an abstract statement to say that God is Mind, and when we come to know that God is the Mind of Christ, then we know that our God is omnipotent, omniscient, and omnipresent; that He is the same yesterday, today, and forever, and without variableness or shadow of turning.

It has been said also of the Christian Scientists that they are not Bible students, that they devote all of their time to the study of Mrs. Eddy's works. We may think we know some one in the Christian Science church, or attending the Christian Science church, who does that; but such a one is not a Christian Scientist. Mrs. Eddy gained her whole revelation from the Bible, and Christian Scientists are Christian Scientists only as they know the Word of God and are able to analyze its spiritual import and meaning as we find it in our Bible; and when we do that with the aid and illumination of the Christian Science because we are striving to follow the Word of God to its ultimate demonstration and proof, and nothing less than that constitutes real, legitimate, lovely, Godlike Christian Science.

Understanding Life.

I have called attention to the Biblical teaching that God is Life, and because God is Life it is natural and normal that all of us should be striving to know Life and striving to demonstrate life. That is the reason that a calendar is such a liar. When it says life is born, it lies; it lies when it says that it is a year old: it lies when it says it is forty years old; the calendar lies when it says that it is dead. It never did tell the truth and it never will, because it tries to fix Life between the point called birth and another point called death. The time for us to refuse to have anything to do with the calendar is when we begin to think, not waiting until our hair is white or gone. Begin it and cling to it, and keep on clinging to the thought that it does not make any difference to us what the calendar says, that we know that God is Life: and that man, the image and likeness of God, knows that He is not a God of the dead, but a God of the living, and that man's birthright is Life.

Now we Christian Scientists do not claim that we have yet reached the point where we completely overcome what is universally termed sin, disease, or death, but we do call attention to the fact that according to the returns of the 1910 census—I have not been able to get the figures yet of 1920—that during the twenty-five years preceding that time there was an average increase of longevity of sixteen years, and that was the first twenty-five years during which Christian Science had become universally known and was being practiced the world over. In the first twenty-five years of this knowledge of the allness and changelessness of God as Life in our feeble grasp of it, it could have produced such a condition as that, we know that, as we come to a better, and a higher, and a holier, and a purer knowledge of God, we shall continue to grow in longevity until we shall again have upon the earth the age of the antediluvians; and then if that sense of limitation will pass away, we shall know God and Jesus Christ whom He hath sent, and to know Him is eternal Life, as the Bible teaches us.

That age of the antediluvians has been an unhappy feature for the natural scientists. They could not explain it away. They could not get around it: but recently they decided that they could get around it, for just before going to Europe last spring, a little magazine published in New York was sent to me in which the editor expressed himself as delighted to think that at last the scientists—not the Christian Scientists, but the natural scientists—had found the explanation for the age of the antediluvians. The magazine went on to say that they had resolved,—or rather had determined, after all these ages of research that the only measure of time which would mean a month, and that therefore in these stories of the age of antediluvians, wherever the word "year" appears, there should be substituted the word "month"; and then it went on to give an illustration. It said, for instance, these stories tell us that Adam lived to be nine hundred and thirty years of age, and the word "month" being substituted, and those months being resolved into years by the division of twelve, it would show that Adam lived to be seventy-eight years of age which was rather a close approximation to the theory of three score and ten being the natural life of man upon earth.

Now, that sounds quite logical, and coming from the natural scientists it is bound to have a good deal of force. But there are one or two little things that interfere with the acceptance of that theory and I want to call your attention to two of them. In the same story in the Bible where they teach us that Adam lived to be nine hundred and thirty years of age it also tells us that when Seth was born Adam was one hundred and thirty years of age. Call that months, resolve it into years, and it shows that Seth was born when Adam was ten and one half years of age: and he already had two children.

It is even worse with Methuselah, because the Bible says that when Methuselah was born his father, Enoch, was sixty-five years of age, and reading that in the same way it shows that when Methuselah was born, Enoch, his father, was five and one half years old.

Is it not amazing that every attempt on the part of human theory to explain away the almightiness of the Word of God and its truth always slays itself, because it is not and cannot be logical; but when it is presented to us as it should be, the logic is clear to us and brings to us the thought of the old patriarch, who cried to us, "Turn ye, turn ye from your evil ways: for why will ye die . . . ?"

I have been much interested in an advertising sign that is liberally sprinkled all over the United States. Part of the legend of that sign is this: "Eventually, why not now?"

That is the question which Christian Science is asking. Eventually you will turn then why not now? I want to say that nothing that we ever found good in our own experiences, theories, or beliefs, but that we shall find when we come to grow to a knowledge of God and our Lord and Master, wherein there is no limitation in our progress, except about His ability or His willingness to help.

We are no longer to think that the Word of God is given just to heal from sin, but we shall know that it is given to heal from every one of the ills to which flesh is heir. We shall find coming to us more and more a knowledge of the almightiness of God, and the more we know He is almighty the less we shall be concerned with the human theories, and we shall learn that there is no power apart from God that can thwart those who have the wish and desire to make the measure of the children of men unto eternal, everlasting Life.

We shall find that the more we turn to know God as Christian Science teaches God to be, the more loving we shall be, the more consciousness of Life we shall have, the more Truth we shall discern, and as every step presents itself unto us, the more we shall become conscious of the Principle of right thinking, so that we can make no mistake, but shall go on with the light which never lost a case which came to it for healing; and the more we cling to that, the more we shall have that Christ-mind which enables us to do for ourselves and for our brethren in this world the healing from every discord that seems to afflict us.

"Thy kingdom come.
Thy will be done in earth, as it is in heaven."

ASKS RATE EQUALITY FOR POTATO GROWERS

Steps to obtain for Minnesota potato growers either a lower freight rate or a relief from the [illegible] transportation discrimination [illegible] taken last week in St. Paul. [illegible] last week unanimously [illegible] lution asking the Interstate [illegible] Commission to order a reduction in the rate on potatoes. The resolution was inspired by reports of a one-fifth reduction on potatoes moving from inter-mountain states to terminal markets.

N. J. Holmberg, Commissioner of Agriculture, and other farm leaders, are demanding that there be no such reduction, unless similar slashes are made for potatoes moving out of the Northwest.

A POPULAR VERDICT.

In denying the petition of the Board of Directors of the Red Lake Drainage and Conservancy District for establishing the Red Lake river project, Judges Andrew Grindeland and C. W. Stanton have handed down a popular verdict and one which will meet with the approval of the public in general and particularly those whose lands are most directly affected.

The Tribune hastens to commend the fine sense of justice which is embodied in the findings of Judges Grindeland and Stanton. It is a gratifying example of justice staying the hand of tyranny, which in this case had made a colossal attempt to inflict unjust taxation upon a people wholly unable to bear the burden.

This newspaper will not enter a further discussion of the merits or demerits of the project, these having been thoroughly gone over in former news reports and in published articles written by men well informed on the subject. It can be stated, however, that an unwarranted and atrocious attempt to compel a small minority to shoulder the major portion of the cost of a tremendous undertaking, calculated principally to benefit greedy and selfish interests, has been severed at the jugular vein and now lies a dormant mass of procedure.

For some time past the praises of the proposed Red Lake drainage project have been sung in the ears of interested farmers and landowners by newspapers and prominent and influential men of this section of Minnesota, all of whom were unable—or unwilling—to fathom the depth of the monstrous proposition. They would, without mercy and without ceremony, require the residents of the area tributary to Red Lake and Red Lake river to pay the price while they themselves enjoyed all the benefits from the proposed project, which was to be provided by the hard-earned dollars of the men and women who have made the east country everything it is today.

The tentacles of the Red Lake river octopus have been shackled and its hulk placed in a straight-jacket, never again, except under a plan of just apportionment, to rise and threaten the peace and calm of the community, never again to defile the pure waters of the Red Lake river, wherein it dwelt for so long.

To the hearing held in Thief River Falls several weeks ago came streams of farmers vigorously protesting against the assessments for benefits, which they knew were unjust and unreasonable. Many of these farmers were making "the last stand" out there and pleaded for the cause of justice to prevail—and won.

That's about all there is to it. There really is no more, except that The Tribune wishes to congratulate those stalwart and red-blooded pioneers from the eastern frontier for the valiant battle they have fought and for the victory they have won. They can now go back to their homes, better men because of the fight. As Cromwell once said: "Place your trust in God, but keep your powder dry."

As its share of the honors, The Tribune feels content with the knowledge that it fought side by side with the victors and was on the battlefield when the skirmish ended.

THE SUGAR BEET MEETING.

The sugar beet meeting held at the Auditorium last Friday afternoon was an apt and healthy demonstration of the earnestness and desire of the residents of this section of Minnesota to inaugurate and introduce a new industry—the growing of sugar beets.

And The Tribune feels that it is not over-stating when it remarks that we have a knack of "putting things over" once we make up our minds. It is now assured that northern Minnesota will go into sugar beet growing as one of its mainstay crops, just as much so as alfalfa, clover or potato growing. We are great people up here for trying out new things and we are willing to give sugar beets a whirl this time because we feel confident that we have the country to grow them and the farmers to keep the industry growing.

Northern Minnesota is going to demonstrate, as President H. A. Douglas suggested, that we can grow sugar beets just as well as can Colorado, Montana or Iowa, and thereby keep prosperity at home and make it a part of the community.

The Tribune isn't going to grab on to the sugar beet industry and say that it will completely revolutionize farming in northern Minnesota, because this newspaper confidently believes that our country is stable enough with the crops now grown here. We have forages, dairying, small grain growing and potato raising as prime crops right now, but by adding sugar beets to the list The Tribune feels that the list of crop rotations will be complete.

Perhaps one of the greatest new industries in this country is sugar beet production. Sugar beets have worked wonders in many sections of the United States and have placed otherwise non-prosperous communities in the prosperity class. It has done that much for parts of Montana and Colorado, and this newspaper believes that it will add immeasurably to northern Minnesota's reputation as a food growing section.

One important factor in the sugar beet industry that should not be overlooked is the stability of the sugar industry from the standpoint of the law of supply and demand. Not every section of the country can grow sugar beets the way we have shown we can grow them here. President has stated—and he ought to know—that four-fifths of the sugar consumption of this country must be imported. That isn't the case with wheat, potatoes, corn and many other varieties of farm products. Wheat is a world commodity and can be grown in almost any country in the world, which is also true of most of the other above-mentioned crops.

Therefore, sugar beets present to us an unusual opportunity to demonstrate what we can do. Men who know have informed us that we have the land and climatic conditions for us to go ahead.

The only question now seems to be: Will we do it?

The way applications are coming in for allotments of acreages incates that we will answer "Yes" to that question in a way that there is no mistaking.

BRINGING BACK THE DOLLAR.

Governor Preus, as chairman, has invited the governors of North and South Dakota, Montana, Iowa, Illinois, Nebraska, Kansas, Wisconsin and Michigan to meet at the state capitol this month in conference.

The Northwest Agricultural Price Stabilizations Conference, the single aim of which is to make the farmers' dollar worth 100 cents when used to buy necessities instead of 67 cents, as at present, will be held in St. Paul, February 27 and 28.

For months past there have been conferences and confabs, consultations and whatnot, but the dollar is still hanging by the "skin of its teeth," hardly worth half its normal value when used in the purchase of necessities. We have heard much talk and more bunk about bringing back the dollar, but it is pretty generally agreed that conferences won't do it. It may inflict no harm to attempt it however, via the jawbone route, but it seems to The Tribune that something else, more concrete and certain along the line of price reductions, should take form.

Find out why the international harvester trust must have the same price today for a binder or a potato planter as they received in 1918 or 1919.

Determine the reason for the shoe manufacturers asking $7 and $8 for footgear this year when they received no more for their product in war times. Ask the clothing manufacturers why they cannot make up a suit of clothes for less than $35 or $50. They know they are robbing us, and they will continue to do so until the government steps in and takes a hand in the colossal holdup.

The coal barons are exacting their $18 a ton for coal when half that amount would be sufficient. Let's not continue to let them tell us that strikes, shortages and increased costs of production demand that they receive these fabulous sums for fuel.

The Tribune could go on indefinitely pointing out the high spots in our economic fabric, but what's the use. It's been done so many times before that it seems like a waste of time to keep up the barrage.

If the conference of governors shall bear fruit, it should commence somewhere and end somewhere. Say, start with the harvester trust, jump to the clothing manufacturers, then to the fuel barons. Price reductions will not come until it can be proven that they are taking unfair advantage of our patience—and incidentally our pocketbooks.

More power to the Price Stabilization Conference and less to the polite money-grabbers who are still declaring huge dividends and taking immense and unheard of profits. The biggest eye-opener in the world is due to come and The Tribune wouldn't be surprised to see it pop most any day.

The greatest industrial octopus in the world—the Standard Oil—profited to the extent of almost $900,000,003 in 1922. Its' pretty hard to conceive of hard times in a country that houses such a concern, yet that is what they "earned" in the lean times of the past year.

Somehow or other, hard times don't exactly fit in with news like that, and the Governors' Conference should bear this in mind.

BEAUTY ALL AROUND US.

Thousands of wealthy tourists travel long distances to see the Berkshire Hills of Massachusetts. At their best the Berkshire Hills are no more beautiful than the pastoral landscapes of Minnesota or the wooded hills of the north country. The much advertised Palisades of the Hudson hold nothing in scenery lovelier than the gorge of the Mississippi between the twin cities. Few views in the world have so much impressive beauty as that of the Mississippi at Winona. The beginning of making these scenes known is the appreciation of their beauty by the people of Minnesota. And the commercial value of the beautiful as applied to attracting non-residents is far exceeded by its practical use in solving the ever present problem of keeping the young people happy and satisfied.

A generation ago the French made an investment in the re-organization of Paris upon the basis of modern art productions. The scheme adopted was comprehensive, ranging from the marvellous collections of the Louvre and the National Library, which are open free, to the theaters, the restaurants, and the dressmakers of the boulevards. No one can estimate the harvest France reaps from these sources. And it is new money that is thus brought in. All of it remains in France. Though artistic in nature, the French recognize the commercial value of art.

A conservative estimate states that the yearly expenditures of American tourists in Europe exceeds one hundred million dollars, a drain on American finances that up to the time of the World War was one of the large contributing factors in the so-called balance of trade.

There is no doubt that the big question in rural communities is how to make life attractive. The telephone, the automobile and now the radio have done much to retard the alarming flow of population into the cities. In these days there is no reason why the grounds around the farm house should not be as attractively planted as those of the city man of equal income. The beautification of towns through intelligent planning has a dollars and cents value as has been recognized by scores of communities in Minnesota who have turned unsightly surroundings into beauty spots.

ANOTHER IS SKEPTICAL.

Editor Tribune:

I have read with much interest the articles written by those who are opposed to the Red Lake River project. It is clear to me that the many fine theories in favor of the project are slippery plans. It may be that things will turn out the way the theories indicate and it may not. Many fine theories are slippery as the fish. By grabbing a live fish you may hold it and you may not.

Taxpayers cannot always depend on state officials to do things for them. I do not mean to say that state officials are generally dishonest; they may mean it well, as I believe most of them do in this cose. But having associated mostly with those who are in favor of such a project, they naturally come to look more upon the advantages to be gained than the harm it may do.

As an illustration to show what can be done by the assistance of state officials, I shall mention what has been done at two points along the Mississippi river.

Sandy Lake in Aitkin county is about one-half mile east of the river. A small stream connects the two. About 15 years ago there was built across that stream a very substantial concrete dam with a good sluice that could raise the water to about 12 feet. The dam was built by state officials and cost the state about $125,000, as near as I can remember. A state observation station was built near the dam and a man was hired to keep the station in good order and watch the dam the whole year round. Among his duties was to measure the rainfall and snowfall, keep a record of the temperature winter and summer, etc., matters of value to nobody but state officials.

One day I asked the man in charge what that dam was good for. To my surprise he answered bluntly: "I don't know."

He had been with the crew that built the dam and had been the keeper of it for six years, so I thought he ought to know. A little later he remarked that they floated logs through the dam every spring and summer.

The remark explained, of course, the whole secret. The dam was doing good for no one but the Weyerhaeuser Lumber company. When log-floating time came the man in charge was ordered to close the sluice. When the water was high enough to float the logs, he was ordered by the state officials to open the sluice and the logs came thundering through the dam and into the river. The flooded stream and lake flooded much fine meadow for the settlers living near by. They complained to the state officials but got no reply.

Can anyone doubt that the $125,000 dam was built exclusively to help the lumber companies float their logs?

The explanation the state officials gave out was that the dam was built to regulate the flow of water in the Mississippi, but everybody knew that the water was never regulated except for floating logs.

A similar dam was built across a small stream some miles west of Grand Rapids in Itasca county. When the log-floating time came, the water was "regulated" there, too.

State officials of all kinds are good to have in many cases, but they must be watched.

Respectfully,
A. K. LOCKREM.

BOY, PAGE SENATOR HANSEN!

Editor The Tribune:

Your appeal to farmers, merchants and everybody has been read, and I would like to answer in your open forum.

When the local paper of a community will first do all it can to defeat a champion of the farmers' cause, like it did at the last election, specially at a time when there is such an important bill as the rural credits law could be passed, and then to elect a banker who is a stockholder in a member bank of the Federal Reserve bank, and expect him to work for a bill to give the farmers low rates of interest and long time, is ridiculous. I for my part don't care what they do any more. The loan company can take my farm any time they want to. They will also have to pay the taxes, and I can any time find a chance to work for my board, which is more than I have made farming. The bankers are having a big convention at the capitol and they will tell them what kind of a law to pass, without the farmers interfering.

Prize Beet Man Speaks of Crop

Alfred Flattum Clears $50 Per Acre on Plot Planted During 1922 Season.

Believes Crop Well Adapted to Northern Minnesota and Pennington.

Alfred Flattum, Pennington county sugar beet raiser who produced 18 tons of sugar beets last year on a five-acre plot of ground, which for sugar content tested the highest of any grown in the United States, according to reports, told The Tribune this week of some of his experiences in bringing the new crop into being. Incidentally, Mr. Flattum gave this newspaper some enlightening information about beets and the adabtability of the crop to Pennington county.

In the first place, it must be stated that Mr. Flattum is extremely enthusiastic over sugar beets and will triple his acreage this year, intending to plant at least 15 acres into the crop. He started two years ago with but three acres and, like every new proposition, Mr. Flattum stated that he had much to learn. There were many ups and downs, but after the smoke cleared, the grower had produced eight tons of beets on the three acres, which were sold at the Chaska factory at the regular price.

The following year—1922 — Mr. Flattum planted five acres into beets and his experiences of the previous year stood him in good stead for he increased the production, and from the five acres harvested approximately 18 tons. All of which goes to show what experience of one year had taught him. The first year Mr. Flattum depended altogether on second hand information, admitting that he knew but little about growing sugar beets. He secured all bulletins and literature known to the industry and made a study of sugar beets down to the last analysis. Last year Mr. Flatum secured the services of a Polish family to assist him during the growing season, with great success.

One of the most valuable lessons learned, according to Mr. Flattum, is the conditioning power of sugar beets. "It's the greatest thing in the world to clean land," said Mr. Flattum, "and I've never seen anything like it in all my life. Take that land which I had planted into beets two years ago. You should have seen the wheat field I had on it last year. Threshermen told me that it was the finest stand of wheat they had ever seen, even better than some of the wheat seen here in the banner year of 1917, when good wheat was the general rule. Up here in this section where we are molested more or less by obnoxious weeds we need something like beets to clear the land of the pests, and I consider sugar beets as that thing."

Mr. Flattum believes that spring plowing is best for sugar beets and stated that was what he did last year, whereas the year previous he had plowed his land in the fall. Spring plowing, he said, has the effect of holding the foul seed in check until the beet plant gets a start.

It's like the case of the sheep killing the butcher, for after the sugar beet plant gets an honest start in life it will kill off anything, sow thistle and all forms of weeds notwithstanding.

Mr. Flattum, as said before, is enthusiastic over sugar beets and likes to talk about them to others contemplating planting them this year. He stated that had not the heavy rains raised havoc with his acreage last year, he would have increased his beet crop by several tons.

In summing up, the grower admitted that the raising of sugar beets meant work, and he agreed with the line of talk given by the sugar beet factory officials at the Auditorium last Friday, but said that anyone who really wants to make a success of the venture can do so once he makes up his mind. "Profiteering" to the extent of $50 per acre on the patch put into beets last year doesn't look at all bad to Flattum and he feels confident that inasmuch as he could do that while still "green," he can do ever so much beter when field men and instructors arrive here this year to do the coaching.

Flattum will grow wheat on the land he had planted to beets last year and he figures that he is going to show all concerned what beets will do in the line of conditioning land. He invited The Tribune reporter out to his place to watch him "nurse" his wheat land along this year. The latter intends to take advantage of the opportunity, and also to "look over" his 15-acre beet plot this year. In fact, the reporter feels duly flattered to be invited to view the plant of the grower which produced the prize beets of the entire country.

Trade 1918 War Savings For Treasury Certificates

Secretary of the Treasury A. W. Mellon has today released the following statement regarding exchange of 1918 War Savings Stamps for new Treasury Savings Certificates:

"Final reports as to exchanges of 1918 War Savings Certificates for the new Treasury Savings Certificates are not yet available but reports received ot date show that issues of the new certificates on that account already amount to over $65,000,000, representing about $80,000,000 in maturity value. Exchanges are still coming in steadily and will reach a considerably larger figure when the returns are all in from postoffices and banks. This satisfactory response to the treasury's special exchange offering indicates that the new certificates are meeting a real demand and figures well for continued sales during the coming months.

"Out of the $638,000,000 or thereabouts, of War Savings Certificates of the series of 1918 outstanding when the present operations began, the total redemptions, including the $65,000,000 exchanged for Treasury Savings Certificates, had reached about $500,000,000 (maturity value) by January 31, 1923. On this basis and according to the best estimates which are obtainable, there are matured War Savings Certificates with a maturity value of about $133,000,000 still outstanding. Holders of these certificates are urged to present them promptly either for cash redemption or for exchange into the new Treasury Savings Certificates. Registered certificates must be presented to the postoffice where registered, but unregistered certificates may be presented at postoffices throughout the country, Federal Reserve Banks and branches, or the Treasury Department at Washington, while banking institutions generally are undertaking to handle such transactions for their customers."

Red Lake Drainage Bill Is Killed in State Legislature

Senator C. L. Hansen, Marius Waldal and W. J. Brown Appear Before Drainage Committee.

The Red Lake Drainage Bill, of which Senator F. L. Cliff of Traverse county was the author, was last week killed in conference before the proposed measure reached the floor of either branch of the legislature.

The express purpose of the law has not been established, but it is presumed that it was aimed to make the Red Lake river drainage project workable and it is thought that it had for its object the framing of legislation which would enhance the chances of the project going through. The dismissal of the entire drainage proceeding, however, by Judges Andrew Grindeland and C. W. Stanton at Crookston Saturday would probably have nulled the effect of the law had it passed.

Senator C. L. Hansen stated this week that he had received 76 letters from various objectors to the proposed bill, residing in the area affected, and was prepared to do his utmost to defeat the measure in the event it reached the floor of the senate.

Senator Hansen, Marius Waldal, member of the house from this district, and W. J. Brown, attorney for the objectors, appeared before the senate committee on drainage and vehemently protested a favorable report on the measure in face of the almost unanimous opposition of the farmers and land-owners residing in the drainage area.

Mr. Brown returned to Thief River Falls Tuesday morning from St. Paul where he had spent several days in the interests of the drainage objectors. A similar bill introduced in the house by Representative Neumann, also of Traverse county, was killed in conference.

Court Kills Red Lake River Drainage Petition

The huge Red Lake river project, estimated in the report of the United States Board of Engineers for Rivers and Harbors to cost approximately $779,000, has been hovering over the heads of residents of the area affected for some time past and several thousand dollars have been spent in preliminary surveys, estimating, etc., hundreds of witnesses have appeared at the hearings in opposition, and bundles of letters filed with attorneys for the objectors, all vigorously protesting the injustice of the entire undertaking and requesting its dismissal.

It is believed the decision by the judges in the case will meet with the general approval of the public as well as a large majority of the farmers and land-owners subject to the assessments, in the event the proceedings were affirmed.

It is apparent from a perusal of the memorandum prepared by the judges that they took into consideration not only the fact that the country to be assessed already is heavily burdened with drainage taxation and assessments, but that these were aimed at a class which could never hope to receive the major portion of the benefits, whereas the burden of paying fell upon them to a large extent. The point of facts raised by the jurists considered that the actual benefits resulting from the proposed project would be less than the cost of construction and the damages involved and that the report of the viewers was unfair, unjust and arbitrary and would impose a burdensome and unwarranted assessment upon many of the tracts of land involved.

It will be remembered that at the hearing held in this city, counsel for the objectors stressed the fact that at the hearing at which the petitioner, the Drainage Board, was created, it was understood that the apportionment of the cost would be approximately as set forth in House Document No. 61. This first hearing was attended by several hundred of the settlers whose lands were sought to be assessed. The later plan, however, to make no assessments against water power companies, either developed or undeveloped, but to rely upon water rentals after the completion of the project to pay their share of the cost of the undertaking, was found contrary to law and wholly illegal as set forth in Sec. 15, Chap. 13, Special Session Laws of 1919, of the Minnesota Legislature.

W. J. Brown, counsel for the objectors and who led the forces opposed to placing the burden upon the settlers and land-owners, had collected a mass of evidence and secured numbers of witnesses willing to testify to the unfairness of the entire proceeding, at the hearing held in Thief River Falls, and an exceptionally strong appeal was made before the judges presiding. Many of the farmers stated on the stand that in the event the petition were affirmed they would be compelled to leave their lands as they would be placed under too heavy a burden were the assessments allowed. Attorney Brown made an eloquent appeal in behalf of the settlers and stated that in the event the petition were granted, the apportionment of costs approved by the War Department engineer in Document No. 61 should prevail. Mr. Brown is entitled to great commendation for the able manner in which he handled the case from the very outset and for the great interest he took in seeing to it that the side of the farmers and land-owners was fairly presented to the court.

The Tribune herewith presents the full decision of Judges Grindeland and Stanton, as well as the memorandum attached, which follows:

1. That the actual benefits resulting from the proposed improvement will not be greater than the cost of the construction thereof and damages.

2. That the actual benefits as shown by the report of the viewers are unfair, unjust and arbitrary and would impose a burdensome and unwarranted assessment upon many of the tracts of land involved.

From the facts as hereinbefore recited and for the reasons stated in the memorandum appended hereto, which is hereby made a part hereof, the Court finds as conclusions of law,

That the petition herein should be denied and this proceeding dismissed.

It is so ordered.

Stay of thirty days ordered.

Dated February 10th, 1923.

By the Court,
A. GRINDELAND,
C. W. STANTON,
District Judges

Memorandum: It is with no little regret that we make the foregoing order of dismissal of this proceeding. The public improvement sought is vastly important and much effort and a considerable expenditure of money has been devoted to preliminary work and in providing the means, through both federal and state legislation, to make it possible to carry out the project.

It is our opinion, though, that the conclusion is inevitable from the record now before us that the establishment of the project cannot justly be made in the manner now contemplated. It throws the burden of the entire cost upon the lands included in the viewers' report, while the conceded facts are that a considerable part of the entire assessment is for benefits which are not special to the lands assessed, but general to the large area tributary to Red Lake and Red Lake River, and that water power interests and certain municipalities are to be specially benefitted; and, further, that certain lands in the Clearwater River water-shed, now subject to overflow from the Red Lake River and not included in the report, will be specially benefitted.

In this connection, it is pertinent and interesting to refer to House Document No. 61 (66th Congress, 1st Session) which forms a part of the petition for this project. This document includes the report of the United States Board of Engineers for Rivers and Harbors, approved by the War Department, from which it appears that the estimated cost of this project was $779,300, and the recommendation is made that the apportionment of cost among the "interests concerned" be as follows:

Water powers	$240,000	$3,700
Indian lands	236,800	3,650
Lands outside Indian reservation	248,500	3,850
Municipal water supply	39,000	600
Federal Government for navigation	15,000	200
	$779,300	$12,000

And the report of Geo. W. Freeman, U. S. District Engineer, which also forms a part of this document, states:

"An equitable apportionment would be based upon the proportionate benefits to be received by the various interests. In paragraph 7 it has been shown that if the four developed water powers could utilize the whole of the increased low-water flow, they would benefit by about $12,000 per month during months of natural low water. It would appear from inspection of the discharge record that such a saving would result in at least an average of three months per year making a saving of $36,000 per year. This would be equivalent to a return of 15 per cent annually on an investment of $240,000, a return sufficient to pay off the bonds, interest on the bonds, dividends and an annual proportionate allotment toward maintenance and operation of the work of improvement. * * *

"Municipal water supply should receive benefit at Crookston and Grand Forks. As a tentative measure of benefit, take the 26,000 inhabitants as forming 6,500 families, and assess their benefits at 10 cents per family per month for three ordinary low-water months per year, giving a charge of $1,950 per year, which for the 20 years the land assessment bonds would run would produce $39,000 for the project."

At the hearing at which this petitioner, the Red Lake Drainage and Conservancy District, was created, which was attended by several hundred of the settlers whose lands are now sought to be assessed for the whole cost of this project, it was stated and distinctly understood that the apportionment of the cost would be approximately as set forth in House Document No. 6. Now, however, it is proposed to rely upon exacting rentals from the water power interests for the use of water in the future. The trouble with this plan is that, under the law (Sec. 15, Chap. 13, Special Session Laws of 1919) such rentals cannot be applied on the assessments against the lands or in payment of the bonds. In other words, under the viewers' report, the water power interests are not assessed but the assessment thereof is to be left to the judgment of the Board of Directors in the future. The court would have no objection to allowing the Board to exercise this judgment, knowing that, with its present members, such power would be properly exercised. But conceding that after the improvement is made the water power interests could and would be assessed, under the law as it now stands the money would go into the general treasury of the district. There is nothing in the law by which the person who paid the original amount could be reimbursed. True remedial legislation could be enacted to that effect, but the court must deal with the situation as it now exists and not with what may happen in the future. If such proper remedial legislation is enacted, there is nothing to prevent the Board from again bringing this matter before the court.

It is significant, too, that the fixing of the water levels of Red Lake is made with apparent disregard of the lands bordering the lake and its tributaries and wholly in the interests of water power development. True, these lands are not reported as land benefitted, from which omission it can pretty safely be assumed that they are lands to be damaged, but no provision is suggested for the protection of the vested rights of these land owners.

It is a conspicuous fact that nearly all of the resident land owners whose lands are included in the viewers' report, except those resident in the Town of Hickory and vicinity, are opposing the establishment of this project and many of them took the witness stand and made vigorous protest. Many of them are now burdened with ditch assessments and other indebtedness and are in bad financial condition. They ought, in justice, to have the controlling voice in saying whether the actual benefits to their lands to result from this project are such as to justify the imposition of its cost upon them. It is idle talk to say that only the interest will be exacted for the first five years. The fact remains that the total assessments will be a lien on the land until both the principal and accrued interest are paid.

This project, if ever constructed, must be fairly and equitably financed requiring every interest concerned and benefitted to ocme forth with its proportionate share. To require one of these interests to provide the cash for the enterprise and then await the volition of the others or the uncertainty of future legislative enactment for reimbursement, would be as absurd and ridiculous as it is illegal and unjust.

To summarize briefly, it must be conceded:

1. That a large part of the assessment is for benefits which are not special to the lands assessed, but general to the community. See in re Judicial Ditch No. 2, Itasca County, 139 Minn. 332.

2. That the majority of the resident owners of the land assessed are opposed to the project.

3. That the assessments of benefits and damages are not fair and equitable.

4. That to require the farmers and other land-owners to bear the total cost and leave water power interests and others exempt from assessment is to take the property of one for the benefit of another.

5. That in the present period of agricultural depression and high taxation, it would be not only unjust, but against public policy and interest, to add to the financial burdens of the land-owners unless the reasons for doing so are strong and convincing besides clearly equitable and legal.

6. That the law under which this proceeding is authorized (Chap. 13, Special Session Laws 1919) should be amended so as to provide: (1) For the application of the revenue from the use of water to the payment of bonds issued for the improvement made and refundment to the persons who have paid the assessments; (2) for the limitation of the authority to levy a sum greater than ten per cent in excess of the engineers' estimate of the cost of any project; and (3) for the issuance of bonds to run thirty years or more, all substantially as recommended by resolutions adopted by the Board of Directors of the Red Lake Drainage and Conservancy District on December 29th, 922.

For these reasons and others disclosed by the record, we feel impelled to deny the petition.

Factory Certain Aftermath of Sugar Beet Growing

the Commercial club, introduced the various speakers and referred to the meeting as a turning point in the agricultural policy of Northern Minnesoa and as an epoch in bringing this section of the country into its own as a food producer.

Mr. Douglas opened his address by stating the purpose of the visit of the sugar beet company officials to Thief River Falls, having long since been convinced that Northern Minnesota had all the "earmarks' 'of a sugar beet raising community. It has been shown through demonstration, he said, that this section of the country could grow a high grade of sugar beet and it was for the purpose of adding impetus to the growing of this crop here that the officials were making their visit.

Mr. Douglas, who is an authority on sugar manufacturing and sugar consumption in the United States, cited figures to show the possibilities of beet growing in this country. Minnesota alone spends $15,000,000 annually for sugar and almost all of this amount goes outside the state because Minnesota has not yet awakened to the advantages and possibilities of sugar beet growing. The United States produces but one-fifth of its sugar consumption, the other four-fifths being imported into this country from Cuba, which controls the markets of the world. He also quoted figures to show that the annual consumption of sugar in this country was increasing at the rate of 5 per cent yearly. He pointed to the success other states had made in sugar beet growing as a criterion of what Minnesota could do, and cited the case of Iowa and Colorado farmers who had made a success of the venture.

Contrary to the view held by many, said Mr. Douglas, sugar beets are not a "strong back" crop, but on the other hand is the surest cash return crop known, beet prices being determined by the price of sugar on a world market. Many farmers in Colorado and Iowa, he stated, would as soon grow ten acres of sugar beets as a similar acreage of corn from the sandpoint of the amount of labor involved.

The establishment of a sugar beet factory in this vicinity should be of secondary consideration, he continued, because placing a factory in a community with no beets to keep it going would be like placing a threshing machine in a place with no grain to thresh. In referring to the possibility of a beet sugar factory in this section of the state, however, Mr. Douglas said:

"Demonstrate first that you can grow sugar beets. A factory will surely follow the time when you have shown that you will grow beets here. You have the soil and the climatic conditions, and teh only thing left for you to do is to make up your minds that you will grow sugar beets. You can do it if you want to because this section ahs demonstrated its adaptibility to the satisfaction of all."

W. H. Baird, who followed Mr. Douglas, told how the growing of sugar beets fitted into the scheme of crop rotation. He stated that every farmer in this part of the country should have at least several acres planted into beets. He did not encourage farmers to become essentially a "sugar beet farmer" to the exclusion of all other crops, but stated that no farmer can make a mistake by investigating the possibilities of sugar beet growing.

A great deal of interest was manifested in the discussion between the number of farmers present and Earl C. Moore, agricultural manager of the Mason City factory, regarding adaptability of soils and the proper caring for and weeding of beets during the growing season. What Mr. Moore had heard and seen of land in this section he considered it to be splendidly suited to beet growing and felt that farmers who entered the industry here would surely be rewarded with success.

Shallow peat soil, said the speaker, was well suited for beets, as it most other kinds of soil that has been deeply plowed and is well pulverized and cultivated. Plowing on an average of six inches was recommended as about the proper depth. 'The fact that alfalfa and clover can be grown here so advantageously was further porof that sugar beets could be grown.

Thomas E. Sands, freight traffic manager of the Soo Line, urged the introduction of sugar beet growing in Northern Minnesota and stated that the company would lend its hearty cooperation to the movement.

Better Prices For Farmer Aim of February Meeting

have the full approval and active support of Governor J. A. O. Preus, in whose office the organization meeting was held. Governor Preus, as chairman, has invited the governors of North Dakota, South Dakota, Montana, Iowa, Illinois, Nebraska, Kansas, Wisconsin and Michigan.

In direct charge of arrangements is C. H. March of Litchfield, chairman of the Farmer-Banker council. Associated with him are N. J. Holmberg who will act as executive secretary, V. E. Anderson, treasurer of the Minnesota Farm Bureau Federation, S. E. Elliott, Farm Bureau News Service director, John Merritt of Aitkin, Geo. H. Richards of Minneapolis secretary of the Minnesota Bankers' association, and Senator Charles Kelson of Lake Park. Around this executive committee will be built an advisory board which will include Farm Bureau and other farm leaders, bankers, state officials who are concerned with agricultural progress, and business men generally.

In giving the movement his unqualified support, Governor Preus said: "During the last few years, the business of farming has amounted to little more than a licence to work, and for mighty small compensation. In thousands of instances farmers have had to pay for that privilege. There is but one real cause for so deplorable a situation; the farmers' dollar is worth only 67 cents when he goes out to buy all the things he must have, from shoes and pitchforks to wagons and binders. The Northwest, a section that produces a vast store of essential food stuffs, has been facing this desperate condition for three years. Something must and will be done. A conference such as is proposed, after careful deliberation, will clarify the atmosphere, make those who can remedy the situation understand the necessity for immediate action and pave the way for such steps as are needed to give us relief."

Plans for the conference have not developed far enough to announce a definite program, but those behind the movement are determined that leaders of national repute will be present. Some will be there to advise as to a remedy and others will be there to get first hand information as to actual conditions in the section. All agricultural and dependent business interests are to be urged to take part in the conference.

the weather moderated some and was still continuing up to the noon hour.

No damage to property has yet been reported and it is believed that the fury of the storm has been spent and will continue to moderate from now on, although weather reports advise that this section of the country should prepare for several days of cold. A report current in Thief River Falls yesterday was to the effect that Minneapolis was experiencing the worst storm and blizzard in 15 years.

Another report circulated last night conveyed the information that because of the intensity of the storm in the country the pupils and teacher of a country school east of the city were compelled to remain in the schoolhouse all night, not daring to venture outdoors and start for home. This report could not be verified however.

As a result of the complete tie-up of railroad traffic, the city is without mail facilities and will be until the right-of-ways are cleared and travel resumed. This is rendered difficult because of the ferocity of the gale, which blows the "cuts" full of snow as soon as snowplows shovel a path.

Another effect of the storm was the further postponement of the February term of the district court scheduled to open here yesterday. Judge William Watts of Crookston, who was to sit during the absence of Judge Andrew Grindeland, who is indisposed at his home at Warren, was held up at Red Lake Falls when the train he was taking to Thief River Falls was compelled to lay up in the former city.

Local Business Men Back Farm Creameries

Business interests of Minnesota are loyally supporting the co-operative creameries. At recent district meetings of the Minnesota Co-operative Creameries association, held at St. James and Detroit, the business men entertained the visitors at dinner. Thus far, more than 90 per cent of all member creameries have been represented at district meetings. The state meeting will be held at St. Paul on March 6.

Grain Growers' Sales Co. On a Paying Basis

The volume of business handled by the U. S. Grain Growers Sales Company of Minneapolis has been steadily increasing, until at present the farmers' agency on that market has reached a self-sustaining basis, according to T. H. Hagen, general manager. "In three months, we are further along than we expected to be in a year," he said. The company has put on its second field man. A. E. Carlson of Warren, Minn., will work in the Red River Valley territory.

CREAMERIES' SUPPLY DEPARTMENT GROWS

The supply department of the Minnesota Co-operative Creameries Association, opened on January 1, in 30 days handled $26,000 worth of business, according to A. J. McGuire, general manager. "On this amount," he said, "the saving has been around 20 per cent."

Creameries in the western section of Wisconsin, while unable to join the state association, are patronizing the supply department liberally, Mr. McGuire says.

If you are discouraged because you seem to lack vast opportunity, read this by Alice Freeman Palmer: "You put yourself into people; they touch other people; these others still; and so you go on working forever."

John Burroughs in his last book, published since his death, tells of a story that Emerson always chuckled over. An old woman had a farm in Indiana near the Michigan line. A re-survey set her farm in Michigan. She protested vigorously, saying that she could not stand the winters in Michigan.

Notice is hereby given that default has been made in the conditions of a certain mortgage containing power of sale, executed by James Crosby and Ethel Crosby, his wife, mortgagors, to Emil C. ROSEWOOD Busy Bee School Notes.

With our unusually mild January, we have had a very good attendance, 17 pupils having a perfect attendance record. Berton Johnson and Margaret Hanson were absent a week owing to illness. The artist studied for January was J. F. Millet. We were able to procure six of his best known pictures and the pupils greatly enjoyed their glimpse into the peasant life of the French. We have now studied Landseer, Bonheur, Barber and Millet. Our plan is to study one famous artist every month. For opening exercises on Tuesdays we have our picture study or a picture game or contest. In our last contest Grace Doran scored hundred, being able to give the title and artist of all the pictures we have studied so far. One morning a week is devoted to a library period. The teacher then finds a library book which has not been drawn out this year and reads a part of it of interest to pupils. These books so treated have been in constant demand, some being asked for weeks in advance. By this method we can get the best literature into the hands of the children, which otherwise would remain on the shelves untouched. The busy work period in the 1st, 2nd and 3rd grades is now being devoted to raffia work. We have finished our picture frames and started our raffia boxes.—Ebba Sagmoen, Teacher.

Hardware Store a Certainty.

oFr some time past plans have been brewing relative to the starting of a general hardware store at Rosewood, the parties interested being Cashier O. S. Hellerud of the Farmers State Bank and John Sagmoen, formerly a partner in the Carlson mercantile establishment. It is announced that work will commence in March on the construction of an 18x28 frame building north of the bank building. Mr. Sagmoen will be manager and salesman for the concern. It is unnecessary to say that the undertaking meets with the approval of the entire community.

Rumor has it that the Soo will soon build a larger depot at this place. A new depot here is badly needed as the present structure is entirely inadequate to care for the business and give decent accommodations to the traveling public.

Miss Elsie Vorseth of Thief River Falls arrived Wednesday morning to visit with Gladys Sagmoen until Monday evening.

A few of the local boys went to Thief River Falls last Sunday to visit briefly among friends.

Miss Lyda Batten, instructor in the Thief River Falls schools, and Delma Dols, Simon Nakken and Myrtle Mellem, students in that city, arrived on Saturday to visit over Sunday at their respective homes.

Postmaster Herbert Carlson went to Thief River Falls Friday evening on a brief business trip. He was accompanied by J. S. Sorenson.

Mrs. Gena Thompson and Miss Loretta Aos went to Thief River Falls Saturday evening after a couple of weeks visit with Mr. and Mrs. James Thompson. At Thief River Falls they will visit briefly at the Tessum home before leaving for their home at Gully.

Delbert Kron returned last Wednesday from Crookston, where he was sent as a delegate from Pennington county to take part in the district spelling contest. Delbert is a student at the Willowdale school south of this place and won highest honors at the county spelling contest held at Thief River Falls on Feb. 2.

Young Peoples' Society of the Swedish church in town next Saturday evening, Feb. 17. Lunch will be for sale and everybody is invited. Services at the same place at 10:30 a. m. and 7:30 p. m. on Sunday, Feb. 18. Rev. rotts of Viking will speak.

Miss Betty Johnson, teacher at the Sunshine school, Dist. No. 30, has announced a rag ball social at her school to raise funds for school purposes, on Saturday evening, Feb. 17. Everybody is welcome.

Rev. Geo. Larson arrived Tuesday morning to conduct the Rindal Ladies' Aid meeting at the Anderson and Paulson home, which was unusually well attended. The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Julia Axelson on the first Tuesday in March.

Mrs. Peter Mellem left Tuesday for Thief River Falls, where she will visit her sister, Mrs. Henry Carlson.

Sigurd Rafteseth returned on Tuesday from a two months' visit with his sister, Mrs. Felix Arlington, near Medicine Hat, Canada. At Medicine Hat there is hardly any snow on the ground, the thermometer seldom is below zero, and automobiles are in genera luse. Stock grazes on the prairies all winter through. Sigurd has enjoyed his trip immensely.

J. E. Hellquist, who has been ill and has spent the past month at the home of his daughter, Mrs. James Johnson, at Thief River Falls, returned home on Saturday morning and is improving in health.

A. M. Gullseth spent Saturday at Viking looking after business matters.

A carload of flour and feed was shipped in at the Hanson & Barzen elevator the first of the week.

Miss Florence Ostrom of Thief River Falls arrived Monday morning to visit for the day with her cousin, Miss Gladys Sagmoen.

Mr. and Mrs. John Ranum entertained the whist players at their home last Saturday evening.

Meighans' Photoplay Makes California Village Famous

The beautiful city of Modesto, Cal., of which George J. Ulrich is mayor, recently underwent a complete transformation, emerging as "Wingfield, Indiana."

The transformation lasted only for three days, however, and inasmuch as there is no real "Wingfield, Indiana," no serious damage was done.

It all happened in the filming of "Our Leading Citizen." the George Ade story in which Thomas Meighan will star at the Lyceum theatre next Wednesday and Thursday. Mr. Ade's original story is told against the background of the mythical small town of "Wingfield."

Now, mythical cities do very well on paper, but the camera requires something more substantial. So the city of Modesto was selected and the entire production unit, headed by the star and Director Alfred Green, traveled two hundred miles for three days of filming work.

Modesto has the unusual distinction of never having served before as a background for motion picture action. It is one of California's oldest and most picturesque cities and served admirably as a substitute for "Wingfield."

In the party which visited Modesto were several well known Paramount players including Lois Wilson, Theodore Roberts, William P. Carleton, James Neill, Charles Ogle, Guy Oliver, Sylvia Ashton, Lucien Littlefield, Laurance Wheat, Thomas Kennedy and Ethel Wales.

GRIM BATTLE IN "BURNING SANDS"

Milton Sills and Robert Cain Mix in Battle Royal—To Be Shown at Lyceum Sunday-Monday.

One of the best catch-as-catch-can fights to be seen on the screen in some time is a feature of George Melfords' new Paramount production of "Burning Sands." There was no rehearsal of the scene in which Milton Sills and Robert Cain "go to the mat" but it had to be taken several times, as usual. Both men were in prime training, and hardened habitues of the Legion Stadium, after seeing the film battle, remarked that the fight was one of the most realistic ever seen on the screen.

Wanda Hawley and Mr. Sills are featured in "Burning Sands," which will be shown at the Lyceum theatre Sunday and Monday. In the story, Miss Hawley is an English girl who falls in love with Daniel Lane, a hermit who lives alone on an oasis in the desert. This is the part portrayed by Mr. Sills. In the course of the action, Barthampton, a renegade Englishman, plans to abduct the girl and is prevented by Lane from executing his design after a terrible battle in which Batrhampton is killed.

"Hard Time" Social to Be Given by Sons of Norway

Fines to Be Imposed Upon Persons Appearing "All Dressed Up" at Affair.

If you're "all dressed up" next Friday evening, stay away from the Sons of Norway hall because if you show up with the intention of taking part in the festivities to take place there on February 16, the floor management is likely to soak you with a fine—and make it stick. If, on the other hand, you come looking as though you are really "hard up" like as not you will win the prize to be given away.

What goes for the men on that night will also apply to the ladies. They must not "fix up" too fashionable.

The Sons and Daughters of Norway are sponsors for the affair to be known as a "hard time social" at their lodge room Friday evening and they are planning to make it a big success in every way. No outsiders will be admitted unless they have been invited by a member, although each member can bring his or her friends. An admission charge of 50 cents will be made.

A musical program of varied selections will be given and lunch served. The dance music will be arranged so as to have some of the old time dances as well as some of the new. In other words, the lodge plans to give everybody a whirl at their favorite dance and music. A prize wil lbe awarded one gentleman and one lady appearing in the funniest "hard time" costume.

But remember the fine of 10 cents if you "slick up" too much. It will cost you that much for each offense.

MAN FROZEN TO DEATH IN BAD STORM OF TUESDAY NIGHT WHEN CAUGHT IN WOODS AT THORHULT

Body of Olaf Fjose, Timber Cruiser and Farmer, Is Found After a Five-Day Search in Wilderness.

Caught in the heavy timber near Thorhult during the terriffic storm of last Tuesday night, Olaf Fjose, timber cruiser and farmer, who for the past number of years has made his home in and around Thorhult, 38 miles east of this city, was found frozen to death late Saturday afternoon by a searching party which had for five days been scouring the heavy timber and deep underbrush in an effort to locate his body. Fjose was unmarried and leaves no known relatives in this part of the country as far as is known. The body of the man was brought to Thief River Falls today noon.

Olaf Fjose has made his home in Thorhult during the winter, but last week had been detailed by a farmer living three miles east of the little village to care for his horses during temporary absence. Fjose had made the trip to the man's farm early in the day and after having fed and cared for the livestock, started for another neighbor's home, some distance away, to spend the afternoon.

The storm at this time had not assumed threatening proportions and Fjose evidently believed that the trip could be made without danger. Some time after leaving the farm, however, the blizzard increased in volume and Fjose lost his way and struggled blindly through the timber in an effort to reach his destination.

The neighbor, being unaware of the intended visit of Fjose to his farm, made a trip to Thorhult the next day, according to reports, and when asked by residents there if he had seen the man, said that he had not and that he undoubtedly was over at the farm caring for the livestock. When Fjose failed to put in an appearance in Thorhult, grave apprehensions for his safety were aroused and a party set out for the farm to determine his whereabouts. When not found there searchers at once commenced scouring the woods and nearby settlements in an effort to find him. After the second day it was considered fairly certain by them that he had been caught in the storm and had fallen a victim to its ferocity.

For two or three days the search continued until they came upon his body frozen stiff three miles east of Thorhult. A pair of snowshoes were found strapped to his feet.

Fjose was a man of good physical proportions and accustomed to the ways of the woods and was especially well acquainted with the country in and around Thorhult. The blinding storm, however, had caused him to lose his way and he apparently had struggled for hours in an aimless attempt to reach his destination. The body was found just a few feet off one of the main trails, which indicates that he had a fair idea of the route he was taking in spite of the fury of the storm. The snow in and around where his body was found was several feet deep, according to reports, making progress difficult, and, even though the man apparently knew he was on the right road, the driving snow and the force of the elements overtook him.

Fjose put up a game fight against the storm and his heroic and valiant struggle to combat the terriffic blizzard was said by members of the searching party to be almost unbelievable.

The body of Fjose was taken to Thorhult and on Monday an employe of the Larson undertaking establishment of this city was telephoned for to take the remains to Thief River Falls. The undertaker shipped a casket to Goodridge and engaged team and sleigh for the overland trip to Thorhult through the deep snow and intense cold. He arrived at Thorhult late Monday night and Tuesday started for Goodridge after having been up all night preparing the frozen remains. The undertaker reached this city Wednesday noon and today the body is being prepared for shipment to Decorah, Ia., for interment, where Fjose has relatives.

Automobile Raffle Dropped By Sons of Norway Lodge

The automobile raffle, inaugurated by the Sons of Norway lodge last spring, has been dropped by the lodge and the money already paid in will be returned to those who have purchased numbers. At a meeting of the order held last Thursday evening it was decided that further attempts to dispose of numbers would be discontinued because of the undesirable features connected therewith. Officials of the lodge will later decide upon a date for the return of the money, which date will be published.

Fine Art Exhibit at Lincoln High School

This exhibition of pictures is one of more than ordinary interest. It consists of carbon photographs and engravings, loaned by the Elson Art Pub. Co., Inc., Belmont, Mass. The collection is a large one and contains only the very best reproductions of the masterpieces of art of different countries and periods. Nearly every gallery and country in the world would have to be visited to see the original pictures which are here brought together in one collection.

The collection comprises two hundred subjects representing all the principal schools of art and including many reproductions of sculpture, architecture and important views from nature. Few collections have ever been brought together which completely cover the history of art of all times as this. A catalog will be on sale at the exhibition hall.

No city or town should be indifferent to the culture and refinement of its people. It is part of the school work to inculcate these qualities in the children through whatever means it has at its disposal. The wholesome and refining influence of pictures of the right sort on the school walls is now generally recognized as one of the most valuable means of securing this end. The funds for purchasing such pictuers, as well as an opportunity to make a selection from a very large number, is secured by means of the exhibition. The larger the attendance, the greater the number of pictures that can be secured for the schools.

We hope you will not fail to visit the exhibition, and believe you will be fully repaid for the slight trouble and expense in the pleasure and profit you will gain for yourself, besides helping on the work.

Normalcy Again Is Rule After Country Emerges From Effects of Blizzard

Trains Move on Schedule and Highways Are Opened to Travel. Monday Brings Thaw.

The Northwest is again breathing normally after digging out from the effects of one of the worst storms and blizzards which ever visited this section of the state. Trains are again running on their regular schedule and highways throughout the surrounding country have been cleared of the large amount of snow.

Old-timers are now confident in their belief that the "back of the winter" has been broken and that good weather will be experienced from now on, and the days following the storm indicate that there is something in their declarationss. Monday a genuine spring thaw set in and the weather generally was fine.

Perhaps the only damage known of is that inflicted by the severe weather upon coal bins and the fire wood supply. No damage to private property or livestock has been recorded. It seems that Pennington county, at least, has "weathered the storm" in great shape.

Series of Lenten Services to Start at Trinity Church

Ministers From Middle River, Holt and St. Hilaire to Participate in Services.

"The Message of the Cross," a series of Lenten services, will be held at the Trinity Lutheran church commencing this week, in charge of Rev. T. E. Sweger, the pastor.

Commencing this evening (Wednesday, February 21) at 7:45 p. m., the sermon will be in English by Rev. A. E. Hanson of Middle River. His subject will be, "Father, forgive them, for they know not what they do."

A week later, Wednesday, February 28, Rev. M. B. Ordahl, Holt, will preach in Norwegian and his subject will be "Verily, verily, I say unto thee, today thou shalt be with me in paradise," a message for the penitent.

Wednesday, March 7, Rev. T. E Sweger will preach in English and has chosen for his topic, "I Thirst," a message for humanity.

Wednesday, March 21, Rev. C. M. Grimsrud will preach in Norwegian, and his topic will be, "It Is Finished," a message for the ages.

Pennington Will Plant Big Sugar Beet Acreage

Already 800 Acres Subscribed Locally.—Outside Towns Respond With Quotas.

Upon Outcome of Season's Crop Will Depend Building of Factory Here.

The committee having in charge the placing of the 1,500 acres of sugar beets in this territory report that applications are now on file for more than 2,000 acres, of which quota more than 800 acres have been taken over by farmers residing in the immediate vicinity of Thief River Falls.

Math Barzen returned last night from Middle River and Newfolden, where he met farmer delegations who signed up for the full quota of 100 acres in both instances.

So far the work of placing the acreage has progressed in a satisfactory manner and the real work from now on will be to apportion the acreage where the best guarantee can be had of its proper future handling.

So much depends on the manner in which the beets are cultivated that the committee will exercise the greatest care in allotting the acreage. It is felt that upon the outcome of this season's crop depends the building of a factory in Thief River Falls, an industry which will mean much to the citizens of the city and means in addition thereto greatly increased prices to the producers of the beets.

Among the early meetings scheduled are the ones at Oklee for Monday evening and one for Friday evening, when a local delegation will go to Goodridge as the guests of the Community club at that place.

If we all attended to our own business, chances are we'd have quite a business to attend to.

Casper Wiener, Father of 16, Again to Make Cigars

Pioneer Cigar Maker, Now Farmer, Will Once More Establish Relations With Lady Nicotine.

It will not be surprising to his many friends, to whom Casper Wiener is well known for his energy and versatility, that the erstwhile cigar maker, who was among the early pioneers of this city, later retiring to a farm in Smiley township, should again emerge from seclusion and decide to place before the public a brand of cigars which he will manufacture amid the placid surroundings of his farm home.

Mr. Wiener, who manufactured and sold cigars in this city up to 15 years ago, bears another distinction which should place his name high on the scroll of fame, as well as placing him foremost among the followers of Roosevelt—that is the fact that he is the proud father of sixteen children, a truly Rooseveltian family, and one which Mr. Wiener proudly proclaims to be the largest in Pennington county. Who is there to dispute his claim? The Tribune will go a step farther, and claim for Mr. Wiener the championship of the ninth congressional district.

The oldest of the Wiener children, a daughter, is married and resides in St. Paul, while the youngest daughter is seven, and all the children except three are at home. One daughter died during the flu epidemic in 1918.

The brand of cigars which Mr. Wiener will now place upon the market is known as the "Winner," and the product will be distributed by Chris Amundson. The cigar is of the 10 cent variety, a long filler of excellent flavor, as smokers will ascertain by trying one. A number of stores in the city already have the brand in their show cases.

And so if hustle means anything—if a man who can raise a family of sixteen, run a farm and make cigars, is entitled to his reward on earth—then success should come in caravans to our friend Casper Wiened and his "Winner" cigars.

$4 Goes a Long Ways in Helping the City Poor

How the local corps of the Salvation Army managed to stretch $4 out so as to reach eight families with actual relief, is one of the great wonders of the work in Thief River Falls. During the week ending Sunday, March 12, 1922, Mrs. John L. Bamford donated the aforesaid $4 to the local corps to be used only for relief purposes. The official cash book and voucher book at the captain's office verify that every cent of this was spent for the needy.

The expenditures made were very small in all cases, but materially aided some poor man, woman or child.

For the week ending May 7 there is an entry of funeral flowers for a poor child, $1. Three meals for poor men were bought for week ending June 11, 85 cents. Two men were given lodging for week ending July 9, 75 cents. Another night's lodging was donated Nov. 5, 50 cents. On Dec. 31 the remaining 90 cents was used to buy over $4 worth of clothes for a week-old baby. This makes a total of $4.

Not one cent of this $4 was given out as cash, because the Salvation Army never makes it a practice to do so. If a man needs a meal, he is taken to a local eat-shop and the corps officer pays the bill. If a bed is needed, similar proceedings take place.

Another sewing machine, some second hand ironing boards and stands, clothes racks, old tables and chairs to be loaned or donated to the Salvation Army relief work, are needed. New offices at Room 205, First National Bank building. Corps phone 246.

It is planned to hold a meeting of this league at the offices once a week in order to prepare colthes for distribution to the needy of the country or anywhere in this part of the state. The next meeting will be held at 2 p. m. Friday.

Hundreds of garments—one full dray load, in fact—and many pairs of shoes are already in the office awaiting the onslaught of the league workers. Send all clothes in to the Salvation Army relief office, Room 205, First National Bank building. Office hours, 10 to 11 a. m., every day to receive clothes and administer aid of any kind.

Bold Sneak Thief Swipes Sen. C. L. Hansen's Car

Theft Took Place During Noon Hour in Front of Popular St. Paul Hotel—No Trace Found.

A sneak thief, who by his misdeed gave evidence of the greatest measure of contempt for the highest law making body in the state, last week "swiped" Senator Hansen's Ford car in front of the St. Paul Hotel, the theft occurring during the noon hour as the senator was holding conference with fellow members within the hostelry.

The Ford was of coupe design, one recently traded for in this city, and the miscreant who ran away with it evidently had first familiarized himself with the habits of our senator, for according to police records it was one of the boldest daylight robberies which has taken place in many a day. The thief, whoever he is, has perpetrated a great injury upon the fraternity of auto thieves, for Senator Hansen has blood in his eye and we doubt not he would vote at this time for capital punishment for auto thieves. The car was only partly covered by insurance. It is said the St. Paul police have some hope of recovering the car.

Christofferson Grocery Is Sold to H. N. Rhodegaard

Carl Christofferson, who for the past seven years has conducted the Christofferson Grocery on Third street and Horace avenue, last week disposed of his interest in the store to H. N. Rhodegaard, who has been connected with the grocery store for some time past.

Mr. Christofferson will henceforth confine all his activities to his new grocery store on the East side, built last summer. His business on the East side is considered important enough to take all his attention and for that reason he closed out his interest in the former store.

Strange, isn't it, that those who perish on the desert for lack of water never think of geting a "crick" in the back?

County Is Not Liable For Personal Injuries

Counties Not to Be Held for Injuries to Gravel Haulers and Maintenance Men, Says Commission.

A recent ruling by the State Industrial Commission, with reference to whether persons performing work for counties or other municipal divisions, are entitled to compensation in case of injury, will be of interest to county commissioners and other public officers.

The question arose as to whether or not a person engaged by the county to haul gravel from gravel pits for surfacing roads, furnishing their own teams or other equipment, and paid a certain fixed amount per yard, varying with the distance hauled, are entitled to compensation as employes of the county in case of injury. Another instance is that of a person who contracts with the county to drag roads, furnishing his own team or appliances. In both instances the work is done under the supervision of the proper county officer, pursuant to the arrangements and conditions under which the work is undertaken.

The commission held that such persons are not employes of the county in the sense that would entitle them to compensation, and the county is under no obligation for injuries arising out of and in the course of such employment, unless such injury results from the negligence of the county, in which case the measure of damages would be the common law measure and not the compensation law. Counties and other municipal corporations are not required by law to insure their compensation liability as are private employers, but in cases where insurance is taken out by the county, the premiums ought not to include the money paid for such services. The money paid in such instances is the measure of the contract, and not the wages of an employe.

Real "Hard Times" Are Evident at Social Held at Sons of Norway Hall

Affair Last Friday Evening Brings Out Numerous "Pitiful" Examples of Stringency.

Times were sure "hard" among the frolickers who attended the social given at the Sons of Norway hall last Friday evening. Patched-up clothing, made-over wearing apparel of every description and "tough times" all around almost caused one to shudder at the sight.

And not only that.

A heartless and cruel judge plastered fines upon those who dared venture upon the floor with wearing apparel that indicated even moderate circumstances on the part of the wearer. Even James Whitcomb Riley's raggedy man no doubt would have had to pay for his fun had be been in attendance. One woman, dressed in rags, drew the immense fine of 25 cents because the "court" discovered real silk stockings. A man who hadn't known flush times in his life was fined a like amount because he wore a pair of trousers without ventilation. And so on down the line.

Anton Langseth, as "judge," ruled with an iron hand, ably assisted in his autocratic powers by "Policewomen" Mrs. J. N. Nesse and Mrs. L. H. Larson, who were over-zealous in their efforts to hale offenders before the "court." No one escaped detection. In this way fines totalling the magnificent sum of $6 were garnered, for sentence was not suspended in a single case.

One of the largest crowds of the season attended the "hard time" social and perhaps the "best time" of the season was had by those participating. The floor grew so crowded at times that it was found necessary to maintain a three-ring circle two-step in order to accomodate the dancers.

Precisely at 12 o'clock came on a splendid lunch, after which the frolickers again stepped out to dance, and the fun started all over again.

E. K. Aasen Is Selected as Successor to Ed. H. Ness

At a meeting of the Sons of Norway lodge held at the lodge rooms last Thursday night, E. K. Aasen was selected as successor to President Ed. H. Ness, who contemplates leaving Thief River Falls early in March. The new president of the lodge, who will assume office the first of the month, has been one of the lodge's best workers and was influential in the proposition of erecting the new home of the order.

BASKET SOCIAL.

There will be a basket social at the Hiawatha school, Dist. No. 26, Friday evening, February 23. A cordial welcome is extended to all.—Hattie E. Anderson, Teacher.

BENNIE VIGEN DRAWS 30 DAYS IN JAIL AND $250 FINE; RASMUSSEN JURY DISAGREES IN LIQUOR CASE

Other Moonshine Charges Continued to Next Term. Mathson Case Is Being Tried This Afternoon.

The first liquor case to come before Judge William Watts, who is this week holding the adjourned February term of court, was that of Bennie Vigen, who entered a plea of guilty to selling liquor. After his plea, Vigen broke down and cried long and loud, bolting into the attorney's room adjoining the courtroom.

Judge Watt sentenced him to 30 days in jail and to pay a fine of $250, an additional 60 days accruing in the event of his failure to pay the fine. It is stated that Vigen winked thru his tears at one of the court attaches when apprised of the nature of the sentence handed him, evidently feeling that his affected remorse had not been altogether wasted effort.

The trial of Alfred Rasmussen on a charge of selling liquor ended in disagreement, the jury being hopelessly divided, 10 standing for conviction and two for acquittal. The entire afternoon Monday was consumed in securing a jury for trial of the Rasmussen case.

Two cases against Vigen were dismissed on motion of the county attorney, and the cases against O. W. Carlson, Ole Ystesund and Adolf Amundson were continued over the term.

Peter Kolestrand was given a sentence of 30 days in jail and $150 fine on a charge of selling liquor unlawfully.

As The Tribune goes to press the case of the State of Minnesota vs. Ole Mathson is being tried before a jury. The case arises out of the payment by Mathson, former Highlanding merchant, for a batch of furs by check, the check being returned because of a lack of funds in the bank. Mathson's defense is that he had money in the bank, sufficient to pay the check, but that such funds were diverted by the bank at Hazel to the payment of a note held against Mathson.

Jesse Sorum, charged with forgery in the second degree, entered a plea of guilty and was sentenced to an indeterminate period at Stillwater, the sentence being suspended pending good behavior. The man will be in charge of O. A. Naplin as probation officer, to whom Sorum must report at regular intervals.

Continued cases are: Jack Doss vs. H. N. Hager, Richard Hall vs. George D. Snyder, Emelia Erickson vs. Soo Line. Whisett Coal company vs. Thief River Iron Works.

J. Payne vs. Township of Grand Plain, a ditch case, will be tried by the court.

The civil action of Dr. C. M. Adkins vs. John Dahlsing was tried before a jury, resulting in a verdict for the defendant.

The action of Gurine Folkedahl vs. First State bank of Oklee was settled.

The case of S. M. Erickson vs. W. C. and William Nichols will come up for trial during the term.

The case of V. F. Anderson vs. Tallack Froisness, and Lottie Jensen vs. James Mulhall et al., will be heard by the court.

The jury cases to be tried are: Administrator for estate of Calvin Modisett vs. Tessum Seed Grain and Supply company, John J. Aga vs. Peoples Auto company, Gopher Granite company vs. Thief River Monumental company; Johanna Sande vs. Great Northern railway.

Judgment for plaintiff was rendered in the actions of the Wylie Co-Operative Elevator company vs. C. A. Anderson and John Scals.

The case of August Carlson vs. W. A. Bishop on a charge of assault was settled out of court.

Y. M. C. A. Formally Opens Monday in Library Building

Youth of City Take Advantage of Opportunity Afforded for Wholesome Recreation.

The Community Y. M. C. A. formally opened Monday evening in the basement of the library and the initial night of the local "Y" movement found a generous number of the boys and young men of the city present.

Sufficient paraphernalia already is on hand to make things interesting for the boys and more will be added as soon as funds are available and when the purchasing committee decides upon just what to buy. A number of feature are under consideration, such as a bowling alley and a radio set, and it is thought that one of these will be installed in the near future.

Clarence Pope, a member of the high school faculty, has been selected as supervisor of the work at the "Y." He has had former experience in work of this kind and is busy arranging his programs for the season.

To Get Most for Your Road Money

Way Taxpayers Can Get More Improved Roads For Same Outlays.

Urge Legislators to Understand Plan, to Use Their Best Judgment.

With Highway Bonds:
The public will get the use of road improvements averaging in value $42,088,000 during each of the next ten years, and $79,552,000 during each year the following decade, according to cumulative totals.

Without Bond Issues:
The comparative good roads value totals will be $28,024,800 for the first and $70,374,600 for the second ten-year period—less by $16,064,000 and $9,177,400 a year, respectively, although the same auto tax rates are continued.

Minnesota can get more value for the same amounts of money provided for trunk highways or so-called Babcock roads by issuing proposed bonds, stopping waste on too costly upkeep and turning the funds into permanent road work. Maintenance savings will exceed the interest on the bonds and the use of more improved highways will represent net gain to the public.

This is the gist of the state highway bond plan as summarized by Charles M. Babcock, state highway commissioner, in a current highway bulletin. Careful conservative figures show possible gains given above. All the bond money and federal aid and forty per cent of the annual auto taxes going for improvements which will last 25. 50 or even 100 years, he repeated, the value of the state highway system to automobile and other users runs up rapidly. All figures are without tax increases—are based on the agreed average of $18 on automobiles.

The bond plan, official figures show, will give the public bigger results for the money used on the trunk highways—a full dollar's worth of good roads for every good roads dollar. But if the state goes on wasting the funds for maintenance of gravel surfaces on heavy traffic sections, the commissioner finds, there will be one-third less improved highways for public use in the next ten years and one-tenth less for each year from 1933 to 1943.

Without bonds, the state must use an average of more than $4.000,000 each year of the next twenty for maintenance of the 7,000-mile trunk system. Bond money forthcoming to extend permanent improvements and stop excessive upkeep leaks, the maintenance cost can be kept down to $2,750,000 a year, making an annual saving of about $1,250,000.

Commissioner Babcock uses the same income figures in computing results obtainable with and without the proposed bonds. The average number of motor vehicles to be registered in Minnesota in the next twenty years is placed at 487,500. Automobile taxes at the agreed $18 average and trucks slightly higher because of increases forecast by the present legislature, auto tax revenues are averaged at $9,710,000 annually for the 20-year period.

Federal highway aid receipts are put at an average of $2,566,000 per year, against $2,840,000 allotted to Minnesota in most past years.

Thus the trunk highway funds are rated at $12,550,000 annually. This is comparable to the average of $20.000,000 raised in late years for county and township roads in this state, and held less in proportion because the trunk highways carry four-fifths of the traffic.

Amounts necessary to meet all present and proposed bond interest and principal payments were set aside first, and net balances remaining available for maintenance and for construction under both plans were used in the commissioner's tables.

Increasing maintenance demands, it is shown under the present plan, will take $3,030,000 this year and larger amounts up to 1927, after which the upkeep outlay is placed at $4,150,000 a year. Auto tax balances with federal aid, but no bond funds, would afford for new construction work less than $3.500,000 in 1923, $4,070,000 in 1924, between $5,000000 and $6,000,000 for each of the following seven years, $6.340000 in 1932 and more than $8,000.000 a year thereafter.

Bonds authorized and maintenance costs reduced, however, upkeep can be held to an average of $2.750.000 a year, administration expenses included, according to official figures. Then with bond interest and principal provided for, there would be left for new construction $13,890,000 in 1923. $14,620,000 in 1924 more than $5,000,000 for each of the next six years more than $6,000.000 in 1931, $6,500,000 for each of the next five and more than $7,000,000 for each of the remaining years of the 2-year period.

The bonds will give the automobile taxpayer of the present a fair share of good roads benefits which he will not get otherwise although paying the same rate of tax as those of future years. Mr. Babcock suggests that a safe way is to write senators and representatives to use their best judgment in dealing with the highway bond proposals.

The mole grows blind from living underground, say the moralists. And the angle worm goes dead from not staying underground.

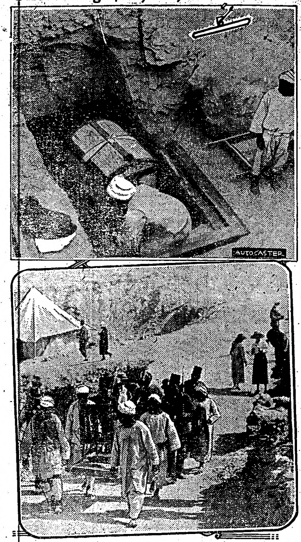
Unearthing $15,000,000 Treasure



World wide interest is focused on the valley of the kings along the Nile in Egypt—where Howard Carter, an American, discovered the tomb of King Tutankhamen for Lord Carnarvon of England. This is last of the tombs of Egyptian kings who ruled four thousand years ago. The treasure is valued at $15,000,000. Native troops are on guard night and day. Upper photo shows natives emerging from the outer tomb with a large blue cabinet containing valuable fabrics. On it were names of king and queen lettered in gold. Lower photo shows wonderful chair being carried from the tomb under guard. All treasures show little effect of time.

TAKES BOND FACTS DIRECT TO PUBLIC

Charles M. Babcock(state highway commissioner, at Willmar and Benson this week began a series of public meetings over the state to personally show citizens why highway bond proposals are deserving of united support. He plans to speak at other public meetings, he said, especially where misinformation has resulted in opposition to the bond plan.

"There is little difficulty in showing members of the legislature how automobile taxes at the rate they are now coming in will give the use of more good roads under the bond plan," said Mr. Babcick. "But members want their folks back home to show more interest and it is hoped that every friend of good roads will write their members asking them to use good judgement. When the plan is clearly understood it commands support."

Senators and representatives report that persons who are against the bond plan are registering, and that there seems to be apathy among those who know the advantages of the bond proposals and assume they will be adopted.

Agents Help Farmers Cut Marketing Costs

That co-operative marketing has been and is a major project of the agricultural extension service of the state university is shown by a summary, prepared by F. E. Balmer, state leader, and his assistants, of the reports of Minnesota county agents for the year 1922.

Co-operative organizations, either formed or aided by the county agents in 1922, effected savings for the co-operators of more than a million dollars. During the year 62 agents co-operated with 708 farmers' co-operative associations which were organized either by agents now in the harness or their predecessors. Thirty-five agents report total business done by associations with which they co-operated of $23,884,600. Twenty-nine agents report savings or profits by such organizations of $969,222. In addition, the agents gave assistance to 10,040 different farmers in buying through other channels than co-operative organizations. The business transacted by farmers in this way amounted to $510,370, with total savings of $127,205.

An exchange service is maintained in many counties to help the farmer buyer and seller get together. The value of seeds which changed hands means of this service amounted to $193,562.94; livestock, $339,245; other products, $109,391.65, or a total of $652,199.59.

New Bulletin Reports Cattle Feeding Results

"Cattle Feeding Investigations," the title of a new bulletin prepared by W. H. Peters and N. K. Carnes and issued by the agricultural experiment station of the University of Minnesota, summarizes the results of two experiments in the fattening of cattle. The first was conducted during the winter of 1920-21 with two-year-old steers and the second was conducted during the winter of 1921-22 with calves. "It is not difficult to select or to secure feeds that will produce fat on beef cattle," the authors say. "The big problem is rather one of economy, in other words, the production or purchase of the cattle and feed at a sufficiently low cost to allow financial profit from the fattening process." To aid Minnesota cattle growers and feeders in this respect was the object of the trials. Copies of the bulletin can be obtained without cost on application to the Office of Publications, University Farm, St. Paul. Further experiments in the series will be reported in bulletin form at some future date.

"Bill" Ryer Rolls High in Bowling Totals, Wins

By piling up a total of 574 pins for three games last week, "Bill" Ryer easily demonstrated his superiority on the local alleys and is undisputed champion for the week. Ryer was "right" all week and played a consistent game. Pete Morse was next with a total of 550, H. Olson third with 525; C. Olson, 523, and Grendahl crept up the rear with 514 in the honor roll.

This week the Co-operative Creamery bowlers won two from the City Dray and Fuel and went into first place. The Soo Line shopmen violated tradition and won two games from the Thief River Grocers. The honor roll for the week was Munt, 523; Aspelund, 630; Williams, 518; Morse, 514, and C. Olson, 511.

Journal Offers Free Trips to Junior Club Members

Many more free trips to a great national meeting and four scholarships of a value of $100 each are assured the club boys and girls of Minnesota by the action of the university board of regents in accepting a proposition laid before it by the Minneapolis Journal.

The Journal's offer provides for a free trip at the expense of the Journal to the 1923 National Boys' and Girls' Club Exposition at Chicago for the winners in boys' and girls' dairy calf club work in every Minnesota county having a dairy calf club enrollment of 25 or more. Also for four scholarships of $100 each to be applied in any of the schools of agriculture in Minnesota, one scholarship each to be awarded to the boy or girl adjudged the state winner in Minnesota's boys' and girls' dairy calf club work in the Holstein, Guernsey, Jersey and Ayrshire classes.

Minnesota club leaders say that juniors in at least 40 and perhaps 50 counties in the state will qualify for the free trips given by the Journal. Nine hundred twenty-four boys and girls enrolled in 79 clubs in 40 counties for dairy calf work last year. The value of their products above costs was $23,965. A marked increase in the number engaged in dairy calf club work and in results achieved in 1923 is predicted by university men as a sequel of the Journal's generous offer.

C. W. Pugsley Gives Interesting Review of Farming Conditions in State of Minnesota.

If it had been possible for me to follow my own inclination I should be here tonight in person to address the Minnesota Editorial Association. I might say that I am of the same breed as the members of your organization, having been a farm paper editor for some years myself in a neighboring state. Therefore, I have a feeling of kinship and, perhaps, an appreciation of many of your opportunities and difficulties. Most of you, I suppose, are editing newspapers in small towns, but no matter what the size of the communities in which you live all of you are interested in the farmer, in his needs, and in the economics of agriculture.

This is a farming state with other farming states and provinces all about it. The success or failure of nearly every person living here is dependent upon the prosperity of the farmer. So I assume that your primary interest in addition to your papers is agriculture in general and the local farming problems in particular.

What these problems are at the present time you know even better than I do. Poor prices for many farm products, as a result of overproduction and a very limited foreign outlet is taking up the center of the stage at the present time and I understand that your governor has called a conference of delegates from this and a number of other state in the Northwest to meet here about four weeks from today to consider at length this question of prices. I hope it will bring good results. There is a great opportunity at this time for every editor to be of assistance.

The wheat growing regions have been suffering more than most others during the period of depression. Wheat is the food that stands long shipment better than almost any other staple, and that fact is now resulting to the detriment of the farmer. Its price is made on an international market so long as there is a surplus. Although slowly improving, this international market is very draggy. The last wheat crop in Europe, exclusive of Russia, was about 200.000.000 bushels short of last year, but this shortage was more than made up by the larger crops in this country. Canada Argentina, and India. In recent months our export of the grain have been less than the preceding year, but they are now increasing.

Minnesota can congratulate herself that she has passed through the single-crop stage of her development always a stage of well marked ups and downs. The rapid growth of cities is increasing the demand for many products that do not need to have the lasting qualities of wheat. This means a wider demand for vegetables, homegrown fruits, poultry and dairy products. Your state already has made a national reputation with the products of the dairy cow.

This tendency to get away from the former one-crop plan was slowed down during the war, but it has resumed since 1920. I am sure that you editors have had a great deal to do with the development of this varied agriculture. Present condtions prove that a great deal more can be done to make farming a more stable business by getting still farther away from this one crop—this international crop. The area planted to feed crops, such as corn and oats is increasing The dairy industry is going along very well. The combination of corn and oats or barley for grain, corn for silage, dairying and hog raising has become an important feature of farming in parts of the state, and it is a promising type of agriculture for a much larger area.

The dairy industry is relatively one of the most prosperous agricultural industries of the country today, although we are having competition in spite of transportation costs and the tariff from New Zealand and Denmark. But these producers compete with us only when prices are good. Minnesota farmers must compete with Canadian dairy farmers who have only the tariff in the way, but on this side of the line the dairy farmer has the advantage of corn for feed. It is unwise to expand any industry too rapidly, but a gradual expansion in dairying should be safe enough. Figures recently compiled by the Department of Agriculture from more than 300 cities show that in the last ten years the consumption of while milk per capita has increased about 17 per cent.

Diversified agriculture, in addition to being good for the farmer and the state, is also good for the editor and his paper. Variety is the spice of a newspaper's life as well as that of many farming regions. We can not overdo the growing of a crop year after year and expect to be successful. Under the law of supply and demand we will be condemned to suffer. As reconstruction progresses in war-wrecked countries and with normal yields in the large producing countries, the price of wheat is likely to fall below the present level unless some countries which have expanded their wheat areas do not reduce production.

But I do not mean that the only thing a wheat grower can do is to quit being a wheat grower. There are many things he can do to improve the raising and marketing of his crop And here I am reminded of a piece of work for editors. Late in January the secretary sent out a questionnaire to farmers in the spring wheat states regarding the Federal wheat grades. Of more than 2,000 replies received more than 900 have been analyzed and they show, among other things, that only 31 per cent of these men considered that they were familiar with these grades. Of these analyzed replies 374 came from Minnesota, 203 from North Dakota, 200 from South Dakota, and 123 from Montana. This condition, in view of the "Know Your Own Wheat" campaign that was carried on in this region, shows that it is hard for the editor of a country newspaper to overwork anything of this sort. tI is the cumulative, consistent effort of many months and years that finally brings the desired results in improved practices. The subject of farm, crops, live stock, and home improvement, and marketing, never grow old.

The editor should never feel a scarcity of material of interest and value to his country readers. You have an agricultural college and experiment station of which you can be proud. You have an active Farm Bureau organization, county agents all over the state, various live stock and crop organizations. Similar institutions and organizations are to be found in the adjacent states. All are sources of useful information. In addition there are national organizations whose work is of interest to your readers. The Department of Agriculture, with nearly 200 bureaus and offices, is a mine of information. As a part of the extension organization we have a specialized service, the Press Service, which supplies material to newspapers, farm papers, syndicates, magazines, and radio broadcasting stations. If you want any special newspaper service we will do our best to give you what you want.

We have in the department a very friendly feeling for editors. One reason is that we are very large publishers of material mostly of interest to farmers and much of which we would like to get into the hands of all editors in agricultural regions. Last year both directly, and indirectly through members of Congress, the department distributed more than 25,000,000 copies of pubilcations. We publish some six or eight separate series of publications and four weekly periodicals. When a scientist completes an investigation or makes an important discovery there still remains the job of securing application of his findings in practical farming. Newspapers are one of the important links in the connecting chain between the investigator and the farmer.

You editors can help us in many ways, and one of them is by keeping us informed of the need for certain kinds of information in your territory. You probably receive the lists of bulletins the department sends out from time to time. Perhaps you print them. You can be of assistance to the farmer by discussing these publications and giving him instructions as to how he may get the ones that will be of use to him. Many of them contain material that you will want to reprint with comments bearing on local conditions.

In addition to reaching the farmer through the printed word we have our Extension Service which has representatives in all the states working with the state extension people who are in direct contact with the farm through state leaders, county agents and home demonstration agents. These people do work of great variety and the newspaper should be their most important assistant in the local community.

I have just looked over some of the reports on the extension work done in Minnesota last year and I find that it includes a surprising variety of work, and each separate piece of work probably contains a good story for the newspaper in the locality, and the chances are that it may of much wider interest. More than 80 farmers were assisted in planning drainage systems, many thousands of acres of clover and other legumes were turned under for soil improvement as result of the work of agents; tests for acidity were made on 1,027 farms and 329 farmers were induced to use lime; 390 fertilizer demonstrations were put on; 4,679 farmers selected seed corn according to approved standard and 2,246 started testing for germination. I might continue indefinitely giving figures, but it is sufficient to say that these activities covered tesing seed potatoes for disease, spraying potatoes, growing alfalfa and sweet clover, red and alsike clover, soy beans, securing registered bulls, organizing cow testing associations, building silos, controlling diseases of live stock, keeping farm accounts, devising better cropping systems, advice in organizing farm loan associations and cooperative ventures, poultry culling, and hundreds of boys' and girls' clubs were organized.

Most editors, as we know from a checking up of results, do not overlook these opportunities and a large share of them find many practical and inspirational stories on the farms nearby, but now and then there is one in an agricultural community who is not rural minded, who seems to think that his town exists as a sponge-like growth which exists for itself alone while it absorbs nourishment from the farmers who drift in and out in their automobiles and milk wagons. But the editor who realizes what the country means to his paper does not depend for his news on the daily trips to the depot to see who is arriving and who is taking a trip. He goes out into the country to see what is really being done. He talks to farmers while they wait in line at the creamery, the condensery, the cannery, or at the railroad on shipping day. He keeps in touch with county, state and notional organizations that represent the farmer.

I have in mind the case of one country editor who did not see any farther than the incorporation limits of his town and, needless to say, his success was very limited. In this community there is a large hog farm run with profit as a sideline to a big creamery, a most successful beekeeper who has made interesting improvements in equipment, an inventor who has devised several useful tools and handy devices for use on the farm, a ferret farmer who ships his animals to all parts of the country, a successful farmers' cooperative shipping association, a number of breeders of high class cattle, cheesemakers who have made names for themselves because of excellent results obtained in the cooperative factories where they make up the milk. A woman who has been a national figure for many years was born a few miles from this place.

That kind of material should be meat for the editor of the local paper, but he is apparently a confirmed vegeterian, for I have never seen a line in his paper about any of these interesting people, nor anything similar. He devotes his columns to golden wedding celebrations, lyceum entertainments, a local oil boom that never materialized any oil except on the promoter's tongue, and the marks the children are making at school. I am glad to say that this case is extreme.

The woods are literally full of material of interest to rural readers, but the woods and fields and feedlots around home are teeming with it. And this is the kind of material that editors will have to use more of every year as improved methods of distribution make city newspapers available at a great distance within a few hours of their publication. The small-town paper in an agricultural community must be truly local and well spiced with farm articles.

In the department we have collected much information which shows what a factor the press is in influencing farmers to adopt new methods, better crops and live stock. For instance, we made a study of the principal factors in the adoption of better live stock. Reports from about 500 successful farmers and breeders showed that reading had been a more important influence than any other in causing them to give up poor stock for well bred animals. It was ahead of such influences as meetings, institutes, sales, fairs, shows, colleges and club work. This is not a reflection on the other activities which are in a large measure discussed by the press.

A few years ago a survey made by the department, in which a large number of farmers in the Middle West were asked to name the most important extension agencies in furthering better agriculture, showed that 56 per cent gave first place to the agricultural press. The local newspaper in a farming region should be a part of the agricultural press.

Our well known newspaper friend. Abe Martin, says that "next to a hearse, a country newspaper is the hardest thing to stop." But those which live up to their opportunities will be like fire engines—nobody will want to stop them.

Toad Mountain Tattle
(From "The Tightwad")

Fierce Frigidity—Just about as we thought winter was getting ready to let up, old February brought in a cold snap that beat anything since the weather bureau was established on the Mountain. Just how cold it was will never be known, but it was less than 70 as Ike Sawyer says his thermometer doesn't register lower than 60. However, Ike says it went the limit.

Some Evidence— A Hog Wallow farmer was frozen stiff near his kitchen door and neighbors had to chop him out of the atmosphere. Baldes were dulled and axe handles broken in the operation, but the man was finally released and a couple of shots of moon brought him back to life and once more in debt.

—o—

Another Result— The train was eight hours late, but it brought Pap Wilkins back from the city. As soon as he got something to eat and a supply of tobacco on the hip he enlisted Attorney Slattery's aid in bringing suit against the railroad company. He claims the severe cold weather caused such contraction of the rails that he did not get the mileage his ticket called for and he demands a refund to cover the shortage.

—o—

Claim No. 2—The local garage man sat up all night to keep a fire going and estimates that he poked no less than sixteen cords of wood into the stove. So steady was the stoves' demand that when Mr. Garageman attempted to comb his hair next morning he was unable to get his hand up. He has sent in a claim for total disability to the accident insurance company.

—o—

Fit of Economy—Dode Hite says he never saw times any stiffer than right now, and yesterday ordered his electric light cut off, had the telephone taken out and has moved his family into the kitchen. With whiskey at $6 a quart he had to cut down expenses somewhere.

—o—

Another Sorehead— Norm Wilkins was in and stopped his paper yesterday. Could not find his name in the delinquent tax list last week and said we might at least have published the fact that his property was sold for taxes. Norm considered this the unkindest cut of all and will read his neighbor's paper hereafter.

—o—

Let the Cat Out—Ward Heeler, who fell in front of the postoffice last week and broke his arm, has sued the town for $3,000 damages. Postmaster Norton says he will pay the claim if he is guaranteed reinstatement, a statement that has brought out several aspirants for the office.

—o—

Spring Is On the Way—One sure indication that spring is not far off is the poetry beginning to arrive. A young man brought in two pages of heartless stuff that describes something on the order of the Evergreen fiasco. Just listen: "Three Toad Lake Lilliputs, sturdy and brown, declared war on the men who were running the town. Astride their steeds they rattled and thundeerd with gusto and nerve of the famous six hundred. One little cuss, too humane to shoot, landed one big man a spot on the snoot. which had the result of making him hot, and he wanted to shoot the small guy on the spot. A giant roared out, 'Let me show him some style,' and he pile. Then a hump-backed scrapper picked himself up by the pulpwood from Sandyland, lying low with a club in hand, said he was ready to butcher the hog. About that time a neighbor's dog took a generaus bite from the tough man's leg; it hurt like blazes and made him beg." The rest of the story we haven't got, for "further opponent sayeth not."

—o—

Good Reasons—An editor down in the southern part of the state comes out strong for capital punishment. As he gets beat up about once a year, a regulation of that order may tend to modify future chastisements. so it is easy to see why. —E. P. J.

Fred Haralson Goes to Fruit Breeding Farm

Fred Haralson, for 14 years horticultural foreman at University Farm, has been placed in charge of the state fruit breeding farm, Zumbra Heights. to succeed his brother, Charles Haralson, who resigned several months ago to go into the farming and nursery business for himself.

The selection of Fred Haralson was approved by the regents at their last meeting. Mr. Haralson has had extensive experience in horticultural and general farming, nursery work and practice. His long experience and success as a propagator fits him particularly, says W. H. Alderman, chief of the division of horticulture of the university, for his new duties in the university's field laboratory at Zumbra Heights.

The present state fruit breeding farm was established in 1908, The 110 acres constituting the farm are devoted entirely to the production of new fruits. Thousands upon thousands of seedlings, including no less than 75,000 strawberry seedlings, have been grown and tested on this farm, with the result that in the last few years 29 varieties of fruits have been named and distributed among fruit growers and nurserymen.

A Business Man's Lament.

I do not cuss the man who's slow
To pay because he's poor;
But oh, the man who lets it go,
I never could endure!

I'll trust the hard-up man' I'll say,
His credit I will double;
But darn the fellow who could pay,
But doesn't take the trouble!

I'm glad to help the man who tries
To pay me when he can;
That sort of fellow seldom lies,
That sort of man's a man.

I'll keep him warm and keep him fed,
I'll be his friend and father;
But darn the man, as I have said,
Who doesn't want to bother.

If all the fellows who could pay,
Yet let things run along,
Would just write out a check today,
This life would be a song.

I love the poor man who is slow.
(You maybe think it's funny.)
But hate the man who has the dough
And doesn't send the money.—Ex.

Lyman Abbott once said: "A good education emancipates the mind, and makes us citizens of the world." What he really meant was that nothing can be called education which does not do this wonderful thing for a man.

There is a delightful humor in the announcement that the bituminous coal operators and miners in the central competitive field have come to an agreement to have no strike this year. The miners evidently have awakened to the fact that a strike spells only one thing—a greater exploitation of the public of which they themselves are a part. For the operators, their profits are secure either way.

The understanding to maintain peace was reached when the operators agreed not to reduce the present wage rates. That was the issue last year, so that technically the miners have won a point. The operators, however, also have won, and now it only remains for the consumer to pay the price.

Wages are now fixed on a basis that the miners will have to work approximately two-thirds of the time. We could understand this economic operation if there were any law compelling a man to be a coal miner, but as there is not, it would seem that the coal business is being conducted with really scientific inefficiency and a total disregard of the public. The robbing of the people this year is little short of flagrant grand larceny.

WHAT GOVERNMENT COSTS.

William P. Helm, Jr., who delves into statistics for the National Budget Committee, tells us that nearly eight and one-half billion dollars are spent every year in governing the United States.

In round figures, there are forty millions of workers in the country having a gross income of $60,000,000,000. This means that the burden of government on every man and woman in business or professional life, including the 2,000,000 persons on the public payrolls, stands at $220 per head annually. Surely, if this fact were driven home there would be a deeper civic interest manifest among our thoughtless and spendthrift people.

If the annual governmental expenditure was paid in labor instead of in money, every worker in the United States would be giving up as his or her share more than seven weeks of work every year.

The cost of government becomes staggering when closely considered. The number of public servants in the United States is greater than the number of all the military forces we sent abroad in the world war. If their salaries had to be paid in gold it would require all the gold in the world to meet the bill for a single year.

Counting the average family as five persons, the actual cost of government is about $400 per family per year. All of which comes as a result of lack of interest in public affairs. The situation is a sad reflection on the intelligent understanding of a businesslike people.

Never were the profiteers of the country so well ensconced as at present. The manufacturers of clothing, machinery, building material and every other commodity required by the people have lost all sense of shame and decency in the mad scramble to gouge the public to the limit. The building show held at St. Paul last week, which the editor of The Tribune had the pleasure of attending, was a practical demonstration of the above statement. Manufactured goods are no longer priced upon the basis of a fair margin of profit over the cost of production, but upon the basis of what the public will stand without hollering too much. There is cause for serious apprehension in this situation, as it must be apparent to everyone that the farmer, who is the large ultimate consumer, cannot exist under such circumstances, especially since our system of distribution is so bad as to leave him every year with an actual loss to show for the hard work he performs. No wonder farmers have grown suspicious of the old parties which have failed so utterly to give heed to this condition.

The talk is going around that Congressman Halvor Steenerson is peeved over the small vote he received in Thief River Falls at the last election and that he will block the efforts of this city to get a new postoffice. The Tribune cannot credit such reports as being reliable. Mr. Steenerson is serving the public and is much too big a man to indulge in petty politics. By the way, the Commercial club of this city should give some attention to this matter right now, as we are informed that congress will build a number of public buildings this year where needed. Thief River Falls surely comes within the sphere of the needy ones this time.

President Harding has been the real friend of the lame ducks of the United States. This may be his idea of serving the people of the country, but we suspect his awakening will come when the time comes for getting delegates to the next Republican convention. Unless The Tribune is badly mistaken, next year will be a repetition of 1912, when Taft was nominated and carried one state in the subsequent election.

The editor of this family journal heard Senator Henrik Shipstead's speech to the Legislature last week and, frankly speaking, he was greatly disappointed in the effort. The senator, who has given much thought to the things that are awry in this country, failed utterly to give a word of advice or caution to the legislative members. He uttered only parables, which were lost upon the practical-minded country members; in other words, he gave them stones when they were looking for bread.

The present Legislature is disposed to play fair with the farmers. Every measure so far introduced, which holds forth any promise of relief to the farmers, has met with the finest of consideration. The rural credits bill is sure to pass and several co-operative marketing measures will add to the efficiency of the farmer movements within the state before the history of the present Legislature is written.

What about a new Great Northern depot? Several weeks ago the officials of the railroad were in the city getting the sentiment of our citizens as to location, style of construction etc. We are aware of the fact that large bodies move slowly, but in this instance the people of this city have been extremely patient, and they will not be content with mere talk very much longer.

It begins to look as if the present Legislature would pass the capital punishment bill, with the proviso that no man can be executed on circumstantial evidence. The increasing number of atrocious murders within the state have convinced the members of the Legislature that more drastic measures are required to halt the saturnalia of crime.

The crying spell staged in a local courtroom Tuesday by Bennie Vigen, one of the accused liquor vendors, probably was inspired by joy rather than remorse. The turn of events should make Bennie laugh loud and long—in chorus with every other moonshine peddler in town.

Out of the great number of liquor cases to come before this term of the district court, one man pleaded guilty, receiving a fine of $250 and 30 days in jail, the only case tried ending in a disagreement, and the rest were continued. Pretty soft, pretty soft!

Legislative Side Lights

By the Editor.

Having spent the past ten days around the marble palace at St. Paul, watching the Legislature from the vantage point of the side lines, and comparing it with a dozen legislatures of the past with which I am more or less familiar, I am led to believe the present body is just an average one. There is no dearth of leadership, and I am disappointed in finding that the 1923 session does not differ materially from its predecessors in one notable respect—that is the disposition on the part of the members to consider most measures from the standpoint of politics rather than the features which have to do with the welfare of the people of the sate.

What I mean is just this: In the consideration of the rural credits measure, for instance, the members seem greatly more concerned over the administrative features—the patronage involved—than in its salient features, such as the percentage of loans to be made on certain appraised valuations, interest payments, methods of collection and appraisements, etc. There is no essential difference between the pending bills in the legislature except that one provides for administration by a board and the other provides for one commissioner. In either event it becomes a matter of the right kind of man or men. Any man who is essentially a politician has no business on this board, and equally objectionable is the man who is prejudiced against any section of the state.

There ought to be in this state a man big enough and broad enough to recognize the potential values and possibilities in every section of the great state of Minnesota. There must be such a man—in fact I have several in mind—and I have faith in Governor Preus to select such a man.

The present legislature is moving slowly and with caution. I find most members committed to a policy of economy, and the men least to be envied are Theodore Christianson in the House and A. J. Rockne in the Senate, chairmen of the appropriations committees of the respective bodies. The former is a heavy-weight any way you look at him, and for the good of the tax payers of the state I think it is well that one of such elephantine proportions sits on the lid of the state's strong box. I had lunch with him the other day and he let me in on some of the demands now being made on the treasury. These include numberless foolish requests which are already slated for the discard, such as an elaborate parking system and approach to the state capitol, and with the exception of the necessary maintenance for state institutions, which must be met, the public may rest assured that Christianson and Rockne will come down on the frills like a window sash on a sore thumb.

Speaking of Senator Rockne, of Goodhue county, the watch dog of the treasury in the upper branch of the legislature. He was mentioned for president pro tem of the senate this week, but his name was withdrawn in favor of Senator Orr, of St. Paul. Many newspapers class Rockne with the so-called "old guard," and I presume he is entitled to be so classed because of his conservative attitude toward progressive measures of all kinds. But on the other hand Rockne is just as conservative when it comes to appropriations, and the people of the state will always be indebted to him for the efficiency and good judgment he has shown in guarding the funds of the state. Rockne is a likeable chap and a good lawyer, and I rather enjoy visiting with him, but I will fankly confess I would as leave approach a grizzly bear as to tackle Rockne for a single unnecessary cent at this session. He and Christianson are certainly "tough birds."

Getting back to the rural credits bill, I believe the Legislature will pass a measure which will be immensely beneficial to the state. A two years trial will demonstrate its value to the farmers, and weaknesses may then be remedied. The law which will probably be passed will permit the farmer to borrow up to 60 per cent of the appraised value of his farm, together with 40 per cent of the insurable value of his improvements. In other words, the man who has a $50 per acre farm, with improvements worth $2,000, can borrow $5,600 on his property. The loans will be made for years on the amortization plan, at an interest rate which will probably not exceed 5 per cent. Any actual or prospective farmer may avail himself of this law, and I can see where it will be immensely beneficial to the northern sections in particular because of the rank discrimination now being perpetrated against that section by both federal and private loan agencies.

Under the South Dakota rural credits law there is now in default about $500,000, a fact which is being used against the bill now pending in the Minnesota Legislature. When it is remembered that South Dakota has $42,000,000 in loans in force, the amount is infinitesimal. But there is another side to the question which has not been brought out. I got it from a prominent House member who received his information from Governor McMasters of South Dakota. The governor explained that the farmers who are in default, have given the state the best of security, but owing to stringent conditions now existing, are unable to meet interest installments promptly when due, so the governor and the rural credits commission have decided to extend the time for payment rather than to foreclose or otherwise embarrass the borrower. Anything wrong about that. I claim not.

Here is another interesting side ligt on the rural credits law of South Dakota. It is the one thing which has saved a number of small country banks from going under. In other words, the 42 million which came into the state from the sale of the state bonds relieved the farmers from financial straits and also saved the smaller state banks from bankruptcy. May God save the Queen, by which I mean that anything which extends help to the small banker is a godsend to the common man, for the man of small means will be out of luck when the finances of this country become concentrated in the hands of a few big bankers. So I say, score another point of value to the credit of the rural credits law.

Rev. Gerlinger:

"I came not to destroy but to fulfill." No better purpose was ever cherished. It is easier to say, "I came not to build but to destroy," but it is not better. Destruction is easy. Construction requires thought, energetic thought, creative thought. The best way to destroy the undesirable is to build the good. The one who is busy building character, his own and his community's, does not find time to destroy his neighbor's. There is always room for more building.

McFARLAND AUTO CO.—EASY WEEKLY PAYMENT PLAN FOR PURCHASING FORD CARS AND TRUCKS

No Large First Payments Required.

You can obtain the Ford Automobile you want without being obliged to pay large initial payment, by our new Saving Fund plan which is the easiest and simplest method yet devised. You perhaps have wanted to purchase a Ford Car on the usual time payment plan but were unable to pay the customary first payment which varies from $100.00 to $350.00, according to the model desired.

Ten Dollars—First Deposit

By our Saving Fund Plan you simply make an initial payment of $10.00, which according to the mutual agreement attached is deposited in the Farmers & Merchants State Bank to our joint account. Each week you just deposit in the Saving Fund of the Bank $10.00 until you have saved the customary amount required as first payment on the regular Ford deferred payment plan. By this easy method in a few weeks you have accumulated enough money to make the first payment and secure possession of car, and then the balanec due is divided into 12 monthly payments.

Many are now availing themselves of the opportunity to buy an automobile and it is surprising how soon the first payments are made and the car is in your possession.

An Incubator Calculation

SUPPOSE 100 farmers in this community had incubators of 600-egg capacity.

SUPPOSE they all set them.

SUPPOSE one egg out of every dozen was infertile and was discarded, leaving 550 fertile eggs.

SUPPOSE these farmers only obtain 80 per cent hatch. They would get 440 chickens.

SUPPOSE 3 per cent die, leaving 427 chickens. Ten weeks after they are hatched each chicken should weigh 36 ounces.

SUPPOSE they only weigh two thousand pounds and they sell at only 25 cents a pound, or $213.50. Remember there are a hundred farmers, doing the same thing. If they each have the same result it means $21,350 cash money circulating around our town which would not have been there had not these farmers had INCUBATORS.

This is not an impossible theory—it's being done in other towns. Also remember that you make this money in thirteen weeks, Mr. Farmer, and can repeat it every thirteen weeks for eight months out of the year, and that the chicken market is always good.

WE ARE TRYING TO PUSH THE SALE OF QUEEN INCUBATORS AND BROODERS, to increase the prosperity of this community and because we know the QUEEN LINE WILL GIVE SATISFACTION.

Rev. O. C. Fedcke to Speak at Auditorium February 28

Scheduled to Deliver Second of Series of Lenten Sermons Under Auspices of St. John's Church.

The Rev. O. C. Fedcke of Mahnomen will preach the sermon at the second Lenten Service in the Auditorium next Wednesday evening. The subject of his sermon will be: "The Cure for the Evils of the World."

To every student of current events the timeliness of this topic will be apparent. In spite of the poet's words, "Our God's in the heaven, All's well with the world," he who runs may read in the events as they transpire, that "all is not well with the world," even though "our God is in the heaven." Something is decidedly wrong with the world. Else, why all this unrest which has gripped whole nations and groups of people? Why the great number of the would-be reformers, who day after day are advocating their pet remedies? Why the determined efforts of the world's best minds to find a real cure for the ills of the world?

The world is sick. All who are willing to face the facts as they are admit it. Only the wilfully blind can declare: "Day by day, in every way, the world is getting beter and better." Experience teaches us the very opposite.

The Rev. Fedcke is not a so-called reformer, and he does not intend to pose as such. When he speaks to the people of this city on the ills of the world and their remedy, he will not expound his own theories and speculations; he will not weary with a self-conceived and never-tried system of world-therapeutics.

The Rev. Fedcke is a plain-spoken preacher with a message from God's Book. From the inspired Word of God he will show his audience what is wrong with the world, and, what is more valuable, he will show God's remedy for curing these ills.

Here is a message of vital importance to every person. You will not want to miss these weighty truths presented by a careful student of the Bible and of the world, a forceful and eloquent speaker. They who heard the Rev. Fedcke last year, when he spoke on the Origin of Man, will no doubt look forward to hearing him again.

St. John's Lutheran church extends to the people of Thief River Falls a most cordial invitation to attend these services. The service begins at 8:00 o'clock and will be conducted throughout in the English language.

Representative of Veterans' Bureau in City on Business

Interviews Oscar Paulson, Commander of Elmer Eklund Post, Concerning Claims of Soldiers.

Fred W. Zeller of the U. S. Veterans' Bureau, of Fargo, was in the city this week in the interest of the war veterans. Mr. Zeller said that although the time has elapsed for the filing of claims for vocational training Dec. 16, this in no way affects ex-service men in filing their claims for compensation, or reinstating or converting their government insurance. Most of the men, said Mr. Zeller, had had insurance granted to them, but because of illness and for financial reasons they had not been able to keep this insurance in force. Many of them had become discouraged and are making no effort to avail themselves of the privileges accorded to them by law. Section 408 of the Sweet Bill has amended the war risk insurance act to the extent that now disabled men are enabled to reinstate their lapsed insurance or to convert term insurance to ordinary life, 30-payment life, 20-payment life, 30-year endowment, or endowment at the age of 62.

Mr. Zeller said that under the war risk insurance act any person in the military or naval service was given the privilege of obtaining from the United States insurance against death and total permanent disability in amounts up to $10,000. This insurance is issued by the Bureau of War Risk Insurance of the treasury department on yearly term plan, and no charge is made in premium for permanent total disability benefits. No limitations as to age at which disability occurred, or cause of disability; no restrictions as to residence, travel, occupation, military or naval service.

Dividends are accumulated through excess interest earnings over 3½ per cent plus and mortality savings, and paid to all those whose insurance has been in force more than one year. In case of illness, on application, premium may be waived by insured until recovery. No matter what a man's disability may be, or its degree, provided he has not beed declared permanent total, he will be accepted on payment of all back premiums due from date of lapse, plus 5 per cent interest compounded annually on each premium due.

After four years of premium payments on a 20-year endowment, the extended insurance values would take care of all payments of premiums for the remaining 16 years, but by so doing insured would only draw the face value of his policy, having sacrificed the pure endowment by this course.

Mr. Zeller has left a supply of reinstatement and conversion blanks with Oscar Paulson, commander of Elmer Eklund Post No. 117, who will assist ex-service men in re-instating and converting their government insurance.

How Director Frank Urson Secured a Mob For Big Scene in Wallace Reed's New Thriller.

For the exterior scenes around the big gold dredgers in "The Hell Diggers," Wallace Reid's latest Paramount picture, to be shown at the Lyceum theatre on Wednesday and Thursday, Feb. 28 and March 1, Director Frank Urson wanted a large crowd, but as the location was some miles from the city of Sacramento, California, he anticipated some difficulty in gathering a mob.

For about a week before the shooting of the scenes, however, a publicity campaign was conducted in San Francisco and Sacramento, by means of which nearly everybody in those two cities was apprised of the coming event. Stories were placed in the Sacramento Bee and the San Francisco Chronicle, detailing the program for the filming of the big scenes and giving information as to the locale. Slides were also shown in the principal theatres in the two cities.

When the company arrived hundreds of persons started for the spot from all the surrounding country and they were all delighted at the opportunity of appearing in the scenes of a motion picture.

Mr. Reid is supported in this new production by a superior cast, headed by Lois Wilson and including Alexander Broun, Frank Leigh, Lucien Littlefield, Clarence Geldart and Bud Post. Byron Morgan wrote both the story and the scenario.

Big Picture Is Filmed in Great White North

"The Valley of Silent Men" Photographed in the Heart of the Canadian Rockies.

Frank Borzage, the celebrated director of Cosmopolitan productions, went with his entire company to the Canadian Rockies, where he filmed James Oliver Curwood's famous story, "The Valley of Silent Men," amid the scenes which the author described so vividly in his novel.

Unless studio reports and the evidence of many beautiful photographs taken on location are misleading, Mr. Borzage has not only "Nature Illustrated" Mr. Curwood's thrilling romance of the Great White North, but has scored another Cosmopolitan success, comparable with his "Humoresque."

Of course, this romance of th northern wilds which comes to the Lyceum theatre Sunday and Monday, is a striking contrast to the crowded East Side, the bright lights of Broadway shown in "Back Pay," or the humors of "Get-Rich-Quick Wallingford," also made by Mr. Borzage for Cosmopolitan productions. But the same meticulous attention to detail and broad grasp of his subject which characterized Mr. Borzages' work in the big city studio, follow him into the great outdoors.

With a Cosmopolitan cast headed by Alma Rubens, as the French-Canadian heroine of the Curwood story, and with Lew Cody as the heroic corporal of the Royal Mounted Police, Mr. Borzage spent twelve weeks in the Canadian Rockies. From Banff, Alberta, they followed the trail of the story to the veritable "Valley of Silent Men" which Mr. Curwood described so realistically. They lived in log cabins, camped with the Stoney tribe of Indians—some of whom Mr. Borzage enlisted in the company; shot the rapids of the Kipewa river, which runs into the Ottawa about 225 miles west and 100 miles north of Montreal.

The climbed the snow-clad peaks and skidded over the glaciers of the Canadian Rockies. No city-bred director could have overcome the obstacles which faced Frank Borzage on every hand. He is an American born, and was reared among the mountains. Possibly his nativity helped him to realize the Curwood story on the screen in the spirit and amid the scenes in which the author wrote it.

Farm College "Grads" Stick to Agriculture

Do graduates of the agricultural course in the Minnesota College of Agriculture engage in farming or other agricultural enterprises after graduation? Dean E. M. Freeman of the college, who has been collecting evidence, says they do. Here is a digest of the first 100 answers by graduates to questions as to present occupations and other occupations since graduation:

Ninety-seven have at some time since graduation engaged in some form of agricultural pursuit. Only three of this first 100 have been engaged exclusively in non-agricultural work. One of these went into the army directly from college in war time and has retained his captain's commission. Another was advertising manager for the State Fair and has since established a commercial advertising agency. The third has taught non-agricultural science in a high school. Of the 97 in agricultural pursuits, 41 have engaged at some time in farming, 41 at some time in technical professions as in agricultural colleges and experiment stations and similar positions; 25 as county agents; 44 as high school instructors in agriculture; 11 in agricultural industries such as livestock associations, farm papers, cow testing associations, co-operative creameries, etc., and one became a practicing veterinarian. As to present occupations 69 of the 100 are now engaged in distinctly agricultural pursuits and 11 in non-agricultural pursuits.

The investigation shows that out of the 100 only three are engaged in exclusively urban communities.

When we advertise the fact that our patients recover their health we are not indulging in boastful conversation.

In this series of health talks, which have attracted much favorable comment, we have simply tried to put over the big truth, as an incentive to induce YOU to investigate—for our mutual good.

Our patients talk more forcefully for us than these messages; therefore, if we can persuade YOU to act upon their testimony, we will have accomplished the one big purpose behind these health talks.

The thinking person will agree that there can be no better proof of our claims than the testimony of patients who have recovered health through Chiropractic, after all other methods have failed.

Investigation will not only convince you that Chiropractic is right, and just as applicable in YOUR case as it has been in hundreds of other cases like yours, but it will stabilize our claims, justify this advertising, and prove to you that Chiropractic is really the better way to health.

BRATRUD'S VETO UPHELD WHEN COUNCIL REFUSES TO LICENSE CARLSON SOFT DRINK PLACE

Much Important Business Engages Attention of City Dads at Regular Meeting Held Last Night.

The city council last night turned down the application of O. W. Carlson for a license to conduct a soft drink establishment at his place of business at the corner of LaBree avenue and Second street. At the last regular meeting the application of Carlson was passed, but Mayor John Bratrud vetoed the resolution and it came up last night for final action, requiring a unanimous vote over the mayor's disapproval. This it failed to secure.

The other applicatons for soft drink licenses, those of Conrad Vinje and Albert Zavoral, the latter said to be the new owner of the Bennie Vigen place, were turned down at the last meeting. As a result of the recently adopted soft drink ordinance and the refusal of the council to approve their licenses, the three places mentioned will undoubtedly be directed by the mayor and police to close up their places of business while under the present managements.

Five applications for soft drink licenses were approved by the council, they being Black's Sweet Shop, Carl Christofferson, Anton Dahl, Richard Prestebak and George Christo, the latter doing business under the name of the Minnesota Candy Kitchen.

The council last night allowed the first estimate on equipment for the new filtration plant, involving the sum of $6,701.95. Almost all of the equipment needed for the actual operation of the plant is now on hand and it is expected that the plant will be in operation some time in March or by April 1.

The mayor and city clerk were instructed to enter into a contract with Ralph D. Thomas, Minneapolis engineer, in connection with the possible purchase of the dam below the Hanson & Barzen Milling Comapny in order that the city may in future be assured of adequate power facilities. The engineer will make a complete survey of all potential water power facilities available and report his findings to the council, after which final action will be taken.

The council unanimously went on record last night as opposed to Senate File No. 570, now pending in the Minnesota Legislature providing for an additional 4 per cent penalty on all unpaid general taxes. The proposed bill would also penalize unpaid special assessments levied for all purposes. The resolution passed by the council will be sent to all members of the Legislature.

Paul Midderigh, chief of the fire department, was authorized to purchase 250 addition feet of fire hose. The last regular meeting granted him the privilege to buy a simiiar amount, making 500 feet in all.

A building permit was granted to Louis DeCremer for the erection of a new meat market near the site of his present location.

Crew of Men Attempt to Raise School From River

Old Knox Building to Be Placed on Terra Firma and Taken to Proposed Site.

A crew of men is this week attempting to raise the old Knox school building out of the river, where it was lodged about three weeks ago when the first half of the structure broke through the ice when contractors were skidding it across the river.

It was at first thought that it would be necessary to tear the building down and move it to a permanent location piece by piece, but the crew of men will now attempt to raise it upon pilings, with the aid of derricks, and get it back on the solid ice again.

The second half of the former school building is still on the east side of the river and it will be towed over the ice as soon as the part now on the river is taken over.

The building is the property of the Church of St. Bernard and when completely renovated will be used as a parochial school. It will be taken to lots in the vicinity of the church.

Hutchinson to Go After Sugar Factory There

Southern Minnesota City to Contest With Thief River Falls For Plant.

Article in Leader Tells of Plans For Tilling Large Acreage of Beets.

A newspaper article in the Hutchinson Leader this week tells of that city's plans for securing a sugar beet factory for that city, and in that connection the citizens are exerting every influence in the line of allotting acreages to farmers this spring in order to guarantee factory officials that they really are in earnest about sugar beet growing.

The article indicates that sugar beets were grown quite extensively in the Hutchinson territory last year and that the crop had been grown there with great success and without the necessity of importing outside labor to weed and care for the beets. Farmers in the vicinity of Hutchinson, according to the Leader, have been greatly encouraged with the revenue obtained from the marketing of beets and are planning on going "in for sugar beets" as they never did before.

The Leader admits that Hutchinson is vieing with Thief River Falls for the ultimate establishment of a sugar beet factory to be located there. The newspaper also admits that this section of the country has proven its worth as a sugar beet community by producing a beet that has the highest sugar content of any grown in the United States, but figures that Hutchinson has as good a chance of securing a factory as any other city in Minnesota, in view of the fact that they have demonstrated beyond question that their farmers are talking beets, thinking beets and, lastly, growing beets on quite a large scale.

Factory officials have been in the Hutchinson territory talking sugar beets to the farmers and pointing out to them how beets fit in with the regular crop rotation and have pointed to the prices paid last year as the best evidence of what the crop will do for the farmer. They told Hutchinson in all respects what they said here: That they must show that they can grow beets before a factory can be established.

It is planned by the American Sugar Beet company to establish four or five factories in the state within the next few years if farmers of Minnesota take kindly to the beet industry. There already is one large factory belonging to the company located at Chaska, Minn. Hutchinson is located about 45 miles west of the twin cities.

Relief Work on Increase Since Opening of Quarters

Since the opening of the Salvation Army Relief office in the First National Bank building it is figured that the work has become 50 per cent more efficient. The rooms are gradually being fitted with all the necessary furniture and other articles needed in a repair shop. On two days last week a total of 57 garments, six pairs of shoes and six pairs of overshoes were given out, besides boxes of corn flakes; etc.

A great part of this work is done right in the city, but clothes have been sent out as far as Salol.

The Home League ladies met Thursday and did a good amount of work on garments, which it is expected will be needed by the poor some time in the future. In addition to working on garments, the ladies are planning to serve lunch from 2:30 to 5 o'clock every Thursday for the business men or others who wish to call. A number of men availed themselves of the opportunity last week and ate their afternoon lunch served by the League. No price is charged. Free-will gifts can be dropped in the receptacle provided.

Business Men's Lunch.

Among other notable evidences of spring around Thief River Falls these days may be mention- the fact that the kids are out—as usual—shooting marbles in the balmy "spring" sunshine. Whether their proclivities are premature remains to be seen. Yesterday's flurry of snow "drove them to the wall," however, and The Tribune doesn't dare venture an opinion as to when the boys will be out again. Fine weather has set in after the severe storm of a fortnight ago.

Rev. T. E. Sweger returned to Thief River Falls Tuesday, from Crookston, where he had been in attendance at the district conference of ministers in this district.

Sande's Receive Verdict Against Great Northern

The February term of district court, presided over by Judge William Watts of Crookston, came to an end last Friday afternoon after trying several liquor cases and a large number of civil cases. Many of the latter were continued until the spring term of court, as was also done with two of the criminal cases.

Mrs. Johanna Sande of this city and Miss Cora B. Sande were given judgment against the Great Northern railway in the sum of $1,350 for injuries suffered when put off a train a mile and a half west of Steiner during last winter. The plaintiffs charged that the brakeman of the train in question called the town of Steiner and the two women alighted from the passenger.

Instead of stopping at Steiner, the plaintiffs claimed that the train was brought to a halt more than a mile west of the station and that they were compelled to walk through the snow back to Steiner. Mrs. Sande was awarded judgment of $1,050 and the daughter a sum of $300. Attorney H. O. Chommie of this city represented the plaintiffs and F. G. Dorety and A. L. Janes appeared for the railroad company.

The jury in the case of Dr. C. M. Adkins of Grygla against John Dahlsing, in which the fomer sued Dahlsing for $185 for medical services rendered the latter's sister, who later died, found for the defendant.

The case of the Security State bank vs. Joe Eidelbes, John Eidelbes and M. Kotarba was settled out of court, as was also the case of Gurine Folkedahl vs. the First State Bank of Oklee.

The case of S. M. Erickson vs. W. C. Nichols and William Nichols was continued to the next term of court by consent of both parties to the action.

The following cases will be tried before a judge sitting here at some later date: V. F. Anderson vs. Tallack Froisness, Lottie Jensen vs. James Mulhall et al, as well as several other minor actions.

The case of the Gopher Granite company vs. Thief River Monumental company was settled out of court.

A jury returned a verdict for the plaintiff in the case of the Wylie Cooperative Elevator company against C. A. Anderson and V. F. Anderson. A similar verdict was returned for the elevator company in their action against John Schals.

A number of judgments were ordered by Judge Watts for delinquent tax liens. It is expected that the next term of district court will be held during March, at which time all the continued liquor cases will be tried.

Plans Submitted For New Station of G. N. Railway

Would Give Thief River Falls Adequate Depot Facilities in Future.

Blueprints of the proposed new Great Northern railway depot were this week received by W. E. Baker, local agent of the road. They were sent here from the chief architect's office in St. Paul and the plans, in the event actual construction takes form, would give Thief River Falls one of the best combination passenger and freight depots in the Northwest.

The plans submitted call for a structure of 134 feet in length and a width of about 32 feet. It would be of stucco construction with veneered brick extending up about four and one-half feet of the wall, with asphalt shingles. The plans call for a single story building and provide adequate quarters for employes of the road. There would be both a men's and women's waiting room, connected with a passageway in front of the ticket office. There would also be a smoking room.

Nearly one-half of the floor space would be consumed by the freight and express business of the road, which would also give ample room for fuel and oil storage. Something like 70 feet of the building would be taken up by this end of the road's business.

The plans do not specify what the inside finishings of the proposed new station would be like, but it is believed that the walls would be of polished tiling and the floors either of hardwood or concrete.

The location of the new station would in all likelihood be between LaBree and Main avenues, and it is thought Mr. Baker will make that recommendation to the officials of the road at once. Main and LaBree being the main avenues of traffic in the city, better service would be given to both freight and passenger traffic and it would also have the effect of giving a better view of the city from the station.

"When will construction start?" Nobody around Thief River Falls seems to know, and probably will not know until the day before actual construction work commences. Some are of the opinion that work will begin during the summer, others believe that nothing will be done until next year. In fact, no one seems to have definite information along that line.

One thing, however, is certain. Thief River Falls has Great Northern officials sending blueprints here for consideration, and that means The Tribune can report progress, something it has been unable to do heretofore.

Second Number of Lyceum Course Coming on Tuesday

The Harp Ensemble Company to Furnish Something New in Line of Entertainment.

Thief River Falls is to secure the Harp Ensemble Company as the second number of the lyceum course.

The Harp Ensemble Company furnishes something new along musical lines, having with them three harps, a violin and a cello. Besides their ensemble numbers, they render solos, duets, trios and quartettes. They have been under the careful coaching of Clara Louise Thurston of Chicago, one of the most gifted harpists in the country, and are artists in every sense of the word.

The first number of the course was given by the Cambrea Concert Artists, who pleased the very enthusiastic audience present. The management is sure that the next number will prove as good or better than the last one. The concert will be given at the Sons of Norway Hall, Tuesday, March 6.

Word has been received to the effect that Opie Read, lecturer and author, will appear here the latter part of March.

Intended to and generally credited with smoothing Minnesota's main highways, new 1923 motor vehicle tax plate have begun at the usual places throughout the state.

Lucky numbers are going out first, registration officials said, and some fifty thousand sets were issued last month. More than 300,000 will be issued this month if conditions are favorable. The price will go up at the rate of 25 cents per day after March 1, for all who use their cars during the windy month or before. Recent action by the legislature so fixed 1923 regulations of motor vehicle taxes.

Auto tax rates generally for 1923 will be the same as last year, except on machines going into the 3-year-old class getting 25 per cent cut and the 5-year-old list, which carries half the regular tax.

The polls will be open from 9 o'clock a. m. to 9 p. m. on the day of election. March 6.

"Assisted by Sadie," Clever Comedy, to Be Shown at Auditorium on Friday Evening, March 9.

On Friday evening, March 9, the local high school faculty will present the four-act comedy, "Assisted by Sadie," at the City Auditorium. This play is an unusually mysterious comedy, in which intrigue and romance mingle with laughter.

The idea of presenting a play was hit upon when there seemed no other way to give the high school football and basket ball boys sweaters. The faculty has practiced diligently and those who have witnessed bits of rehearsal say that it is unusual.

The price of admission is within the reach of all, being 50 cents and 35 cents.

The cast of characters is as follows:

Art Exhibit Is Shown at Local High School Gym

Thief River Falls People Appreciate the Excellent Showing Made.

The beautiful art exhibit opened at the Lincoln high school gymnasium this forenoon at nine o'clock and will continue for four days.

The pictures, numbering two hundred, have been arranged on the walls in their chronological order, beginning with Egyptian art and coming down to modern American art.

It is evident that the people have appreciated this excellent educational advantage. The great majority of us will never have the opportunity to see the originals of these pictures, as they are scattered all over the world, Europe principally, and an opportunity of this kind, that enables one to see and study real art, although reproduced, is eagerly taken advantage of by many. The pictures do not have the crude appearance that is seen in many reproductions, but show that the ones who copied the masterpieces knew how to do it. They are beautiful.

It is now generally recognized by educational authorities that education in culture and refinement can easily be aided through the wholesome influence of pictures of the right sort on the school walls. The larger the attendance at the exhibition, the greater the number of pictures that can be secured for the schools.

In many places schools have secured a large number of pictures through private gifts selected at the exhibit. Such gifts will be marked free with a brass tablet naming the donor or the person in whose memory the picture may be given.

Train Kills Three Horses.

Last Friday evening Helleck Halvorson, living four miles up the ridge road, had the misfortune to lose three of his horses killed and a fourth one slightly injured by the train which came down Friday evening. The animals had got out of the barn and onto the track, where evidently they had run some distance when overtaken at a cattle guard by the train. The horses had been killed instantly, and were badly cut up and the remains strewed along the track for some distance. This is quite a loss to Mr. Halvorson as it leaves him with only one team. —Stephen Messenger.

Deep Snow Aids Wolf Hunters.

Sixty-seven wolf bounties were collected in Roseau county during the month of January. That is nearly one-half of the total collected during all of 1922. Forty-five wolves were killed last January. The chief cause for the big number killed is found in the deep snow, the wolves being run down by hunters riding on horseback.—Roseau Times-Region.

Co-Op. Marketing Held Solution of Farmers' Problem

Walton Peteet, Farm Bureau Marketing Director, Speaks at Conference.

Leaders From All Parts of Northwest Gather For Frank Discussion.

Steps that may be taken to bring immediate relief to the Northwest's agricultural industry and basic principles that may be adopted by farmers to insure their permanent prosperity were discussed at two important conferences in St. Paul this week.

The Northwest Agricultural Price Stabilization Conference was held on Tuesday and Wednesday, and on Friday there will be a special marketing meeting, called for the purpose of getting down to "brass tacks" on an expansive co-operative program for Minnesota. In addition, there were other smaller conferences.

The present 66-cent dollar with which the farmer is trying to run his business was the theme of all meetings. Delegates came from ten wheat growing states, seeking a sound answer to this question: "What can be done to reduce the present disparity between what the farmer gets for his products and what he is obliged to pay for necessities?"

An outstanding feature of the Stabilization Conference was an address by Walton Peteet, director of marketing for the American Farm Bureau Federation. Mr. Peteet told his audience that the farmer could not expect to prosper so long as he was content to compete, as an individual, with group action in all other lines of industry. "The time has come for the farmer to establish his own selling agencies, following principles that have been proved sound in this and other countries," he said.

At the conference, utmost latitude was given to assure a free discussion of all phases of the farm problem. Controlled production was advocated as one remedy. Methods that may be used to reduce items of expense in the farmers' business were advanced by other speakers. Freight rates were condemned as being too high. There were those who said the farmer should bring more efficiency into his business and there were others who held the farmer to be the most efficient business man in the field. Legislation, which would guarantee prices and enable the government to buy the exportable surplus, was both advocated and condemned. The present tariff was denounced as having worked a hardship on the Northwest.

On the program as speakers were Governor Preus; Governor Kendall of Iowa; J. F. Reed, president of the Minnesota Farm Bureau Federation; John R. Mitchell, representing the Federal Reserve Board; Harry Owen, publisher of a Minnesota agricultural paper; Magnus Johnson, Farmer-Labor candidate for governor; Victor E. Anderson, treasurer of the Minnesota Farm Bureau, and others. Scores of "dirt" farmers joined the discussion.

Exactly what steps should be taken and remedies that would be recommended was a question that only the powerful resolutions committee could answer, and it had not reported as this is written.

The Co-operative Marketing meeting was called jointly by the American Farm Bureau Federation and the Minnesota Farm Bureau Federation, co-operating with farm leaders in the state. It was organized as a working conference, designed to consider steps that may be taken to expand, correlate and strengthen the co-operative movement in this state. Among the speakers on the program are Aaron Sapiro, noted advocate of co-operative marketing; Mr. Peteet; President Bradfute of the American Farm Bureau Federation, and others.

All developments indicated that the week would bring results which will be of far reaching importance to not only farmers but all lines of industry in the Northwest.

"Better Homes Exposition" Last Week in Minneapolis

Color, Harmony and Good Furniture Are Emphasized at Big Furnishings Show.

France has been called "the land of theatres," Italy has been called the "land of churches," and America is called the "land of homes." With America's national life centered in the home, housewives all over the country have been endeavoring to give to the home the touches of beauty bestowed in foreign countries upon other objectives.

Art in the home was demonstrated last week to thousands of visitors at the "Beter Homes Exposition" in Minneapolis. Twenty-five completely furnished rooms circled the interior of the Armory. In the center was constructed a full size model bungalow surrounded by landscaped gardens. In both the rooms and the bungalow the art of home decoration was exemplified to the best of the ability of furniture creators.

For the first time in the furniture exposition history, a painted Jacobean suite was shown. Another painted furniture display was in the sun-room on the model bungalow. Other features were a colonial hallway, a living room with kidney furniture, two slender Heppelwhite bedrooms, an Italian Reaissance dining room suite, a Queen Anne bedroom suite and some rooms to show how furniture of different periods can be used together.

The three points emphasized in all of the exhibitions were color, harmony and good furniture, with such individual touches for any special room as might might be required to make it expressive of the good taste of its mistress.

To make the homes of Minnesota as beautiful as our national setting is the ambition of the Minnesota State Art Society, according to W. H. Rubins, president.

WHAT ABOUT FATHER?

Does the Head of the Family Have a Fair Chance For Happiness Here in America?

Does Father have a fair chance in this striving, thriving democracy of ours?

The praises of Mother have been told in song and story for untold ages—even Son and Daughter, in various tages of development, have had their delighted chroniclers, but most writers have overlooked the nominal head of the family. Father has been used merely as a background for wife, son or daughter. And it must be confessed that that is what he is in perhaps the majority of instances in America.

Father is the breadwinner—"a good thing" to be plucked and used in various ways by the members of his family—always striving to make more money to give his wife and children a better home, better clothes, more delicate food, a summer holiday in the mountains or at the sea.

Just because he is the background for his family, he has been neglected by novelists, dramatists and motion picture writers. But now comes in the person of Rupert Hughes, Goldwyn author and director, a celebrant of the virtues of the Father of the average American family. His latest motion picture, "Remembrance," is devoted to chronicling the life and struggle of "Pop" Grout and his little business in a middling American town.

"Remembrance" is coming to the Lyceum theatre Sunday and Monday. Every father will want to see it; and every wife, mother, son and daughter should see it. Father should round up his entire family and take them to see this super-photoplay. It will give them a new respect for Father and a new undertanding and sympathy with the daily problems and perplexities which confront him.

Mr. Hughes has done in "Remembrance" for Father what he did in "The Old Nest" for Mother. The two photoplays will long be linked together in the memories of those who have seen them. Taken together they form an epic of American family life. "Remembrance" has all the homely, fascinatingly human detail which sets Rupert Hughes' Goldwyn photoplays apart from all others; it has humor and pathos, dramatic action and suspense.

Mr. Hughes directed the production and was given a high-powered cast to work with. Claude Gillingwater, star of "Three Wise Fools," enacts the role of "Pop" Grout so convincingly that he seems the typical American father; Kate Lester, Cullen Landis, Patsy Ruth Miller, Richard Tucker, Dana Todd, Nell Craig, Esther Ralston, Max Davidson, William Carroll, Arthur Trimble, Lucille Ricksen and Helen Hayward complete the cast.

Job was a patient man — but he never had to eat boarding house hash.

Two Sentenced for Killing Man at International Falls.

At International Falls this week James Conroy pleaded guilty to murder in the third degree, in the killing of Pat Finnegan at Ranier in December, and was given a sentence of 25 years in the penitentiary at hard labor. Conroy calimed that at the time of committing the crime he was crazed with drink and did not know what he was doing.

John Negri was convicted of forgery in the second degree and given an indeterminate sentence of ten years.

Wonderful Story For Next Pickford Picture

Unlimited Opportunities Are Afforded Mary in Her Latest United Artists' Production.

Mary Pickford will be seen first as a little Belgian girl when she comes to the Lyceum theatre Friday and Saturday in her new picture, "Through the Back Door."

A combination of American and foreign locale, this picture offers excellent entertainment possibilities, featuring as it does the world's greatest screen actress in a child part, the role in which Mary Pickford has no peer.

The story opens at Ostend in 1903, then the gayest seashore resort in Belgium. Little Jeanne Bodamere and her pleasure-loving mother are summering at Ostend where Madame Bodamere meets Elton Reeves, a wealthy New Yorker. After a whirlwind courtship Reeves and Madame Bodamere marry. Little Jeanne is consigned to the care of her nurse, Marie, for one year, against the mothers' wishes and only because the new husband insists.

Five years pass before Mrs. Reeves returns for her little daughter. The old nurse meanwhile has married and has come to regard little Jeanne as her own. She tells the mother the child is dead.

Blaming her husband for the loss of her baby Mrs. Reeves becomes fretful and discontented. They return to America, but even Reeves' riches can not bring happiness to the disconsolate mother.

Meanwhile war breaks out in Europe. Fearing for Jeanne's safety, the nurse sends her to America with a note of explanation to her mother. Circumstances conspire to prevent her from presenting this note. She is forced to enter her mother's home as a servant through the back door. Thus does the story get its name.

In the capacity of maid, Jeanne discloses a blackmailing conspiracy against her step-father, reveals her identity to her mother in a touching scene and brings back to this household the love bird which was about to fly away.

Woman at Head of Family Must File Income Report

Supporting Invalided Husband Constitutes Sufficient Exemption From Tax.

Thousands of women are required to file an income return and pay a tax on their net income for the year 1922. No official estimate can be given of the number of such women but statistics of income for the year 1920, recently isued, show that approximately 503,000 women filed returns for that year, claiming the $1,000 exemption allowed to a single person. In addition there were filed 132,181 returns by women claiming an exemption of $2,000 as the head of a family, "a person who supports and maintains in one household one or more individuals closely related to him (or her) by blood, marriage or adoption, and who exercises family control." Under the Revenue Act now in force the personal exemption allowed the head of a family is $2,500 if the net income for 1922 was $5,000 or less, and $2,000 if the net income exceeded $5,000.

A woman who was widowed during the year 1922, unless the head of a family or remarried on or before Dec. 31, 1922, may claim a personal exemption of only $1,000. A divorcee or wife who continuously and without necessity makes her home apart from her husband is classed as a single person, and entitled only to the $1,000 personal exemption.

Whether a man and wife are "living apart," for the purpose of the income tax law, depends upon individual circumstances. A wife who supports an invalid husband in a sanitarium may claim the exemption allowed a married couple. The separation is one of necessity.

The revenue act does not precribe the amount of the exemption allowed a married woman living with her husband. Married couples living together are granted an exemption of $2,500 or $2,000 depending upon whether their combined net income is $5,000 or less, or more than $5,000. Husband and wife may make separate returns, or they may make a joint return. In the event separate returns are made, either husband or wife may claim the exemption allowed married persons, or they may divide it between them in such proportions as they choose.

Suspicion is a strange, and sometimes a ludicrous, thing, and it is always wrong, without the satisfaction of finding out that it is wrong. Two public men of prominence were talking together at a restaurant table, engaged apparently in very earnest and very confidential discussion. A man nearby, catching sight of them, whispered excitedly to his next neighbor: "I knew it; they are putting the finishing touches to the scheme to crucify the insurance bill." Knowing the visiting pair very well I dropped over and asked if I might join in. "Sure," said one, "we are having a merry old racket over Bob Fitzsimmons and Jack Dempsey." I casually asked what they thought of the insurance bill, and neither of them had ever heard about it.

There is no finer trait in a man than his ability to rejoice over the successes of others. And it is a very happy thing, too. His own failures are redeemed by his sharing in the good fortunes of his fellows.

Card of Thanks.

We wish to extend our heartfelt thanks to those who so kindly assisted us during the illness and after the death of our beloved daughter, Iola Marcella. Also for the many beautiful floral offerings.—Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Stene.

Religious Education For Children

The Mid-Week Lenten services being held in the Auditorium by St. John's Lutheran church are attracting considerable interest. Rev. Buegel's sermon, showing that man's real purpose in life is the attainment of eternal salvation through the merits of Christ, the suffering Savior, was well received by a large and appreciative audience. The same must be said of Rev. Fedcke's sermon on "The Remedy for the World's Evils," in which the speaker eloquently presented the theme: "Christian fear of the Lord, practiced by the individual, is the only force which can liberate humanity from the bondage of evil with which it is fettered and bound."

The Rev. H. A. Nuoffer of Cass Lake will present a third practical value of Christianity: "Christian Training of the Child."

One will search long for a topic of greater importance to the people of this country and city. "Religious education for children" is the live question of the day. Educators, moralists, societies, judges on the bench and religious organization are bewailing the lack of religious education in the training of our youth. They are unanimous in predicting dire results for this our beloved land, unless something is done in the near future to supply this deficiency.

Someone has said: "Education without religion is dangerous." That is only too true. The uneducated criminal is an evil; the educated crook is a menace. Does education in itself deter from lawlessness? Does education in itself make for good citizens? It does not. Our biggest law breakers are the best educated. The ignorant safe-cracker steals a few hundred; the educated banker embezzles thousands. The illiterate pickpocket snatches a purse; the highly polished and educated grafter gets away with millions.

A solid religious foundation of morality; a deep spiritual conviction of responsibility to God for one's every act; a fine religious consciousness of sin and righteousness—these are the forces that build character and make for good men and women. And if we want these, then we must make the beginning with the boys and girls.

Said Thomas Jefferson: "I have said and always will say, that the studious perusal of the sacred volume will make better citizens, better fathers, and better husbands."

The following is taken from a folder issued by the Episcopal church: "American liberty cannot long endure without a basic religious prepossession in the people, for it is easy to see that spiritual illiteracy may become a social menace. Already we find that the absence of religious training explains many things that puzzle us in the reactions of the rising generation toward our modern problems. They are moral and religious issues. Without religion as a part of the child's education our country is in grave peril."

The Rev. Nuoffer has had years of experience in the teaching of religion; he has observed its wonderful influence in the great task of character-building. His sermon will be an inspiration and a help to you, who are confronted with the same task.

Remember the speaker, the time, and the place: Rev. H. A. Nuoffer, Wednesday, 8 p. m., at the Auditorium. The English language will be used.

PROBLEMS OF CO-OPERATION.

Men who have had experience in co-operative enterprises lay down certain principles and forms of organization which such a movement ought to accept. But after all the principal element in the success of such an effort, is the kind of men who are put at the head of it. If you choose men of ability and experience and industry it will in all probability be a success. If you don't have such men to run it, it may be organized on correct principles, but it will run chances of failure.

How then shall a co-operative movement secure and retain the service of men of sufficient ability to assure its success? Sometimes a group of farmers that contemplate such an effort will not be able to find any one of their number who will give the time necessary to carry on the management of their enterprise, or they may not have anyone who feels competent to undertake it.

In such a case the co-operative society may feel that it has to go outside and hire its manager and pay a large salary. But if it pays enough to secure and keep a thoroughly good man, the salary may sometimes be too big for the business done. If it does not hire a thoroughly competent man, then it may be worse off than if it paid more for its executive work.

It will pay for the people who form a co-operative enterprise to give their own time pretty liberally to carry it on. They may not seem to get much out of it for a time, and it may appear as if they had to do all the work and take the kicks. But they are getting valuable experience.

As the business grows, they are becoming the leaders of the community, and obtaining a reputation for business competence and success in their line. The men of ability who give liberally of their own time to assure the success of such a movement will not commonly regret it.

HOW OTHERS VIEW US.

There is something about the Red River Valley in Minnesota and North Dakota that tempts men to try things on a big scale. Perhaps it is the far sweep of the horizons, perhaps it is the amazing richness of the soil. The valley is still a young empire of wheat despite recent unpleasant experiences with that crop. Last season its potato crop got clear out of hand; in a bad year, too, when cars were scarce and prices tumbling. Losses on potatoes rivaled those on wheat in its worst years.

But in balancing its books for the past year the Red River Valley has run across some exceptionally cheering items—little things it is true but pointing to big facts. In Grafton, North Dakota, $42,000 was paid to farmers for poultry in the space of two weeks. More than $100,000 worth of poultry and eggs was marketed through one firm in Crookston, Minnesota, during 1922. At Argyle, Minnesota, $6,000 worth of poultry was sent to market in a single day. An observer who spent a week in the valley was told by many farmers that poultry showed the greatest percentage of profit of any farm enterprise. Next to it was dairying. The returns from dairy cows almost invariably showed a profit.

Hens and turkeys and cows don't contribute much to the spectacular side of farming, to which the Red River Valley is rather accustomed. But they do have a way of contributing to steady profits. That is why there will be more of them in the valley this year. It is getting a better focus on the business of farming. —The Country Gentleman.

Something is certainly rotten in the coal industry, when coal mined in Wales can be bought and sold in Connecticut for less money than coal mined in Pennsylvania, a few hundred miles away. The Federal Fuel Commission, which has already had its picture taken, should be able by this time next year to tell us why with over 8,000 bituminous mines, capable of producing three hundred million tons more than our actual needs, schools and factories in many sections in 1922 and 1923 were compelled to close down for want of fuel and also why many a home had to obtain its supplies in "sample" lots.—Mapleton Enterprise.

OPTIMISM PLUS.

Over in Ellsworth, Wis., according to the Stillwater Gazete, there is an old Scotchman, Jim McNulty, who makes a living telling what will happen in the future. He predicts that Harding will be re-elected in 1924; the Republicans will sweep the country that year; the country will remain dry forever; also predicts more warm days this winter, and that the snow will go off the last of February; have an early spring and the farmers will be seeding in March; next summer will be terribly warm; 1923 good year for corn; $2 wheat in 1923-24; $5 wheat in 1925; $1 corn for 1923-24; hogs will go to $10 a hundred; plant lots of corn; big boom in business in 1924; woman president in 1945; no more wars. And several other things—Browns Valley Tribune.

In the winter of 1920-1921 there were over four million men out of employment. Now most of these men are back to work. That can mean but one thing and that is that things must come back to normal on the farm. People who work must eat and wear clothes and use up a lot of the raw material of the farm. This demand should mean higher prices for farm products.

We will always have orators and the printed page telling us how to do things, but the really successful man will scoot around both and go and do it in his own way. There is no general rule for succeeding.

President of Dairyman's Association Has Kindly Feeling for The Tribune

Confesses to Being Guilty of Reading It, Editorials, Gernsey News and All.

L. Jensen of Clearbrook, president of the Minnesota State Dairyman's Association and himself keeper of one of the finest herd of Guernseys in the Northwest, this week takes to his typewriter and tells The Tribune just what he thinks of it. Mr. Jensen "spills the beans" right out of the casserole when he confesses his guilt of reading this newspaper, its editorial and everything pertaining to Guernseys in particular and all dairying cattle in general.

Mr. Jensen was the original owner of Lady Bruce of Clovercrest, now Minnesota champion belonging to F. B. Conklin of Thief River Falls, the latter purchasing Lady Bruce when a heifer at the Jensen dairy farm. Mr. Jensen must have seen her picture in The Tribune two weeks ago and that is where this newspaper begs to differ with Jensen when he states in his letter that he has no special interest in Pennington county. Certainly he isn't so heartless that he will not take future interest in his former protege, Lady Bruce, who this year produced 715 pounds of butterfat and as a consequence has brought fame to the entire Northwest.

Anyhow Mr. Jensen has resolved as follows: "That The Tribune has good editorials, which I confess to be guilty of reading, and is a good booster for the Guernsey cow, otherwise I should not be so foolish as to part with my good simoleons, which I have earned, not by quill pushing, but by industriously and persistently massaging the udders and teats of some mighty good Guernsey cows. So, here you are. Take this filthy lucre and send me your good paper for the coming year. Sincerely yours, L. Jensen."

Income Tax Reports Must Be in By the 15th of March

If you paid $1,000 or more to any individual, partnership or fiduciary in the year 1922 you are probably liable for filing form 1096 with form 1099 with the Commissioner of Internal Revenue at Washington. The Revenue Act of 1921 states that these forms must be made by every individual, corporation, partnership, association, executor, trustee, administrator, receiver, employer and the like.

The reports are based on items paid during the calendar year regardless of the closing date of your own business year, and are due in Washington on or before the 15th of March, 1923.

If you paid $1,000 as part of the purchase price of a house it need not be reported but if you paid $1,000 or more as rent or interest on a contract or mortgage you should procure forms from L. M. Willcuts, collector of internal revenue, and file the information return.

Items in general in addition to those mentioned above which should be reported are salaries, wages premiums, emoluments, remuneration or any other fixed determinable gains or profits.

It is a simple matter and does not take much time to fill out these blanks and mail them in, and inasmuch as the revenue act prescribes a heavy penalty for failure to report in time it behooves the taxpayer to file early instead of late.

Those who received payments as reported will see that before the end of the year these payments will be checked against their income tax returns. If no return is on file they will be called upon by the collector of internal revenue to explain why. So if you were not liable for filing a return it is necessary to keep your records of income and deductible expenses to show the deputy when he calls upon you.

File early and avoid the rush.

Love that starts as a fierce fire sometimes ends as a smudge.

Strange thing about service—once you help somebody you have to keep on being a helper.

The Better Way to Health

"Can Chiropractic get me well?" This is the one question that interests every sick man, woman and child.

Modern Science offers indisputable proof that it makes no difference whether your sickness is one of the eye, ear, nose, throat, heart, lungs, stomach, liver, kidneys or any other part of your human machine. The CAUSE of sickness is always the same, namely, interference with the full flow of NERVE CURRENT by pressure of bones of the spine on delicate nerves, as they leave the spinal column.

Since Chiropractic has established the fact that the CAUSE of disease is nerve pressure obstructing the flow of vital current, then there can be only one logical method to get rid of disease—THE REMOVAL OF THE CAUSE.

We give you no drugs to poison your body—use no surgery to deprive you of useful organs—no artificial stimulation to force your tired heart to greater work, and no deadening of nerves to temporarily deaden your pain. All we do is to adjust the slightly misplaced bones of the spine to remove the CAUSE of your trouble. Consultation is free.

The State Legislature

By "County Chairman."

If legislative worth is simply a matter of just bills introduced, not to mention the multiplicity of subjects covered, then the Forty-third Minnesita Legislature now in session on Capitol Hill is all that could be desired, but if constructiveness is the test, then the Forty-third is so far a failure. With the completion of the present week the House and Senate had consumed about one-third of the 90 legislative days at their command and the best the two could show for their labors was a bill hopper registering over 1,000 measures covering as many subjects, a line of general orders totaling more than 150 bills reported out by the various standing committees and the passage of an even dozen laws. Plainly speaking, there is not a law worth while in the whole lot. To say, though, that the remaining 60 days will be in keeping with those that have gone is hardly fair to a number of men and women in both houses who are really trying to accomplish something, but honesty compels the admission that the future is not any too bright. The trouble is that team work and co-operation have been subordinated to individualism and selfishness and real constructive legislation is suffering in consequence. In the Senate there is some resemblance of team work, but chaos has the boards in the House. However, there is no need to be discouraged. There is still plenty of time for improvement.

The above may seem a trifle caustic and hardly in line with that spirit of charity and fairness that a law making body fully 75 per cent new is entitled to, but anything else would be an untruth. To say, though, that the two legislative bodies are fritting away the states' time and money in idleness would also be an untruth. The Forty-third, dear reader, is as hard working a body of law makers as ever assembled in the State Capitol, and what is more, economy is its watchword. Maturity, however, is what is lacking in a majority of the membership of the two bodies and it is what hampers. No nation on earth is more addicted to the law making habit than the United States and Minnesota is by no means the least of the nation's subdivisions engaged in the task of regulating the other fellow by means of a "bill for an act." Of the 1,000 bills introduced so far, many represent individual campaign pledges, others are the product of societies and organizations concerned with all kinds of uplift and moral welfare, and still others the vaporings of dozens of individuals, whose self-chosen task is the regulation of every line of public and business endeavor known. New members fall an easy prey to the latter and the large number of bills to date is the result. However, the one consoling feature is that the most of them will fail.

Probably the one and only piece of constructive legilation that will be realized this session will be a law carrying into effect the rural credits constitutional amendment endorsed by the voters at the last general election. Two bills having to do with this particular matter are now before the House and they will be up for special consideration this week. Col. R. A. Wilkinson of Lake Elmo will endeavor to put over a rural credits act drafted by himself and a special pre-session committee, but he has a hard task before him. Quite a few members differ with him on the question of administration, but as the Colonel is somewhat of a scrapper those on the side lines generally pick him to win.

Several bills are before the House and Senate for the restoration of capital punishment and each has had the benefit of a public hearing. So far, however, none of them have received sufficient backing to indicate their passage. The general opinion is that they will not prevail. The question of capital punishment is one that the average House and Senate member seems to be unwilling to take a stand on. As to the public hearing, public sentiment for and against was about evenly divided.

While quite a few of the House and Senate members and especially those bearing the brand of the Farmer-Labor party, are committeed to the repeal of the pre-primary convention act, the future of the bill providing for such is by no means bright. At a recent meeting of the House committee on elections the Teigen-Gislason bill providing for the repeal of the convention act was reported with only a few votes to spare and the indications were that it would be bitterly contested on the floor of the House. Gunnar Bjornson of Minneota was present and spoke against the repeal. Many Farmer-Labor party leaders believe that the convention law will be of material aid to their cause.

Senator James A. Carley of Wabasha county is probably getting more entertainment out of this session of the legislature than any of his colleagues. The Wabasha county senator has a few bones to pick with certain members of the Preus administration and any measures or resolution tending to embarrass the governor and his official family has his full sanction and support. Just now he is fathering a resolution calling for an investigation of the political activities of the Preus official family during the last campaign, especially as they relate to the use of state employes and departments in a political way, and while he may not get away with it, Jim figures he is going to have a lot of fun trying. He is also opposing some of the governor's appointments.

This week Garfield Brown, state public examiner, made public two reports covering investigations of the financial affairs of St. Louis county and the city of Luverne in Rock county and it has to be said that the showing made adds nothing to the demand being made by Iron Range towns for the repeal of the law limiting town and school district expenditures. While nothing criminal was disclosed in the case of the city of Luverne, a condition of affairs hardly to the credit of those in charge was shown and in the case of St. Louis county a line of petty larcenies the sordidness of which beggars description.

Legislators bearing the brand of the Farmer-Labor party are sufficient in numbers in both houses to hamper or aid most any measure, but so far they have failed to realize their strength. The only thing they seem to be agreed upon is legislation embarrassing to the Preus administration. When it comes to bills affecting either farmer or labor they are as far apart as the poles. In the House A. C. Welch of McLeod county heads one faction, S. A. Stockwell of Hennepin another and O. D. Nellermoe still another, and clashes between the three are frequent. It is a plain case of oil and water refusing to mix.

—o—

Reduction of the maximum interest rate in Minnesota from ten to eight per cent is being vigorously opposed by bankers throughout the state. A bill providing for such passed the Senate and the bankers hope to kill it in the House. Several bills which the bankers declare to be detrimental to good banking are now before both Houses.

—o—

Commissioner Babcock of the state highway department told a Senate committee this week that 50,000 automobile owners in Minnesota are evading the state tax. Wisconsin license plates, he said, were being used instead and many are getting away with it. He declared there was a regular traffic in Wisconsin licenses, which could be procured for $10 each.

What has become of the old fashioned woman who used to cook ham and eggs, pie, cake, buiscuits, potatoes and other vegetables, and then complain she was too busy to get anything for dinner?

Father, Mother and Two Children Die in Flames

Family of Four Suffocated and Mother and Two Children Die in Their Beds.

Fire of yet undetermined origin burned to death Mr. and Mrs. Louis Getz and their two children, Dorothy and Lillian, the younger four months old, at Baker, last week.

The Getz home, school house, blacksmith shop and town hall, all small wooden buildings, burned. The loss will not exceed $10,000.

Mrs. Getz and the children were suffocated and died in their beds. Mr. Getz had fallen near the bedroom door, leading to the conclusion that he was aroused sufficiently to make an attempt to escape after finding his family dead.

The fire, which originated in their living room, was not discovered until 7:30 and then was making such headway that it could not be controlled. Baker is a small village and has no fire apparatus. Mr. Getz was 29 years of age and his wife 21.

THE BEST GIFT.

Oh, for the heart of a child!
Taking one hour at a time,
Turning the mist and the rain
Into the ripples of rhyme;
Laughing the darkness away,
Singing the clouds out of sight;
Hoarding the commonplace day
For the making of dreams at night.
Oh, for the heart of a child,
Too simple and busy to doubt,
Letting life's wonder drift in
To put all the shadows to rout;
Swinging alone on the gate
Possessing the earth and the sky,
And hearing, as silences fall,
The fairies go whispering by.
Oh, for the heart of a child
Trusting and careless and free,
Friend of the flower and the bird,
Comrade of river and tree;
Flinging clean joy on the air,
Gathering honey and dew,
And caught in the joy that can see
How everything always is new.

The only man we are suspicious of is the fellow who always tells how honest he is.

Railway Reduces Fares to Homeseekers in Minnesota

Offers Cheaper Transportation to Prospective Settlers From the Central States.

The re-establishment of the round-trip homeseeker tickets by the Great Northern Railway to points in Minnesota, North Dakota, Montana, Washington, Idaho and Oregon marks a revival of the old established conolization methods which have been employed by this company for so many years. The homeseeker tickets provide cheap transportation for prospective settlers from the Central states. This rate will be in effect the first and third Tuesdays of each month, March to November inclusive, from all points in the Middle Western states as far east as Chicago.

The owners and renters of high priced agricultural land in the Central states and young men looking for locations are thereby given an opportunity to investigate the advantages offered homeseekers along the Great Northern Railway at a very trifling expense. The tickets permit stopovers in both directions, which gives the settlers the opportunity of deciding for themselves as to which section best suits their needs.

The general reduction in the value of farm products and consequent losses suffered by farmers everywhere during the past two years is forcing upon the owners and renters of high priced land the importance of securing cheaper lands of equal productivity.

The re-instatement of low round-trip homeseeker tickets and the reduction in charges for carload movement of settlers' effects to pre-war levels are certain to bring about a revival in the movement of settlers to the Northwest. In the broad expanses of fertile land, natural forests, magnificent natural scenery and healthful climate, the Northwest offers to the most robust and energetic manhood of the United States a real opportunity.

Giving False Information to Newspaper is Misdemeanor

Legislature Passes Law to Punish Purveying of Untruthful Statements to Press.

Practical jokers and malicious persons who amuse themselves by sending false notices of weddings, engagements or other "events" to newspapers will run foul of a new law signed late Saturday by Governor Preus. It is a brief and simple measure. Under it anyone "wilfully, knowingly, maliciously" giving to a newspaper a false statement about any person or corporation is guilty of a misdemeanor. The law takes effect immediately.

Instances where innocent people have been caused serious annoyance and humiliation by apparently harmless notices sent to newspapers were cited in support of the bill. It does not apply to cases where information is given in good faith but turns out to be erroneous. The act must be "wilful and malicious."

After this The Tribune will not publish any items sent in without the writer of the item signing his or her name. not for publication, but as a protection to ourselves.

We are Told that Disease is something from outside that somehow gets inside, and makes us sick.

The favorite delusion at present is that somewhere in the food we eat, the water we drink, or the air we breathe, there is a little micro-organism called a germ, that causes disease.

The truth is that we live in a sea of life; that every morsel of food, every drop of water and every breath of air is teeming with germs that yield their lives to yours. If germs caused disease the human race would long since have perished from the earth.

No satisfactory explanation of why different members of the same family or community suffer from different diseases has ever been vouchsafed by those who expound the environmental theory of disease.

Why does one person in a family suffer from headaches, another from a bronchial affection, a third from stomach trouble, a fourth from rheumatism, a fifth from sciatica, and a sixth from blindness?

Can you explain it from the standpoint of germs, food, air, water or any other part of the environment?

"Like causes produce like results," is an axiom of science. How, then, if disease is produced by the environment, can you explain different diseases in the same environment?

Susceptibility?

What makes people susceptible?

RURAL CREDITS PASSES IN HOUSE

All Essential Features of Measure Carry by Vote of 117 to 9; Goes to Senate Friday for Final Action

Limit on Bonded Indebtedness Placed at $40,000,000. 60 Per Cent of Appraised Land Value Loan Limit.

(Special Dispatch to Tribune.)

St. Paul, Minn., March 7, 1923. —The House passed the Rural Credits bill yesterday, 117 to 9, retaining all the essential features of the measure drafted by the Markets Committee. The administration of the new law by a bureau of three, two appointed by the governor, the other by the attorney general, withstood all debating. Loans will be allowed up to 60 per cent of appraised land value and 25 per cent of improvements and amendment fixes total outstanding bonds at $40,000,000. Farmer-Laborites tried to get interest rate on bonds reduced to 4 per cent but failed.

Consideration of the rural credits measure was made a special order on the House calendar yesterday and withstood all opposition from the conservative element in the House. It passed after running the amendment gauntlet by a vote of 117 to 9.

Numerous amendments were proposed to the bill of the House committee on markets. One which was expected to develop a fight proposed to reduce the amount which might be loaned from 60 per cent of the appraised value of the land to 50 per cent. Another amendment was proposed limiting the issuance of bonds to $10,000,000 in any one year, with a total of $35,000,000 outstanding at any one time.

The bill has been the main bone of contention in the Minnesota House since January and the question of whether administration of the law should be in the hands of a committee of three or administered by one has blocked progress in several instances.

It is now expected that the bill will go to the Senate and that it will be passed in the upper body without serious amendment.

Big Sale of Shorthorns Scheduled For March 20

Large Outlet of Purebreds to Be Held and Includes Fine Array of Cattle.

One of the largest sales of purebred Shorthorns in this section of the state will be held on Tuesday, March 20, when the well-known cattle of the Andrew T. Nelson farm, located in section 25, town of Highlanding, southeast of Goodridge, will be placed on sale.

The Nelson herd of Shorthorns are well known to cattle breeders and they have been adjudged among the finest in Minnesota. The sale includes eight purebred registered cows, four purebred Shorthorn heifers, seven purebred Shorthorn bulls, as well as an array of high grade cows and heifers, and other livestock and machinery.

The entire herd has been officially tested for tuberculosis and are pronounced as being in splendid condition. It is thought that farmers of this section interested in the Shorthorn breed, will find their opportunity of securing a number of the cattle.

A detailed advertisement showing sires, dams and registry numbers of the various animals will be published in next week's issue of The Tribune, and livestock men are asked to look for it.

North Township Pioneer Dies at Ripe Age of 92

Jacob Olson, since 1889 a resident of this section, passed away quietly at the farm home of his son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Hove of North township, two miles west of Thief River Falls, last Saturday.

Deceased had reached the ripe old age of 92 years and five months at the time of his death, which was caused by general weakness due to old age.

Mr. Olson was born in Vestmansland, Sweden, Sept. 6, 1830, and came to this country, together with his family, in 1889, settling on a homestead in town of Norden, five miles northwest of this city, in the early pioneer days. He resided there until 1900, when he sold his farm and together with Mrs. Olson made his home with his daughter, where he passed away. His wife died in 1910. Mr. Olson had been rather sickly and helpless for the past 12 years.

Crookston Will Hold Scenes at Basket Tourney

Crookston has been selected by conference teams as the place to stage the district high school basket ball championship series, which will be held in that city March 15 and 16. Arrangements already have been completed for staging the event. Crookston received five votes to two for Thief River Falls, with no report being received from Warroad.

The eight highest teams in the standings of the conference teams were eligible to vote on the selection of the tournament city. The teams which voted were: Crookston, McIntosh, Warren, Stephen, East Grand Forks, Fosston and Thief River Falls.

The tournament will be held at the Crookston Armory on Thursday and Friday, March 15 and 16, and local committees will be named within the next few days to go ahead with the proper arrangements for the event. Eight teams will take part.

Although it will not be definitely decided as to which teams will enter the tournament, it is quite certain that Crookston, Thief River Falls, Stephen, Fosston, McIntosh and Warroad will be eligible. The other two teams will be decided by the games played this week and will be any two of the following: East Grand Forks, Argyle, Warren, Bagley or Ada.

Filtration Plant Will Be in Operation by April 1

All Equipment Practically Installed and Water Mains to Be Flushed Ready for Filtered Water.

The city filtration plant will be ready for operation by April 1, according to Ole Legvold, superintendent, who today stated that all needed equipment had arrived and the building completed ready for operation within the next ten days. It will require a few days, however, to flush water mains in order to place them in condition to receive the filtered water.

Great progress has been made during the past two weeks and everything contingent upon placing the plant in operation at the earliest possible time has been rushed to completion. The large water reservoir to contain the filtered water is now completed and all necessary machinery in order and nearly ready for operation.

Next Sunday, March 11, all the water mains in the city will be shut off while the new plant is being connected to the mains, when the flushing process will commence. The water will not be shut off for more than perhaps two or three hours, according to Mr. Legvold.

Cheese Factory May Be Built as Result of Meeting

Directors of Co-Operative Creamery Requested to Look Into Proposal.

Meeting Held Yesterday Decides to Postpone Building for Present Year.

Thief River Falls may have a cheese factory as a result of the meeting held in this city yesterday afternoon of stockholders of the Thief River Falls Co-Operative Creamery association. The meeting was attended by more than 200 farmers and dairymen, and was held in the Commercial club rooms.

The directors of the association were requested by the stockholders to look into all phases of the cheese making industry and secure prices of machinery and determine the cost of starting operations along this line, and to make a report of their findings to the next meeting of the association, which will be held in this city some time in the near future.

The proposition of building a new creamery here this year was laid over and it is not thought that the undertaking will be attempted this year, it being the concensus of opinion among the stockholders that the time was inopportune and that the entire proposition be taken up later when construction could be made at a possibly cheaper figure.

The old constitution and by-laws of the association were taken up and each article read and acted upon seriatim. Inasmuch as several of the old by-laws did not conform strictly to the state statutes they were revised and amended so as to conform with the law. The new constitution will take effect April 2.

The movement to establish a cheese factory here is considered by the stockholders to be a most progressive move and one that will meet with the general favor of both creamery patrons and others alike. Some dairying communities of the state have maintained such institutions with gratifying results and it is believed that Pennington county has demonstrated its adaptability to dairying sufficiently to guarantee the success of the venture. The cost of the project, it is claimed, is insignificant when compared to the numerous benefits involved. The plant would be constructed strictly in conjunction with the creamery and would be administered by officials of the association. It is not known when the directors will complete their surveys of the project, but it is thought that something definite will be reported to the next stockholders' meeting.

Sugar Beet Man Here to Instruct Planters of Crop

Earl C. Moore, agricultural manager of the Mason City sugar beet factory, has arrived in Thief River Falls and will remain instructing Pennington county sugar beet farmers during their first year of intensive sugar beet raising. Mr. Moore plans on giving all his time to the work of pointing out to the growers the approved ways of growing beets in order to insure the best results.

Pennington county farmers and of the surrounding territory up and down the line have practically taken up the allotted acreage and it is thought that as soon as spring is definitely here, sugar beets will be one of the major crops made ready for the ground. It is understood that at Newfolden alone a total of 700 acres will be planted to sugar beets.

Another of the large growers of sugar beets in Pennington county will be C. H. Smith of this city, who will plant the large total of 100 acres this spring. He will move onto the Ben Rosendahl farm, two miles from Thief River Falls, and will devote all his time to the venture. Mr. Smith will be assisted by Lyle Manther, one of the owners of the City Dray and Fuel company.

It is thought that the arrival of Mr. Moore to direct the planting and caring for sugar beets will have splendid effect and unmistakably indicates that local beet growers are enthusiastic over the prospects of producing a large tonnage of the beets this year. Mr. Moore has spent many years at the sugar beet game and knows it from every angle. He is an authority on the best ground to be selected for the crop, fertilization and care during the growing period. Heretofore he has spent most of his time in the Mason City section and has made out of that territory the greatest sugar beet producing area in the United States. The fact that Pennington county already has produced the highest sugar containing beets in the country has given Mr. Moore splendid territory to work in and he undoubtedly will proceed on the theory that this section will some day be an important sugar beet center.

The committee in charge of the sugar beet proposition is satisfied with the progress already made and states that there is no question but what all the allotted acreage will be taken up. Meetings are to be held from time to time, when growers will be privileged to get together and discuss sugar beet growing from all its various angles in order that all growers may be able to get the best results from the very outset.

Bootleg Whiskey Will Make America Nation of Chattering Apes, Isadora Duncan's Statement

Paris, March 5.—"America will be inhabited by a couple of hundred million chattering apes in two or three generations if prohibition lasts," Isadora Duncan declared in her latest fling at the land which didn't agree with her idea of beauty.

"Some Americans may stand for prohibition, but no genius can stand for prohibition whiskey," she claimed. The famous dancer, whose American tour was cut as short as her draperies, attacked prohibition in coming warmly to the defense of her poet-husband, Serge Essening, from whom she is separated after he threw the crockery of their Crillon apartment at her head.

"Our sojourn in America probably has killed him," she said sorrowfully.

"When he was in France he drank wine; in America nothing but bootleg whiskey. He cannot live the life of an ordinary person. He is the most potent expression of the Slav soul alive. He is like Edgar Allen Poe. I hope his fate is not the same. He has gone to Russia to get away from synthetic civilization."

NEW BRIDGE BONDS RECEIVE SLIGHT CONSIDERATION FROM VOTERS AT ELECTION TUESDAY

Thief River Falls voters showed the proposition of the city issuing $60,000 in ten to twenty-year bonds to defray the cost of constructing a bridge over Red Lake river at the foot of Johnson street slight consideration when the proposition came before them at the bond election yesterday. An exceedingly light vote was registered, only 719 casting their ballots on the question. Of this total 530 voted "No" and 189 voters favored the proposition.

The bonding question carried in but one ward, the Fourth, where it won out by a vote of 133 to 109. All other wards decisively defeated the proposition and in the Third ward but eight voters cast their ballots for the bonds. The election involved the issuance of $60,000 negotiable coupon bonds payable semi-annually and maturing serially 10 to 20 years from date of issue.

The Johnson street bridge proposition has been a live topic in Thief River Falls for some time and the light vote hung up at yesterday's election is surprising. Many voters were of the opinion that a bridge across the river at Johnson street was a necessity, but as no emergency existed in carrying traffic to the east side, it was thought best to await the time when conditions shaped themselves in face of the rather heavy indebtedness of the city at the present time and the high rate of taxation.

Others favored the widening and repairing of the present bridge at the foot of First street, which at this time is considered inadequate to care for the traffic now going to and from the east side. No estimate of the cost of this, however, was forthcoming, and east siders pere opposed to the proposition on the ground that it would not greatly relieve the traffic problem to their end of the city.

A few talked of the moving of the bridge to a point farther up the river, probably to Johnson street, but the cost of this would be too great for serious consideration and would leave Bridge street without traffic facilities.

It is now thought that the bridge proposition will rest for some time, or at least until more favorable consideration can be expected from residents on the west side of the river.

Conference Urges Co-op. Marketing, Stabilized Price

1,000 Farmers and Business Men from 10 States at St. Paul Meeting.

Majority Resolutions Committee Report Asks for Congressional Action.

Orderly marketing of farm products through well-directed co-operative organizations and immediate congressional action to stabilize prices of crops on a basis of cost of production were indorsed by delegates attending the Northwest Agricultural Price Stabilization conference in St. Paul, Feb. 27 and 28.

More than 1,000 business men from ten wheat growing states paid their own railroad fare and expenses to attend the meeting, which was called less than three weeks ago by the Minnesota Farmer-Banker Council.

Following the conference, leaders met again on Friday to consider more intimately details of the co-operative marketing plan. This meeting was called by the American Farm Bureau Federation, the Minnesota Farm Bureau Federation, co-operating with farm leaders. Principal speakers at this conference were Walton Petee, director of marketing for the American Farm Bureau Federation, and Aaron Sapiro, nationally known exponent of farmer-owned terminal sales agencies.

The key-note of the marketing phase of the price stabilization conference was sounded by Walton Pet-

Parent-Teachers Indorse Movie Coming to Lyceum

Picture Also Receives Wholehearted Sancition of National Body of W. C. T. U.

"The Ruling Passion," coming to the Lyceum theatre Friday and Saturday, received the wholehearted and unqualified indorsement of the local Parent-Teachers' Association at the meeting held at Lincoln high school last night, attended by a large number. The play already has received the sanction of the national body of the W. C. T. U.

The coming photoplay is unusual in that it deals with modern business methods and the attempt of a business man, in the role of a garage keeper, in "getting back to normal."

Rotary organizations in every part of the country are working in an effort to get business back to normal and they have shown that depression sometimes is largely a matter of mind. Rotary members have shown that depression can be overcome by HUSTLE. The whole country is hustling to get back on its feet and the business revival that appears to be due this fall is a natural outcome.

The Rotary idea is now being conveyed by the motion picture in the remarkable George Arliss comedy, entitled "The Ruling Passion," coming to the Lyceum theatre Friday and Saturday.

Town of North Officials Balk at Supporting Poor

Claim Destitute Families Move Into Township and Bring Burden Upon Taxpayers.

At a meeting of officials of the town of North, held in Thief River Falls yesterday afternoon, the town supervisors passed a resolution to the effect that in future the owners of vacant buildings within their township who allow destitute families to move into them without visible means of support and which later fall back on the township to tide them over the lean times, must take full responsibility for the tenants they take in.

Past experiences have proven, say the officials, that invariably these families call upon them for aid, which they feel wholly unable to bear, and for that reason passed the resolution. It has been amply demonstrated, they claim, that something ought to be done about the matter, hence the resolution condemning the practice.

C. S. Sapero Leaves City; Closes Up Affairs Here

May Join Father in Business Venture on Pacific Coast During Present Year if Plans Mature.

C. S. Sapero, better known as "Sol," left Thief River Falls Sunday evening for Hibbing, Minn., where he will visit for a short time with Mr. and Mrs. A. Sapero before leaving for California, where he may possibly join his father in a business venture on the Pacific coast.

Mr. Sapero has closed up practically all the business affairs of the Sapero company here since the establishment was sold three weeks ago to Albert Lieberman, who will conduct it as a ladies' ready-to-wear store and will possibly add a woman's shoe line.

During his stay in Thief River Falls Mr. Sapero had gained a wide circle of friends who genuinely regret his departure from this city. He was always known as one of the ready boosters of everything pertaining to the welfare of Thief River Falls and took an active part in all progressive movements towards making the city the important trading center for this section of the state.

Taken to Minneapolis Hospital. Mrs. M. P. Rapacz, wife of M. P. Rapacz, principal of the Thief iRver Falls high school, was taken to St. Mary's hospital at Minneapolis Friday night, ill with what local physicians diagnosed as sleeping sickness. Reports from Minneapolis state that her condition is unchanged.

Large Honor Roll This Week Led By Munt With Total Pins of 568; Others Also High.

City Dray and Fuel won two games this week from the Soo men, who apparently have hit the toboggan in bad shape and are at the bottom of the list with a percentage of .266. The Co-operative Creamery bowlers won two from the Grocers and are leading the field.

There is a large honor roll this week led Munt with a total pin record of 568. Grendahl is next with 567; Olsen, 543; Williams, 529; Jonas, 507, and Manther, 501.

Cow Testing Work in State Steadily Gains

Greater interest is being taken in cow testing work over the state than ever before, says E. A. Hanson, dairy livestock specialist. The Martin County Testing association, with H. A. Anderson tester, was recently organized among dairymen of Sherburn, Welcome and Fairmont. Old associations reorganized and put on a new basis are the South Hennepin, Lawrence Wogensen of Hopkins, tester; Nicollet county, Milton Peterson of St. Peter, tester; Long Prairie in Todd county, Floyd Bemis of Long Prairie, tester.

While there are 4 active assiciations and two on the inactive list, with a total of between 13,000 and 14,000 cows in such associations, less than one per cent of the dairy cows in the state are on test, says Mr. Hanson. Dairy authorities have estimated that about one cow out of every three in Minnesota is unprofitable for her owner. Cow testing associations are organized to improve feeding methods and weed out the nonproducers. If no more than 5 or 6 per cent of all dairy cows in the state were under test, a tremendous saving could be made for dairymen.

Mr. Hanson reports that organization plans are well advanced for several new associations.

Our Rural Schools.

FAIRVIEW SCHOOL, Dist. No. 50.

How did you all overcome the blizzards? We were all "Snowbound" in the true sense of the word. However, we were fortunate in that we had supplied ourselves with lots of wood before the storm, so those of us who ventured to come were quite cozy indoors.

We all profited much by our study of spelling in preparing for the sectional contest. During the week we wrote five five-hundred lists of words. The highest spellers were Joe Krbechek of the seventh grade and Melvin Hyland of the fifth grade.

Much of our work was centered around Eskimos and Jack Frost. Eskimo boys and kayaks formed the designs for spelling bookelts. Gladys Rime of the third grade received the largest number of spelling stars. Attendance was exceptionally good, half of the pupils receiving perfect attendance certificates.

Much of the work this month has been on Lincoln, Washington and St. Valentine. Lincoln's boyhood rather than his manhood appealed to the children. The upper grades constructed cardboard cabins, writing their stories inside of them. The lower grades having been working on Lincoln, Washington and Valentine blackboard borders. In language classes, compositions were written on "How We Come to Have Valentine's Day," and "Having Fun Making Valentines." Every spare moment was spet in making valentines for the box. The children brought cakes, cookies and made cocoa for a Valentine party given on Friday, at which time valentines were distributed. The children were divided into couples of boy and girl each and given a couple of heart puzzles to "set up." The couple getting through first had the honor of of being "mail carriers."

Cupids' hearts were used for spelling booklet designs. Our spelling honor roll this month is the best we have had so far. Each month the leading spelle ris awarded with a small prize to be given on the last day of school.

During the Christmas vacation our hot lunch equipment was installed and we have served lunches very successfully since the first day of school. We are receiving splendid co-operation from the parents and pupils, and serving lunches is great fun as well as being of value to ourselves.

Each week, on Friday, one hour is given over to manual training for boys and sewing for girls. The boys show very much interest in their work and they have made several very good looking articles. The school seems a regular carpenter shop amid the din of planes, hammers and saws. The pupils supply all their own tools and materials.

We are wishing you all continued success in your work and the arrival of an early spring.

Ourt attendance for the month of January has not been as good as that of the preceding months due to illness. Those receiving their perfect attendance certificates are: Carl Carl Berggren, Julia Berggren, Gladys Hanson, Emma Letnes, Evelyn Letnes, and Harold Letnes. Julia Berggren and Harold Letnes have earned their large attendance certificates.

BIG GROVE SCHOOL NOTES.

Why We Should Be Neighborly.

We should be neighborly because neighborliness helps to make a better community. By associating with our friends and neighbors we can have more and better entertainments.

We should also be willing to help our neighbors, as there may be times when we are in need of help, and then they will be more than willing to help us. By being neighborly and working together, more can be accomplished and thus our community shows progressiveness. There are several ways of keeping up the appearance of our community. One is to have well built roads and keep them in good condition. Another is to have the farmyard clean. Still another is to have the school ground clean and school buildings in good repair. Nearly every farm has fences. These, too, should be in the best condition possible.

Every member of a well-built community will feel proud of it and such communities will be desirable for permanent homes, so will not have a changing population.

But if there should be a home for sale in a community having such an appearance, there will be no difficulty in securing a buyer as the community itself will attract strangers.

Percy Johnson and Norman Jorgenson have completed their hammer handles and are now working on their cutting boards.

Owing to the small attendance on Valentine day, our valentine box was not opened until Thursday, when all were well remembered by friends.

For industrial work, the primary grades are now making hammocks and expect to have them finished soon.

A little more than a month remains of our school terms. Attendance in the past has been rather irregular. Let us hope that each one will endeavor to make the attendance of our last month perfect.

The sixth grade were asked to write two paragraphs explaining the difference between an airplane and a balloon. One boy wrote the following: A balloon goes by air and is full of wind. The airplane runs by motor and has a tail and wings.

DISTRICT NO. 149.

Life of Abraham Lincoln.

Gertrude Lockrem, grammar, Feb. 9, 1923.)

Abraham Lincoln was born in Kentucky February 12, 1809.

His parents were very poor. They lived in a log cabin. One side was open and they had the fire on the outside. Abraham slept on a bed of leaves.

He did not have much schooling and his mother helped him with his reading lessons at home so he could read pretty well. When he did not have any paper, he would do his sums on a piece of board and keep them until he received paper. He was a lover of books.

He was always kind, honest, true and kind-hearted. Once when he was out driving he saw a pig in a mud pool unable to get out. Abraham Lincoln felt sorry for the pig and jumped down and carried him out. He did not care if he spoiled his clothes when he could save the pig.

His mother died when he was seven years old.

He was a surveyor, a lawyer, storekeeper, choreboy, rail-splitter and, last of all, our president.

He made a great many speeches. The one most famous is "Lincoln's Gettysburg Address." He made this one during the Civil war.

He was president for four years. When he was attending a theater at Washington, John Kilkis Booth, a half-crazed actor crept up behind him and shot him through the head. He died a few hours afterward.

5 FAIRVIEW SCHOOL, Dist. 6.

In spite of the fact that February is a short month, it has been made shorter; school was closed the 14th on account of the severity of the weather, only one pupil being present. School was not in session the 22nd, as we observed Washington's birthday.

On February 12 a short program was held instead of the regular classes of the last quarter of the day. Stories of Lincoln's life, as a boy and as the president, were told by the different pupils. Patriotic songs were sung and Lincoln's Gettysburg Address recited by one of the pupils of the advanced classes. While we were thus in a patriotic spirit we held our regular meeting of the Little Citizens League. It was decided to have a valentine box February 14, but it had to be postponed until Friday, when most of the pupils resumed attendance after the storm.

The Star Light Reading circle held a meeting February 9. It was attended by four of its members. Mr. Brevig, one of the four, just having been initiated.

As an example of the work being done by the fourth grade language class this composition was produced by LeRoy Allan after a study of silk:

"Silk."

The mother worm lays her eggs. When they are hatched a little worm comes out of them. Then they get sleepy so the mother worm spins a nice bed of silk. The worm spins the cacoon full of silk. Men kill the little worm before it makes a hole in it.

Then the silk is taken out. The silk is used for many things, ribbons and all sorts of things. It is the most valuable cloth there is. Pretty ribbons for girls are also made from it.

Herbert Vettleson, previously a 3rd grade pupil, was promoted to the 4th grade last month. He is doing very good work and has mastered most of the work already missed.

Grumble? No, what's the good? Spring is already here again with its store of attractions. Your ship has manly weathered the gale and is now victoriously nearing its destined harbor. Why not a thankful expression?

A very pleasant evening was enjoyed by the young folks of our community last week at the L. H. Korupp home. Chorus practice formed the chief amusement. With our able instructor we are advancing with leaps and bounds.

The following extract is taken from our Little Citizens editorial, "The Crumbs": The advanced grades had a test in physiography, physiology and algebra last week. The sixth and 7th grades, in geography, arithmetic and history.

Another new scholar was added to our list this week.

Last night when several of the neighbors were driving home from the club meeting they noticed a red light along the western skyline which they believed to be a fire. There were a number of ideas as to where the fire was.

The Community club recently organized, has the following officers: President, W. P. Larsaa; vice president, L. H. Korupp; secretary and treasurer, Louie Nitzschke, and legal advisor, Mrs. L. H. Korupp. A program and debate will be held at the next meeting. The question for debate is: "Resolved, that city life is preferable to country life." The affirmative leader is Mrs. Carl Christianson and the negative leader is Alexander Larson.

Two stories, one by a third and one by a fifth grade pupil, were put in "The Crumbs" this time.

The stories are as fololws: "What Father Does." Father gets up early and has breakfast. Then he goes out to the barn and feeds the horses, cows and calves and cleans the barn. When this is done he waters the horses and cows, feeds them some more and then goes and has his dinner. In the afternoon he has a lunch. When the chores are done for the evening he has his supper and last of all goes to bed.

"Saturday at Home." In the morning I get up and give the cattle hay. When I am through with this I go into the house and mamma makes the breakfast. When I have had breakfast I water the horses. When I have watered the horses papa takes them for a load of hap. Sometimes I help him with it.

We are wondering why days are so long before Valentine day.

Our school was visited by an interested board member last week.

I am well satisfied with the work of our school since last meeting.

George Arliss Appears in Philanthropic Role

Noted Star Will Be Seen in New Characterization in "The Ruling Passion."

A treat is in store for patrons of the Lyceum theatre Friday and Saturday of this week, when the George Arliss photoplay, "The Ruling Passion," will be shown.

This star and this picture is doubly welcome to every lover of the photoplay for the reason that Mr. Arliss has won the admiration of every screen critic for his artistry, and in the United Artists release, "The Ruling Passion," he follows a course hitherto uncharted for him.

George Arliss is recognized for his characterizations in which sinister motives and a satyrical, cynical, crafty, cruel impersonation come first. In his new picture, Mr. Arliss has the role of a lovable, elderly millionaire and philanthropist, who plunges into the hobby of work while under the doctors' orders to "rest." That he works out the details of a charming love story in which his daughter is involved, is a work of great importance as the story unfolds.

Associated with Mr. Arliss in his remarkable impersonation at the Lyceum theatre are such sterling players as Miss Doris Kenyon, Edward Burns, Miss Ida Datling, J. W. Johnston, Ernest Hilliard, Harold Waldridge and other players of note in the silver sheet domain.

Extra Miles Run Up Road Users' Expense

Every extra mile of distance on the average Minnesota trunk highway or so-called Babcock road, which carries an average of 710 vehicles a day, costs the traffic using it more than $25,000 a year, at the commonly accepted average of 10 cents a mile for vehicle operation.

Three months' use of a detour involving three extra miles of travel costs the users nearly $20,000 on the same basis, if the detour is in fairly good condition.

Twenty-five thousand dollars will pay 5 per cent interest on $500,000 and $20,000 will pay that on $400,000 principal.

John H. Mullen, assistant commissioner and chief engineer in the state highway department, pointed to the figures to show why it is often economical to buy new right-of-way and build new roads when distances can be reduced. Operating costs are an important factor also in deciding on economical grades—where cuts and fills can be made at big savings to highway users, he added.

"This extra travel expense falls on the highway user although it is difficult at times to show the individual just what part of it he is paying," said Mr. Mullen. "Figures like the above are teaching highway engineers the lesson railroad engineers learned years ago. Railroads find it pays to spend large sums to reduce mileage, build bridges and make big cuts and fills. They did not do this in the early days, else they would have made big savings. With increasing traffic census figures and operating cost data before them, highway officials are building conservatively but with an eye to the future."

The average highway user seldom thinks of the extra mile because the individual cost seems to him too infinitesimal to consider. But multiplying the individual case by 500 or 1,000 a day and totalling the figures over a week, month or year, gives astonishing results.

Discovery of Pharaoh's Tomb Thrills Art Folks

Two or More Years May Be Required Before Explorations Will Be Completed.

Discovery in the famous Valley of the Kings in Egypt of the "lost tombs" of the Pharaohs, the sepulcher of King Tutankhamen, who reigned nearly 3,500 year ago, has sent a thrill through the scientific world.

In the dark recesses of the subterranean royal burial chamber there have been found hundreds and hundreds of objects last caressed by hands which moved in an era long since dissolved in the mystery of time.

There were gorgeous funerary trappings and articles considered necessary for comfort and happiness during the progress to Elysian fields. Four brilliantly hued chariots with hubs and bosses and bindings of gold were found. Three royal ceremonial gilt couches, bedsteads, chairs of ebony and inlaid with ivory and silver, stools of papyrus rush work and wood were found and there was also the royal throne of that ancient day, a magnificent piece of handicraft of gold and silver and semi-precious stones.

Magnificent chests and caskets and shrines of ebony and ivory inlaid with gold and silver were discovered, some with scenes depicting the monarch in battle, or on the hunting field. The art work is said to surpass in workmanship the finest Japanese or Chinese art.

In the sepulchre itself was the magnificent sarcophagus with four beautiful statues of women at either corner.

Still another room has been found and there may be many more. The tomb is being sealed until next fall, as the hot weather commencing in April precludes further investigation at the moment. Two or more years may be required, it is estimated, before the explorations will be completed.

"That art over 3,000 years ago was a part of the daily life is evidenced by these excavations," said Mr. Ferris B. Martin, vice president of the Minnesota State Art Society. "These discoveries," he continued, "serve to increase the wide interest of Minnesotans in things artistic, the value of which has been demonstrated in practical terms in industry."

Does It Pay to Worry About Appendicitis?

Can appendicitis be guarded against? Yes, by preventing intestinal infection. The intestinal antiseptic, Adler-i-ka, acts on BOTH upper and lower bowel, removing ALL foul, decaying matter which might start infection. EXCELLENT for gas on stomach or chronic constipation. It removes matter which you never thought was in your system and which nothing else can dislodge. One man reports it is unbelievable the awful impurities Adler-i-ka brought out. F. J. The Telephone!

If you have ever moved to a new location without first having a telephone installed, you will recall how its absence was felt.

To make such a happening less probable, it is best to notify us as soon as you know when you will move.

But sometimes, even in spite of an advance notice, we cannot provide service at the new location as promptly as we would like to do. This is particularly true the first of the month when many people are moving at the same time.

Before moving your telephone we need to know your name and telephone number, the street address or apartment number to which you are moving and when you want telephone service at your new location.

TO STABILIZE PRICES.

For more than two years the Senate Agricultural committee has held hearings on different bills for the relief of agriculture. Hundreds of witnesses, individuals, association representatives, bankers and others from all parts of the country have been heard, and the almost unanimous opinion is that the only hope for the farmer is to stabilize prices for the next three years at least.

The question, "Can farmers work out their present financial difficulties?" was submitted to the banks of Minnesota, North and South Dakota and Montana, and of 291 answers all but five stated that it was impossible. Newspapers were offered in evidence showing that in some counties in North Dakota more than 75 per cent of all the farms were advertised for sale for delinquent taxes. Records showed that last year in Minnesota there were 34 suicides on the farms of the state; 87 in North Dakota; 32 in South Dakota and 15 in Montana—a total of 168 on the farms of these four states in twelve months. Similar conditions prevail in other grain states, and the stories of suffering among women and children are only equaled by the pitiful tales we have from Russia.

Senator Gooding of Idaho has charge of a bill that has been favorably reported by the Senate committee on agriculture that is designed to help this situation by stabilizing prices for a period of three years. It provides for a corporation with a capital stock of $300,000,000 and a board of three members to be appointed by the president and approved by the Senate. The bill fixes the price of No. 1 Northern spring wheat for the crop of 1923 at $1.75 per bushel with a charge of 5 cents a bushel for handling, making the price to the farmers $1.70 per bushel, less the local elevator charges. It authorizes the board, on the 1st day of July of the next two years, to fix the crop prices for those years.

Senator Gooding points out the fact that the government is responsible for this condition of the wheat grower. During the war the government, through the Grain Corporation, bound the wheat grower down to a maximum of $2.20 a bushel for his wheat, and then increased the price of labor 106 per cent, and freight rates 65 per cent. During this three-year period the actual cost of producing wheat was $2.12 per bushel—less than the average price received without considering handling or freight rates. It is estimated that the Grain Corporation made a clear profit from wheat purchased during this period of at least $50,000,000. During the same period and including last year, the wheat growers lost over two thousand millions of dollars.

Legislation of this character is not new to our government. Congress has stabilized the wages of 1,700,000 railroad men; it stabilized the freight rates and guaranteed a profit of 6 per cent on the capital of the railroads of this nation; it stabilized the price of silver, the market price of which is today 66 cents per ounce, while the government is paying $1.00 per ounce; it tried to stabilize the shipping industry by paying a big subsidy.

Unless the farmers and agricultural producers of this country are prosperous, there can be no permanent prosperity for anyone. The most this measure will accomplish is to help the wheat grower pay the interest on his mortgage, but it will also benefit every other business.

If the Progressive bloc should succeed in calling a special session of Congress it is certain that this bill will be given favorable consideration.

THE OVERCHARGE ON COAL.

The United tSates Coal Commission, appointed by the President to investigate the cost of producing and selling anthracite coal, has been presented with an alluminating bill of particulars by the officials of the miners' union. The miners claim an unjust overcharge to the consumer of at least $3.61 per ton. This begins, it is alleged, with a charge of $1.26 added to the cost of mining; then $1.00 a ton is added to the transportation cost and $1.35 to the cost of distribution. The estimate is made that the combined overcharges impose a needless burden of from $4.00 to $5.00 a ton on consumers of domestic sizes of anthracite. It is shown from official reports that the profits of six of the larger coal corporations were $32,000,000 in the year 1920, compared with $8,800,000 in 1912. On this basis, if all anthracite producers profit similarly, the 1920 earning would amount to $51,000,000 as compared with $13,000,000 for 1912.

The disclosures are presented in such form that the commission must give serious consideration. If the allegations be proved, measures of relief will be recommended.

"THE LAST OF TWO MILLION."

Two weeks ago an American transport pushed its nose into a pier at Savannah, Ga., with the last of two million men aboard, constituting the final regiments of the American army which fought in France and later guaranteed the principles for which their former comrades had fought by standing guard for three years on German soil in the vicinity of Coblenz.

At this late date The Tribune cannot but look back a piece and contemplate the scene at Coblenz when these valiant Americans heard the first "Retreat!" barked by an American army officer. Certainly they had not heard it until three years after the final shot. And now:

The orders have been published.

At the last note the Adjutant barks "Attention!" and as the heels click together, number one gun of the saluting battery speaks once.

"Pre-e-e-sent Arms!"

The taut rifle slings echo the command of execution and the American Flag begins its slow, graceful descent to the arms of the color guard at the base of the staff.

A moment of expectant silence, then from the high watch tower overlooking the Rhine float the notes of "Taps" blown on a single bugle.

Clear, melodious, wistfully sad the bugle seems to be speaking over the heads of the scant regiment in the cobbled square below to that other American Army back in Romagne which will never quit the field. Each note seems to be a word of farewell to those who stood their last "Retreat" to the hellish thunder of a thousand field pieces and whose "Taps" was the coughing grunt of machine guns hastily emplaced to hold the ground they died to take.

As the bugler ceases the pieces drop to the "ready" and the American Occupation of the Rhine is a thing of the past.

History has just been made and the men feel it. There is a tension in the ranks which is more than military alertness. Here and there a recruit clears his throat, nervously, and in the file closers the "old timers" are holding their heads a trifle stiffer. Their eyes are harder. They wouldn't admit it for three months' pay but it just seemed as though they got a flash of that white studded green field at Romagne when that bugler blew taps!

CITIZENSHIP FOR INDIANS.

A movement was recently launched in Philadelphia to induce the Rotary Clubs of America to bring their influence to bear to obtain citizenship for the Indians, the "real Americans." Dr. Joseph K. Dixon, leader of the Rodman Wanamaker historical expedition to the North American Indian, asserts that 65 per cent of the redmen are blind from tracoma, and 45 per cent are dying from tuberculosis. Many of these Indians, the doctor says, are assigned to live in places where you "couldn't grow a radish any more than you could grow an angel." The Black Feet tribes are given supplies for a month that a healthy man can eat in a day, and they are slowly starving to death. Dr. Dixon says the white man has been busy killing Indians for 400 years and he is now finishing the job.

The doctor is no doubt correct in his opinion that if the Rotary Clubs get behind the movement, the people of the United States will assume a different attitude and it will not be long until the Indian is given the full rights of citizenship.

According to postoffice statistics the government pays $150,000 every week to deliver an issue of the Saturday evening Post—and $7,800,000 per year to distribute that magazine more than the owners pay to the department. All other magazines get the same average subsidy. Of course this is not socialism—but the farmer pays half the bill.

When Uncle Joe Cannon quit Congress on March 4, American public life lost one of its most picturesque figures. For longer than most readers can remember, his black felt hat, white chin whiskers and aggressive cigar have been familiar in Congress. In fact, Congress without Uncle Joe cannot be quite the same. He quits with forty-six years of service behind him, and he goes voluntarily, believing that a rest might prove useful. He is 87 and hearty. He was four times Speaker of the House, has remained there longer than any other man, and in other days was looked upon as somthing of a martinet when in power. His term as Speaker was the second longest in the history of the House, and he has lasted years longer than most of the 8,000 men who have served in Congress.

It is more than ten months since the United States Senate ratified almost unanimously the naval limitation treaty, which was one of the fruits of the Washington Conference for the Limitation of Armament. Some four months later Japan followed suit; then Canada, India, and the Union of South Africa consented to its provisions, and a few days thereafter Great Britain gave formal approval to them. And now Italy has gone on record as favoring its terms. France alone remains to act. It may be easy to overlook and forgive some things—but France should not forget that other nations of the earth have some rights that should be respected.

Great Britain pays to its unemployed workingmen the sum of $500,000,000 per year.

The first bill signed by Governor Donahey of Ohio makes a murderer of any person who furnishes wood alcohol or beverages containing it or any other kind of intoxicants that result fatally to the recipient.

THE OPTIMIST AND THE TRIBUNE

We were quite optimistic when we started to write this editorial. We had planned to preach a sermon and point a moral. We were going to try to convince the students of their luck in being able to attend "Assisted by Sadie."

But then we considered. Nobody reads editorials, except maybe someone who wishes to pick the articles to pieces or to while away an hour in class. That being the case, we saw how foolish it would be to con the dictionary and hammer out an effort in our best rhetoric.

Still we must write an editorial. Our admission to "Assisted by Sadie" depends upon it, partly. We are being given a free ticket for editing this issue, and we must make a good job of it or the ticket won't be ours. Being determined and imbued with Coue, we shall try.

Let us take for our first consideration the question of finances. The play costs four bits. Now four bits will buy five loaves of bread, two pounds of steak, or two dozen eggs, all of which have a higher caloric value than does a ticket. Yet our spirits need rejuvenation and our minds refreshment, which the play will supply, and our hearts need the assuaging that only a play can give. Besides, our memory will be stored with beautiful sights and happy incidents that the sizzling steak or scrambled eggs could never furnish.

Then there's the question of supporting the school, but, of course, everyone is keen to support the school.

We could go on so for hours, but we hate to repeat what so many others have said. We must be original. Our suggestion is that the readers of the paper attend "Assisted by Sadie."

That's the suggestion and we hope you like it as much as we do. We are going to practice it regularly, only our prayer will be that the play committee won't forget us when the tickets begin to fly.

And that's being optimistic.

CONFERENCE URGES CO-OPERATIVE MARTS

eet. Speaking Tuesday, when he occupied practically the entire evening for a discussion of his subject, he urged that the future prosperity of farming in this country rested, in the last analysis, on group action in the market place. This was necessary, he said, because such a policy has been adopted by all other lines of industry.

The decision as to price stabilization was reached only after prolonged debate, incident to the submission to the convention of minority and majority reports by the resolutions committee.

The majority report, adopted by an overwhelming majority, cited that a crisis exists in American agriculture; that the man on the farm is bearing more than his share of the common burdens and that while other lines of business are prosperous, hundreds of thousands of farmers are facing bankruptcy.

"Until such time as farmers are in position, through their own agencies, to handle and control the marketing of their products," the resolution, as adopted, read, "we call upon congress to immediately stabilize the price of farm products on the basis of the cost of production."

The majority resolution also asked for the passage of the Gooding bill, which would create an agency similar to the war-time U. S. Wheat corporation and establish a minimum price on wheat of $1.75 at the terminals.

Old Knox School Being Brought to Ice Surface

Unusual Engineering Feat Is Witnessed by Large Number of Curious Onlookers.

The old Knox school building, precipitated into Red Lake river several weeks ago when the structure crashed through the ice during the time the contractors were attempting to take the first half of the building over the river, this week is being raised to the ice's surface by a crew of workmen.

Piles have been driven through the ice and into the river bed to sustain the tremendous weight of the structure while jackscrews are being brought into play in order to raise the building to the surface of the ice, when it will be supported by pilings until taken to the shore.

The operations are unusual and draw large numbers of curiosity seekers to the river to watch the performance. The thaw of the past several days has handicapped the workmen to a large extent but freezing weather yesterday and today has made operations considerably easier. The second half of the building will be taken over as soon as possible.

"Jesus Christ" to Be Topic at Auditorium

By Rev. E. H. Kreidt.

"Christ—a man whom the world could not do without. Before his time, and since, there ahve been men indispensable to particular people and periods; but his indispensability was to the whole race, and for all time—a respect in which it is unique, solitary, divine:" thus writes Lew Wallace in his masterpiece, "Ben Hur."

Jesus Christ is the central figure, the outstanding character of the human race. He has left his stamp on the world as no other. He who would understand the course of the world, the march of civilization, must understand Jesus Christ and his work.

Who was he? Why was he? What was the key to his influence, which has not weakened these two thousand years?

The answers are many and varied. Today, when the opinions regarding Jesus Christ are so uncertain, and even destructive, it will be worth while to hear one who still believes in the historic Christ and his universal mission.

The people of Thief River Falls are cordially invited to hear the Rev. Erdman Frenk of Bemidji, Wednesday at 8 p. m., at the Auditorium, when he speaks on "Jesus Christ, the Savior."

Round of Pleasure in Store For Young Folks

On Saturday night this week the Community Girls will throw open their club rooms to the young folks of this community. The club rooms will be open every week night, except Monday nights, from 7 until 10 o'clock. The object is to provide a recreation center where the younk folks may meet and enjoy themselves in various forms of recreation.

Miss Bertha Poston, who for eleven years has been in social work in the East, will have full charge. It is hoped that a goodly number of our young people will be present Saturday night to enjoy the program and hear what the plans for the future meetings are.

We Chiropractors Work with the Subtle Substance of the Soul

DEFINITION
The practice of Chiropractic consists of the adjustment, with the hands, of the movable segments of the spinal column to normal position for the purpose of releasing the prisoned impulse

We release the prisoned impulse, the tiny rivulet of force, that emanates from the mind and flows over the nerves to the cells and stirs them into life. We deal with the magic power that transforms common food into living, loving, thinking clay; that robes the earth with beauty, and hues and scents the flowers with the glory of the air.

In the dim, dark, distant long ago, when the sun first bowed to the morning star, this power spoke and there was life; it quickened the slime of the sea and the dust of the earth and drove the cell to union with its fellows in countless living forms. Through aeons of time it finned the fish and winged the bird and fanged the beast. Endlessly it worked, evolving its forms until it produced the crowning glory of them all. With tireless energy it blows the bubble of each individual life and then silently, relentlessly dissolves the form, and absorbs the spirit into itself again.

And yet you ask "Can Chiropractic cure appendicitis or the 'flu?'"

Have you more faith in a knife or a spoonful of medicine than in the power that animates the living world?

Employ none but a competent chiropractor.

The Better Way to Health

When you are sick, do you know the reason WHY?

Some say germs, loss of sleep, improper food, worry, overwork, and various other so-called reasons are offered. Isn't it funny, when we stop to think about it, that we are like monkeys—just repeat and imitate?

What is it that causes you to be sick? Isn't it because some part of your body fails to work as it should? When we consider that every organ in the body is dependent upon NERVE ENERGY, isn't it easy to understand how pressure on spinal nerves cutting off the flow of this nerve energy, will affect the organ involved and cause sickness?

And isn't it just as easy to understand how the removal of this pressure will restore the full flow of nerve energy, allowing the sick organ to again do its work as nature intended?

This common-sense idea of the CAUSE of sickness and its correction, is what has made Chiropractic famous. If you would know more about this better way to health, visit our office and we will be glad to explain more fully, and if desired we will give you a free spinal analysis and tell you frankly what we can do for you.

DRINK-CRAZED NIGHT PROWLER DRIVEN FROM HOME BY PLUCKY WOMAN AT POINT OF BROOMSTICK

Historical Society

A man, crazed from the effects of over-indulgence in liquor and described as being about 40 years of age, smooth shaved and about six feet seven inches in height, late Sunday night was driven from the home of Mrs. Lena C. Engebretson, widow and mother of three little children, after the marauder had attempted to force entrance to her bedroom. He had cut the telephone wires inside the home, located at 520 Markley avenue south, apparently preparatory to attacking her.

Mrs. Engebretson successfully fought off the advances of the man after he had completely terrorized the little household, where the mother and three small children, Harriet, aged 9, Clarice, aged 7, and Clifford, aged 4, were asleep.

About 3 o'clock Monday morning, Mrs. Engebretson was awakened by the squeaking of the door leading into the kitchen of the little three-room house, and thinking she had carelessly left the door open upon retiring, she went to investigate. During the winter months the kitchen part of the house, a small addition built on the rear of the premises, is not used by her. Upon throwing open the door she was confronted by a man, dressed in a black mackinaw coat and with a cap pulled down far over his face so that only his mouth and part of his nose were visible. He was evidently familiar with the lay of the premises because he went directly to the telephone, where he nipped off the wire connections, and he had also turned on an electric light hanging from the center of the room.

The woman slammed the door between the center room and the kitchen but the intruder already had his hand on the doorknob and his powerful grip prevented Mrs. Engebretson from snapping on the night latch. He immediately proceeded to abuse her in a most unspeakable manner, and in describing the incident to a Tribune reporter yesterday afternoon the woman stated that she wishes now that she "had had a gun that could have shot burning carbolic acid in his face."

By this time the three little children of Mrs. Engebretson had been awakened by the threats of the man and lay terror-stricken in their beds.

"Who's there, mamma?" they demanded through their sobs. "Who is that bad man?"

But plucky Mrs. Engebretson, who is about 40 years of age, of a quiet and unassuming disposition and makes her livelihood and supports her little family by day nursing, was too busily engaged with matter in hand to quiet their anxiety.

Mrs. Engebretson pleaded with the man and asked him to go away and leave her alone and permit her to quiet her children, but the drunken night prowler was persistent and hung to the doorknob, keeping up his fusillade of verbal abuse and threatening her in a shameful manner. Almost exhausted from the ordeal, the woman finally reached for the broom across the room and picking it up at the broom end, sent the point crashing into the pit of the man's stomach with the effect of him making a hasty exit, going north on Markley avenue, apparently the direction from which he had come for tracks in the snow indicated that he had gone around the house to the back door, although the front door was unlocked. He had torn away a part of the screen door at the back and had put his hand through and released the hook, after which ready access to the kitchen was made possible.

To a Tribune reporter Mrs. Engebretson said she was rather surprised at the courage she had exhibited in face of the drunken attack, having been cool and deliberate in all her movements. She feared for the safety of her children, she said, and had difficulty in getting them quieted and put back to sleep.

Mrs. Engebretson was widowed four years ago upon the death of her husband, which occurred at Holt, her former home. She moved with her children to Thief River Falls three years ago and has made her home on Markley avenue since.

Police officers are said to have tangible clues as to the identity of the man who made the attack and it is expected that arrests will follow, according to Chief Erickson.

Opie Read May Come.

Opie Read, famous novelist and lecturer, in a letter to Thief River Falls this week, states that it is highly probable that he will come here to deliver a lecture in the very near future. The exact date of his appearance is not given, but it is thought his lecture will be the next number on the Lyceum course, the definte date of which will be announced when it becomes known.

CROWS, FIRST SIGN OF SPRING, REPORTED HERE

"Caw, caw, caw!"

Crows are reported as having been seen in Pennington county this week, so that settles it.

Spring is here. No more blizzards, snow and ice. No more coal, no more wood. Everything is settin' pretty.

A farmer rushed up to a Tribune man yesterday and excitedly informed him that he believed he saw a whole blamed flock of the birds out in an old cornfield on his farm last Sunday. He says he knows a crow when he sees one.

So from now on there will be nothing but sunshine, thawing weather, sugar beets, plowing, seeding, and stuff like that.

Newspaper Claims "Moon" Caused Death of Farmer

Three Bottles of Liquor Found Near Body of Man Believed to Have Perished in Storm.

A man batching in the vicinity of Thorhult was found dead in a snow drift Saturday morning. Death seems to have been caused by freezing on account of being too well loaded with "moonshine" to find his way to his home. There was one quart bottle of moonshine on him, two quart bottles in the snow close to him, and a gallon and a half in the house, also a note left by him saying that he would be back between 11 and 12 o'clock, and signed Olaf. It seems he must have been gone since Monday night. A lantern was also found under him where he was found, not 40 rods from the house, where he was staying. He was in Thorhult Monday afternoon and bought a Sunday paper, which was on the bed unopened. He was taking care of a team of horses for Andrew Aasen and, when found, they were nearly starved, had eaten up the manger and all the wood within reach. After the coroner and sheriff have been here his body will be sent to Iowa, where his mother lives.—Grygla Eagle.

Goar Case Will Go For Supreme Court Decision

Woman Badly Burned When Cable Falls Accepts $4,000 Personal Injury Damages.

Mrs. E. E. Goar, through her attorneys, Messrs. Olson, Hage and Chommie, has filed notice of acceptance of a reduction of $4,000 as recently ordered by Judge Watts in the $12,500 verdict which she won in district court last fall in her personal injury suit against the village of Stephen and the Minnesota Electric Distributing company. The Distributing company, however, on the refusal of Judge Watts to grant a judgment nowithstanding the verdict, has moved to carry the case to the state supreme court. As we understand legal procedure in such cases, it is therefore necessary for the village to follow its co-defendant to the higher court, or assume full liability of the verdict as amended by Judge Watts' order. The former course will be followed by the village, and a transcript of testimony taken at the trial of the case last fall is now being prepared for submission to the supreme court, probably some time this spring.—Stephen Messenger.

Silent Tribute Paid Memory of Departed By Faculty and Student Body.

Mrs. Kathleen Rapacz, wife of M. P. Rapacz, principal of the Thief River Falls high schools, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Donaghue, 224 First Street Southeast, Minneapolis, a resident of this city for the past two years, died at St. Mary's hospital, Minneapolis, Friday afternoon at 3 o'clock after a two weeks' illness from what physicians diagnosed as sleeping influenza.

Mrs. Rapacz was taken seriously ill at her home, 401 Arnold avenue north, Monday, March 26, and from the very outset of her affliction showed no improvement. Physicians from the Swedenburg and Bowers hospital clinic attended her and recommended that she be sent to Minneapolis and a brain specialist called for consultation. Mrs. Rapacz entered St. Mary's hospital on Saturday, March 3, and every medical attention was given her without avail. A new serum hurriedly dispatched from the Mayo clinic at Rochester in the hope of staying death had no effect and the end came as stated above.

A pall of sorrow spread over Thief River Falls when a telephone message from Mr. Rapacz at Minneapolis apprised friends and acquaintances of her demise. It was requested by Mr. Rapacz that members of the cast of the high school play to be presented on Friday night be not advised of her death before the presentation of the play.

Mrs. Rapacz was a graduate of the University of Minnesota and had taught domestic science for a time before her marriage. She was a devoted follower of Catholicism and steadfast in her duties to the church. She was also a member of the local branch of the Woman's Auxiliary and of the Girls' Community club, and these organizations always received a generous part of her attention.

The marriage of Mr. and Mrs. Rapacz occurred at Minneapolis on Aug. 5, 1921, at the home of Mrs. Rapacz. There are no children.

As a mark of respect to the memory of the deceased and as an evidence of the high esteem in which she was held by faculty and student body of the local high school, which she visited upon frequent occasions, a silent tribute of two minutes was paid her upon reconvening of school in the assembly room Monday morning. Members of the faculty sent beautiful flowers, as did members of the Auxiliary and Community Girls' club.

The funeral was held Monday afternoon at Minneapolis.

Wife-Beater Sent to Jail on Charge Filed by Officers

Richard Olson Arrested For Rough Housing With Spouse Sunday Night.

Drinking Party Said to Have Preceded Telephone Call For Assistance.

Richard Olson, residing with his wife and nine months old child at 418 Tindolph avenue south, a carpenter by trade, was arrested late Sunday night by Chief Erickson on a charge of disorderly conduct and wife-beating.

Olson appeared before Judge Tarrant Monday morning after having spent the night in jail, and was sentenced to serve out 30 days in the county bastile under a former charge of disorderly conduct. It is not known whether the later charge will be pressed after the completion of his sentence. The couple have a child nine months old.

Chief Erickson was called by telephone to the Olson home late Sunday night by Mrs. Olson, who charged that her husband was mistreating her and that she feared he would do her bodily harm. Police responded at once and found Olson, crazed with liquor, abusive and challenging the officers to interfere. He was placed under arrest and taken to the county jail, where he spent the night.

A long black mark along Mrs. Olson's right arm bore mute evidence of the treatment accorded her by her husband. According to police, a drinking party, with several in attendance, had preceded the beating administered Mrs. Olson, although members of the party had departed previously to the arrival of the police.

Olson was arrested several months ago for being drunk and disorderly, according to police records, but judgment was suspended upon the promise of the accused to refrain from further violation of the law. Things had been going along smoothly until the debacle Sunday night.

When asked by officers where he obtained the liquor consumed, Olson steadfastly refused to divulge the information.

Water Mains Flushed.

Last Sunday water mains throughout the city were shut off while the filtration plant was being connected and the flushing process commenced. This will continue for a few days. As a result of the water being shut off local users of water were compelled to store up their needs on Saturday to last over the dry period.

Erling Dahl, who recently sold his interest in the Kleanall Shop, will leave in the near future for the West, accompanied by Mrs. Dahl. They will visit in various Pacific coast towns and will probably settle in California.

CONRAD VINJE AGAIN IN TOILS OF LAW ON CHARGE OF HAVING "CANADIAN MOON" ON PERSON

Officers Erickson and Ralston Effect Arrest of Soft Drink Place Proprietor Early Friday Evening.

Canadian distilleries can't supply the demand so now we have, ladies and gentlemen, pure, unadulterated Canadian white mule to appease our thirst for "something with a kick." It's something new to the liquor industry, however, and is just being "sprung" on local gentry.

A quantity of it was seized early Friday evening by Officers Erickson and Ralston, the former charging that Conrad Vinje, copiously arrested man, had three bottles of the stuff when he was accosted by the officers as he was entering his place of business on lower LaBree avenue early Friday evening.

Vinje had been under surveillance for several days by police officers, who suspected that he was transporting liquor from "somewhere to somewhere," so Friday evening they "laid" for him, and sure enough, shortly after supper time he was seen coming down the avenue, hell-bent for the Vinje soft drink parlor. Officer Erickson intercepted and called his name. Vinje dropped "something" near the door, which was later discovered to be of fluid content. There were three bottles in all, loaded to the corks with what officers stated they had always known as merely plain "moon."

But, no!

Yes, it was. It was moonshine, all right, but as you shall later learn, it was something quite out of the ordinary. Vinje was asked where he got it, and he said he just bought it from a fellow hailing from Canada.

Jumpin' wildcats! Moonshine from up in the land of the Canucks. The officers had always thought they were used to real whiskey up there and were inclined to discredit the statement.

But the accused man insisted that the fellow he purchased the liquor from was from Canada, and he ought to know. How old or young the liquor might be no one could say. How good cannot be stated either, for it never reached the marts of the city. The police took the three bottles, along with Vinje, into custody, and the former are now component parts of "Exhibit A."

Vinje was taken to the county jail, where he spent the night. He appeared before Judge Tarrant the following morning and was bound over to the next term of district court upon furnishing bail of $500. There are already two charges standing against Vinje, one a federal violation, the second charge having been continued at the recent term because of the failure of witnesses to put in an appearance.

A search warrant for the Vinje place was issued by Judge Tarrant and the officers raided the place conducted by him. They found no liquor, but plenty of selling paraphernalia, stated Chief Erickson. The old funnel, into which contraband is dumped every time the law threatens, is still in evidence, and there are flushing contrivances and what not to blot out the stench of the fumes after moonshine has permeated the atmosphere thereabouts.

A Tribune reporter saw the blueprints of the Vinje place the other day, and by all the laws of averages it should function perfectly. Barred doors and difficult access to the point of least resistance should be hard to contend with and unless a revenue man jumped up through a crack in the floor, Vinje should be safe from every conceivable interference of pinions of the law.

OLD KNOX SCHOOL BACK ON SOLID TERRA FIRMA

The old Knox school, which went through the ice of Red Lake river several weeks ago, was last night brought to the west shore of the river by contractors having in charge the work of extricating it from the ice. As soon as the other half of the building is taken over the river, contractors will go to work on the job of taking the building to its permanent location. It is expected that the second half will be safe on the west side of the stream by the end of this week.

First State Bank of Oslo Closed by State Examiner

Institution Forced to Shut Down Because of Depletion of Reserve and Bad Market Conditions.

Last Saturday forenoon the First State Bank of this place was ordered closed by the superintendent of banks, on account of depleted reserve.

For some time past this bank has been on the verge of failure, but through the exerted efforts of Cashier C. L. Torgerson it was thought that the institution would survive.

Mr. Torgerson came to this place last summer and became cashier of the bank, at a critical time. Collections on outstanding paper were almost impossible last fall and prevailing conditions at that time were so that the farmers could not market their grain. Under such circumstances it was, of course, necessary for people to have money and they withdrew what they had in the bank. This in time, with nothing coming in, is what caused the bank to close.

The First State Bank is a locally owned bank, with Magnus Erickson as president. The other stockholders are business men of the village and farmers of the community. It has a capital of $10,000.

At this writing the bank is in the hands of the examiners and we are unable to say whether arrangements will be made to reorganize or or not.—Oslo Tribune.

Cattle Are Poisoned By Moldy Fodder Hay

Many High Grade Animals Throughout Northwest Die as Result of Eating Poisoned Food.

Stockraisers in the vicinity of Crookston have lost many head of cattle recently by what appears to be poisoning from eating moldy sweet clover. Symptoms are alike in all the cases. The first symptom noted is bleeding at the nostrils, which is followed by swellings along the shoulders, and the animal affected usually dies in from 24 to 48 hours. By ceasing feeding of sweet clover no new cases appear, but nothing can be done for those cattle already stricken. Veteranarians at Crookston have experimented with feeding moldy sweet clover hay to rabbits, and they have sickened and died, which is proof that the trouble lies with the fodder.

Partly decomposed or moldy sweet clover hay, in which some chemical change has taken place as a result, is undoubtedly the cause of the death of several head of stock here lately instead of blackleg, as was at first thought. Every head lost here had been fed sweet clover, and the symptoms were exactly the same as those reported from Crookston vicinity.

State experts declare the same condition may result from feeding any kind of moldy hay, and is by no means confined to sweet clover alone. The value of the latter as a feed cannot be denied, and it will give as good, or better, satisfaction as any other hay when handled the same way. The losses mentioned above do not mintmize in the least the value of sweet clover as a crop, but serves as a warning against feeding moldy hay of all kinds.

Thompson Cafe Opens For Business in New Building

The newly-appointed Thompson Cafe, formerly located on Third street, opened for business last week with one of the best-equipped restaurants in this section of the state. The cafe is now located in the new Dudley building on LaBree avenue. The new owners are newcomers to the cafe business in Thief River Falls and are making good.

The latest improved equipment has been installed in the kitchen, and the dining room is of white tile effect with granite topped tables, as well as a long granite topped counter. The dining room is well appointed and a large seating capacity is available.

Mrs. O. W. Carlson left Monday for Crookston, where she will receive medical treatment.

More Than $1,200 Subscribed By Local Business Men to Insure the Planting of Good Acreage Here.

H. A. Douglas, president of the Northern Sugar Beet Corporation, in a statement made to a member of the Thief River Falls sugar beet committee in Minneapolis last week, said that sugar beets will bring somewhere between $10 and $11 per ton this fall. He based his estimate on the great demand of various refineries for beets, and were beets on the market at the present time they would bring a market price of at least $11 per ton, he said.

A meeting of the Thief River Falls sugar beet committee was held Monday evening at the Commercial clubrooms and was attended by all members of the committee as well as a number of other persons interested.

Contracts signed up by various growers were gone over and it was found that already a total of 2,000 acres had been signed up by farmers up and down the line from this city. About 800 acres of this acreage will be grown in the immediate Thief River Falls territory, although the committee is desirous of seeing at least 1,000 acres planted near here.

A total of about 2,200 acres was assigned by sugar beet officials to this territory and of this amount but about 200 acres remain to be allotted, and in this connection every farmer living within a distance of from 10 to 12 miles from this city will be interviewed in an effort to interest all local agriculturists.

The entire sugar beet proposition is going over in a splendid way and the committee is well pleased with the showing made. Farmers are showing great interest in the new crop for this region, and everybody is talking beets, dreaming beets, and pretty soon no doubt will be growing beets.

Several local merchants have offered prizes to be awarded local growers for both quality and quantity, but owing to the fact that the list of those offering the awards is not complete, they will be announced at a later date.

More than $1,200 already has been subscribed by local business men and others interested in the sugar beet proposition in this territory, and sufficient funds are in hand to go ahead with all the various plans of the committee. Everything will be done to assist farmers in the planting and growing of the crop as it is known that many farmers are still "up in the air" as to which ground is best suited to the growing of the crop, fertilization, cultivation, etc., and in order that they may receive the best advice, the agricultural manager of the Mason City factory of the Northern Sugar corporation will be on hand to give practical demonstrations.

Palomar, Famous Toreador, Coaches Rodolph Valentino

Star of "Blood and Sand" Trained for Two Months by the Celebrated Spanish Bull Fighter.

Member of a famous bull-fighting family, himself the conqueror of two-score "toros," Rafael Palomar was chosen as trainer of Rodolph Valentino for the toreador scenes required of the Paramount star in "Blood and Sand," a Fred Niblo production made from the notable Vicente Blasco Ibanez novel of the same name.

That "Blood and Sand" might be correct in every respect, Palomar not only supervised the dressing of Valentino in toreador costume, but taught him every step of the intricate evolutions which mark the graceful sword and cape play of a matador. Although Valentino is a trained dancer he found even more difficult than tango or maxixe the complicated steps Palomar taught him for two solid months. And accuracy was decidedly essential—for with a bull in front—there's only one mistake to be made, and when that occurs, the undertaker has his inning.

The hiring of Palomar was but a part of the plan to make "Blood and Sand," which comes to the Lyceum theatre Sunday and Monday, correct in every detail. The story, however, tells of the life of Juan Gallardo, a bull-fighter, rather than of bull-fighting. All of the color of the Spanish national sport is retained, minus the features not acceptable to American audiences.

M. O. Bakken, accompanied by his family, left last week for California, where they plan on making their home in the future. Mr. Bakken is well known in this vicinity, having been engaged in the painting business here for the past twelve years. The family plans on spending a short time in Minneapolis with relatives enroute to the coast.

PROPER BALANCE OF AGRICULTURE KEYNOTE TO NATIONAL PROSPERITY

(Written Specially for The Tribune by SENATOR ARTHUR CAPPER of Kansas.)

For many years the United States government has been content to let agriculture take care of itself. Farmers have gone on producing under many handicaps that might easily easily have been removed. The result has been disaster that in the past two years has overtaken the farmers, caused billions of dollars in losses by shrinkage in the value of farm products, and has been seriously detrimental to business throughout the land.

The need of a constructive national program looking to the rehabilitation of agriculture is regarded by the Farm Bloc as imperative. It is now generally accepted that prosperity must come first to the farms before it can prevail in the city.

Farming is the only business left that buys at retail and sells at wholesale; that pays what is asked when it buys and accepts what is offered when it sells. The farmer remains merely a producer of the necessaries of human life.

He gets one-third of every dollar paid by the consumer for the products of the farm. Our expensive, antiquated and inefficient marketing system takes the other two-thirds.

The enactment of constructive, progressive and wholesome legislation, which will bring about better conditions agriculturally, is the mission of the Farm Bloc in Congress. As a member of that body I think I may say with perfect candor that there is nothing dark, sinister nor forbidding in its make-up or its purposes. It is not political. It is for things rather than against them, for the city man as well as the country man. It is working for honest industry, honest finance, honest commerce, honest agriculture, honest labor, and wishes to co-operate with all of these.

Agriculture Basis of Prosperity.

The charge has been made by metropolitan newspapers of the East that the Farm Bloc seeks class legislation. That its aim is to profit agriculture, no matter at what cost to other industry. The men who make that charge lose sight of the fundamental fact that agriculture is basic, that what contributes to its prosperity and well being unquestionably benefits all industry. When agriculture is profitable the nation is prosperous.

In legislation the farmer is not entitled to any more consideration than any other class; but he is entitled to just as much.

The Farm Bloc does not recognize the right of any calss to have an advantage at the expense of another group or of the population as a whole.

The Farm Bloc believes that the best way to mend the present situttion and provide for the future is to increase the producer's profit by shortening the road to market. One way to accomplish this is through cooperative marketing.

The recently published report of the Federal Trade Commission shows that the gambling transactions in grain amount in some years to more than twenty billion bushels, or three times all the grain produced in the world.

The public has made up its mind that the Chicago Board of Trade's poker playing, using the country's food supply as the stakes, is the most wanton, most wicked, most destructive game of chance in the world, and it is now proposing to stop it by the Capper-Tincher law, which places the grain exchanges under federal control.

The Farm Bloc measure which had strongest opposition was the amendment to the Federal Reserve Act, providing the agriculture should be represented on the Federal Reserve Board, along with other industry, commerce and financer Wall street bankers opposed it bitterly, claiming that this is "class legislation."

No one seems to think it "class legislation" for commerce, finance and manufacturing to be represented on the Federal Reserve Board, and of course, it is not. Then why should it be considered class legislation for agriculture, which is the largest and most vital industry of all, to be so represented?

For a long while the big five packer combine absolutely controlled the livestock markets and fixed the prices to suit themselves. As a result of the efforts of the Farm Bloc the packing industry is now under government control, and, as a matter of fact, the packers and everybody else now concede that it is a good law.

One of the most important measures in the Farm Bloc program was the bill for the revival of the War Finance Corporation, making one billion dollars available for loans to farmers and stockmen. This legislation saved thousands of producers from bankruptcy.

Practical Financing is Problem.

The Farm Bloc still has many important things to accomplish. One of them is a credit plan which will be of speedy and immense value to the farming industry. The Bloc is endeavoring to have enacted into law a system of one, two and three-year credit for farmers, based on farm products as collateral.

We cannot have any different system of orderly marketing until we have a different system of financing. We cannot build up a system of sane marketing until we have a system of credits peculiarly adapted to the needs of agriculture.

Agriculture is at the mercy of those who control credit, and many who exert that control are not particularly in sympathy with agriculture. Thousands of farmers and stockmen have been ruined in the past two or three years by this lack of credit.

The agricultural credit plan before this Congress, based on warehouse receipts as collateral security, will make more money, at lower interest rates, available for financing the slow turnover of the farms, which will give the farmer another opportuity to go ahead with his work with a fair chance to make good. If that is accomplished it will mean cheaper food, more work, reopened factories and mills and a return of good times.

Lower Freight Rates Vital.

The Farm Bloc believes railway freight rates are too high and must come down. tI is using all the influence it can command to bring this about. The city is just as vitally interested in lessening cost of carrying food supplies.

One of the measures endorsed by the Bloc would restore to state railway commissions much of the power taken from them by what I believe is an unwarrantable interpretation of the Transportation Act by the Interstate Commerce Commission.

The Farm Bloc is giving its support to the Truth-in-Fabrics bill to compel all makers of clothing to brand their goods so the buyer will know the amount of pure wool and the amount of shoddy in each garment. This is of more importance to the man in the city than to the man who sells the wool.

The Farm Bloc believes that a foreign market for our surplus farm products is vital to the farmer's prosperity, and we are doing our best to secure legislation that will aid in finding buyers for our surplus foodstuffs in Europe. Something must be done to make a market for American products. Fifteen per cent of our farm output must find a market outside of the United States if we are to save our farm industry and properly maintain our own food supply.

Legislative Side Lights

By "The County Chairman."

The small loan bill, a measure designed to curb and regulate the activities of the loan shark, so its backers say, but which according to its opponents legalizes usury, met a crushing defeat in the senate when it was sent to the discard by a vote of 42 to 24. The bill, which had the backing of Speaker Nolan, prevailed in the house some weeks ago by only one vote. The bill, it might be said, was lobbied to death and what little life was left in it was crushed out by an attack made by Senator James Carley of Wabasha county and Senator H. H. Bonniwell of McLeod county, who charged that the loan sharks were behind the bill. The debate was the sensation of the week.

Iron range towns representatives in both houses have centered all their energies on one bill and little else in a legislative way will have consideration at their hands until their favorite is disposed of. Reference is had to the bill repealing the law passed two years ago limiting the per capita expenditures of villages and school districts which some of the range towns, among them Hibbing, known as the "richest little village in the world" declares means bankruptcy in their case. The law was designed to do away with an orgy of municipal spending which has characterized some of the range towns for years. Despite the fact that a house committee voted indefinite postponement for the repeal bill by an overwhelming vote, it was placed on general orders by the house. The trick was brought about by intensive trading and this same trading feature is expected to continue thru to the finish.

In a recent measure Governor Preus suggested state supervision in the transportation and marketing of fuel, but so far no one has come forward with a bill for supervision. Fuel dealers generally are understood to be against state interference. The general opinion is that nothing will be done in the matter this session.

o—o

Rep. Anton Anderson of Hendricks does not like being the first on the house roll call and this week offered a motion a motion giving him a more advantageous position on the bottom of the call. His request was denied by an overwhelming vote. His explanation was that he was sometimes puzzled how to vote and he wanted time to find out what the matter under consideration was. Names on the roll call are alphabetically arranged and Anderson's name is the first on the list. Dodging the roll call is a common practice on the part of those well up the line and in some cases it is only after repeated calls that such are compelled to answer.

The handsome member of the senate and a favorite too, is Allan J. Furlow of Rochester. He is among the youngest also. While this is his first fling in the legislative game and rawness sometimes means mistakes, the Olmstead county member has so far figured on the winning side. He votes as he sees fit and will not be rushed.

o—o

Tonnage tax, a legislative disturber for the past 15 years, is due for another inning. Rep. A. C. Welch of McLeod county says he is going to introduce a bill increasing the rate from six to ten per cent.

o—o

Senator George Sullivan is after the dance evil. It looks very much as if his bill would prevail.

Farm Business Schools Held in 25 Communities

Good interest is being shown in farm business schools which are being held by W. L. Calvert and C. E. Wise, Jr., of the agricultural extension service of the university. These schools have already been conducted in about 25 communities with an average attendance of about 25 persons. Many more are yet to be held. Cost of production studies centering about hogs and dairy production have proved to be the most popular in the schools, says Mr. Cavert. The general discussion usually concerns such subjects as improving markets, cutting costs, and how much of a given crop it is best to raise.

Needs Bond Money To Keep Road Pace

Highway Department Will Continue Progress Only as Funds Will Allow.

New Construction of Last Two Years Three Times Total for 1923.

Minnesota trunk highway funds, without bonds, will build less than $3,500,000 of new construction this year, compared with more than $10,000,000 built in 1921 and $8,000,000 last year, according to official figures in the highway bulletin.

Federal aid added, the funds for use on the trunk routes or so-called Babcock roads this year will approximate $6,500,000, but more than $3,000,000 will be taken by repairs and maintenance, the bulletin states. With less maintenance demands, it adds, the total funds were $2,700,000 in 1921 and $10,800,000 in 1922.

The 1923 total available for trunk routes which carry four-fifths of the highway traffic, is about one-third of that for county and township roads.

The bulletin points out on this showing that it will be impossible to continue the progress rate of the last two years with bond funds. It submits that unless bonds are issued, some improvements which otherwise could be made this year must wait for three years, while others on the 1924 program cannot be undertaken until as long as six years.

"The bond plan will set the highway program ahead five years," is the announcement on the official figures. "It will give the public the use of more good roads in each of the next twenty years from the same road funds. It will distribute the cost so that this generation will have good roads to far more than offset the amount of debts against them.

Farmers, business men—all classes of citizens, are continuing demand for road improvements on the state highway department and on the boards of commissioners in all counties," it adds.

The state highway department offers the bond plan which will make possible the fulfillment of most of these demands—hasten every imment asked for and all without any increase in taxes.

Here are the outstanding points of the highway bond plan:

No road or auto tax increases will result.

Bonds and interest will be paid wholly from motor vehicle taxes through the state highway sinking fund required by the state constitution.

Projected highway improvements are public necessities which must be made by the state within a few years at most.

Highway construction costs now are back to pre-war levels of 1917—the lowest of record and below those in prospect, experts advise.

Permanent improvements will mean savings in maintenance to more than pay all interest on the bonds.

No increase will be necessary in the agreed $18 average tax on automobiles and all bond figures are based on that rate.

Bond money will be used only for permanent improvements which will last not less than 20 and as long as 100 years—right-of-way, grading, etc.

Longest mileages to be improved will be of grading and graveling, pavement to be built only where economy demands.

Bond plan will give the public the use of more good roads every year, and especially during the next five years—will put six years' building into two years.

The bond proposals are to apply the best business practice to the highway program and they offer the only method of relieving the taxpayers of today of the burden of paying for past and future as well as present improvements—give them fairer measures of highway benefit for their highway dollars.

Poultry Business Is Bound to Be Good, Says Chapman

N. E Chapman, poultryman with the agricultural extension division of the university, replies in the negative when asked if there is any danger of the poultry business being overdone in this country.

Mr. Chapman cites such examples as New York City to show the popularity of poultry products over other classes of meat in the diet. Poultry and eggs have a commanding lead in New York City where, according to E. V. Wilcox, a nationally known poultry authority, the per capita consumption of poultry flesh amounted to 33 pounds and of eggs to 30 pounds last year. During the same time the per capita consumption of beef was 56 pounds, of fish 31 pounds, of pork 30 pounds, and of mutton 17 pounds.

Furthermore, the university poultryman predicts that the demand for eggs and fowls will continue to increase and to justify any effort put forth to increase production.

Demand Increasing for Standard Bred Poultry

"In harmony with the present pure bred sire campaign," says N. E. Chapman of the agricultural extension service of the university, "is the increasing demand for standard bred poultry stock. At one poultry show which I attended 75 choice cockerels were either sold or contracted for and many orders were given for hatching eggs. Probably 75 poultry shows will be held in Minnesota the present season with an average approaching 500 birds to the show. This means a grand total of 35,000 to 40,000 fowls, most of them fine examples of standard bred stock, will be on exhibition."

Orchard-Garden Notes

Chrystanthemum cuttings may be taken now.

Garden and flower seeds may be started now in the home or greenhouse.

Cheap seeds and cheap, poorly made tools have no place in the garden. The best seeds and good tools are the cheapest in the end.

A householder willingly buys a new rug or new furniture, but often neglects to buy shrubbery for his lawn. The house furnishings are decreasing in value the longer owned, but the lawn plantings are gradually increasing the value of the property.

Calla lilies need plenty of fertilizer if large flowers are to be produced. Liquid cow manure applied once or twice a week will keep the plant in good condition to bloom.

Canna clumps may be cut up now and placed in sand or saw dust in a warm place to start their growth. As a rule it will be a good plan to dip the cut surfaces in powdered sulphur.

Large onions of the Prizetaker class may be grown if the seed is sown early in the home or hot beds and transplanted.

Tears may show weakness in a man, but they are a woman's strength.

Not Difficult To Figure Out Income Taxes

So States Collector of Internal Revenue in Public Statement.

Head of Family Entitled to Exemption Up to Amount of $2,500.

It is not difficult ordinarily to determine your personal exemption for income tax purposes, according to L. H. Willcuts, collector of internal revenue.

Mr. Willcuts states that the person about to render a return of income for the calendar year 1922 should remember that the status is based on conditions existing as of December 31, 1922. A person married at any time during the year is entitled to exemption as a married person for the entire year. Husband and wife may make a return showing the income accruing to each. This does not mean though that a wife can make a separate return and report part of her husbands' income as her own. The exemption for a married person is $2,500 unless the net income exceeds $5,000, in which case the exemption is $2,000. In the case of the husband and wife having a combined net income in excess of $5,000 the $2,000 exemption applies. The personal exemption on separate returns of husband and wife may be divided as they wish.

A single person is entitled to an exemption of $1,000. A person divorced during the year, a widow, widower or married person not living with husband or wife on December 31, 1922, is classed as a single person. This does not apply, however, to married persons separated because of temporary absence of one or because one of the parties is forced to reside in a hospital or asylum.

A head of a family is entitled to an exemption of $2,500 or $2,000 as the case may be, the same as a married person. In claiming this exemption, the individual should present definite and conclusive evidence that he or she is maintaining a home for one or more dependents closely connected by blood or marriage relationship or by adoption, and that the right to exercise family control over these dependents is based upon some moral or legal obligation. Each case is decided on its own peculiar circumstances and to avoid future correspondence the taxpayer should submit all facts relating to the case. A son living with his parents in a house owned by one or both of them in claiming to be the head of a household should consider that in addition to any nominal income the parents may have the rental value of the dwelling is also contributed by them to their own support.

In addition to the personal exemption there is also allowed a credit to the taxpayer of $400 for each dependent. The dependent must be other than husband or wife, must be under 18 years of age or incapable of self-support because defective. The credit is not necessarily last because the dependent may receive a nominal income but it is necessary that more than one-half the support be contributed. Two persons cannot divide the credit because each contributes one-half. It can only be taken in cases where more than one-half is contributed by one person.

A father cannot take this credit for children who receive one-half or more of their support from a trust fund or other separate source.

Andrew Johnson Resigns From Clearwater Board

Farmer Refuses to Serve Under "Present Distressing Condition of Agriculturists."

Andrew Johnson, prominently identified with the proposed improvement work in the Red Lake Flood Control and Conservancy District, serving as a member of the board of directors since the formation of the district, has tendered his reisgnation to the judicial judges, Stanton, Watts and Grindeland.

Mr. Johnson is a Big Meadow farmer and knows the sentiment of his constituency as no other man living there. The following taken from the Gonvick Banner of last week will be of local interest:

"Mr. Johnsons' resignation comes somewhat as a surprise to many people and when asked his reason for so doing, Mr. Johnson made the folowing statement:

"'I do not want to be placed in a position of trying to force anything not wanted upon anybody, and after viewing condition from all angles, I do not think it wise to press the Clearwater project, let contracts and complete the work against the wishes of so many of the land owners.

"'Under present distressing economic conditions of the farmers who have lived and suffered the privations of pioneers in this part of the state, must be forgiven for hesitating to take on additional obligations.

"'That their hesitancy is genuine and based upon a consciousness that they cannot afford to pay the cost of the project, there can be no doubt, and they should be respected for it.

"'Inasmuch as a major part of the work in question is located in Clearwater county where I reside I dislike very much to take this side step at this time, but I have learned on all my travels that it is necessary to deal with conditions as we meet them, hence my resignation.'"

AS OTHERS THINK

Editor Tribune:

A timely and local story with a mission, full of wit and humor from beginning to end, sent to the Thief River Falls Times by J. P. Asp Jan. 15, 1923, for publication. Here it is:

Once upon a time two noted men met. One was white and the other black. They were both ministers of the gospel, and they both belonged to the same denomination. And consequently they called one another brothers. The black minister made many converts, while his white brother could hardly hold the ones that he had. It revealed the fact that the white minister wrote down his sermons in advance, while the black brother spoke his sermons off-hand, or at random.

"Well, brother," said the black minister to his white brother, "does you not believe that the debil knows how to read?"

"Yes," said the white minister, "I believe that the devil knows how to read."

"Well, then, does you not believe that the debil reads over your sermons and puts something into the heart of your audience that spoils the effect of your sermons?"

"Well, I never thought of that," said the white minister.

"Well, you want to think of that. I don't write down any sermons. I speak at random so that neither me nor the debil knows what I am going to say."

Now, Brother Ross, if you will allow me to use the terms of this darkey: You have been writing down your sermons for a long time about dredging the Red Lake river, without any apparent effect. Now, Brother Ross, do you not believe that the devil has been reading over your sermons and put something into the heart of your readers to spoil their effect. Now, Brother Ross, if you could talk to us from a platform, I can imagine how I see you pose before the people with dignity and grace and a sanctimonious face. And how you could talk at random so that neither you nor the devil would know what you were to say. And then you could make converts for this dredging cause in spite of the devil.

Hoping to see this in the Times as I have never asked for any space before, I remain,

Yours truly,
JOHN P. ASP

Rhoda, Minn.

A Good Milker.

"How much does that cow give?" asked the summer boarder.

"Wal," replied Farmer Applegate, "ef you mean by voluntary contribooshun, she don't give none. But ef ye kin get her cornered so she can't kick none to hurt, an able bodied man kin take away about 'lev'n quarts a day from her."—The Forecast.

SUGAR BEETS AT $10.

The announcement by President H. A. Douglas of the Northern Sugar Beet corporation made last week to a member of the Thief River Falls sugar beet committee that sugar beets would bring $10 a ton on the markets this fall sounds mighty good to The Tribune. It really smacks of old times once again, when wheat was marketed at a profit, and when even oats and barley were worth the seed necessary to grow a crop.

Men prominent in co-operative and marketing legislation during the past are agitating for $1.75 a bushel wheat. Others are howling for an established price on livestock. Still others want potatoes to bring a certain price, and so on down the line.

All of the latter activities are overshadowed by just a few words from Mr. Douglas, who speaks with authority and knowledge. When he says that sugar beets will bring $10 a ton, possibly more, he undoubtedly knows what he is talking about. He impresses people that way.

When politicians and professional reformers of the present economic fabric get together and talk things over and tell us what ought to be done in order to adjust conditions, their utterances sound shallow and counterfeit, and are generally so far-fetched that they go clear over our heads. It is therefore the safest and sanest policy for us to adjust ourselves to our own conditions and let the merry wind battle continue unabated.

Getting $1.75 a bushel for our wheat would be a godsend to hundreds and thousands of farmers throughout the United States. But Congress has adjourned and should it reconvene, no doubt senators and representatives from the East, who are conceded as holding the whip hand, would oppose it on the ground of being economically unsound.

So there is only a possibility of securing a guaranteed price for wheat. Sugar beets appear to be the best bet.

NO, THANKS.

No, thank you, the Herald must pass up the wonderfully attractive opportunity of becoming local agent for an automobile.

We have no business in the automobile line at all. It is our business to try and publish a country newspaper and not to sell hams, handkerchiefs or automobiles.

The Herald does not relish the idea of picking at the other fellow's trade as a side line.

We can see no good reason why a grocery store should carry a side line of bacon, pork and ham, or a meat shop a side line of groceries. We can see no reason why a clothing dealer should handle jewelry, a druggist musical instruments, or a dry goods dealer should start a boycott on the newspaper by attempting to do printing.

Why should a bank carry a side line of hams and a shoe store a side line of fresh eggs and poultry. Sounds silly, of course it does. But it is no more foolish than for about every business in a town carrying a side line which really belongs to the other fellow. With everybody carrying side lines nobody makes any more than if each stuck to his own line.

No, thanks, we do not care for the agency for automobiles or anything else except advertising, printing and engraving.—Anoka Herald.

LACK OF FORESIGHT IS MAIL ORDER HOUSE GAIN.

The apathy with which merchants regard advertising after the Christmas rush and before the spring opening, is exceeding dangerous, as is shown by reports from mail order houses for the intervening months. Mail order house reports for January and February show these months to be among the best for business in the entire year, the month of December not excepted.

The outstanding reason is that while home town merchants are prone to forget advertising during these two months, mail order houses are most active in sending out their yearly catalogues and bargain circulars.

To back up the foregoing assertion the following clipped from an authentic trade magazine is reproduced:

"People are spending money again, according to reports of mail order houses here today. Business of leading mail order houses of Chicago during January was the greatest in history for that month. Montgomery Ward and Company reported an increase of more than $2,000,000 in business for the month over last year."

It is the sincere belief of the management of this paper that if every merchant had a constructive program of advertising for the year around, mail order houses would take fewer dollars from this locality. Local merchants sell their goods just as cheaply as the mail order houses, and their service is 100 per cent better. But how are people expected to know these facts unless they are continually hammered home. One ad won't do the business. The human memory is short and it needs a constant reminder. An advertising club, such as proven successful in many cities, would, beyond a question of doubt, be a great benefit to this community.—Bemidji Sentinel.

MONEY ON PARADE

A party of 547 millionaires have leased the great liner Mauretania for a winter cruise to the Mediterranean. The poor fish who sops up the propaganda that these men have made America what it is and their millions are simply the reward for the necessary work they have done, will be worried lest the ship sink and the 547 be lost, and America promptly go on the rocks. But they need not worry. There are plenty of good American brains to take the place of the best of our multimillionaires if they should be suddenly lost, and while some of the 547 have been of real service to industry, the most of them are only leeches on it.

The very best Canadian eggs are selling in Los Angeles for $6 a dozen. A prohibition officer seized a case and learned why the price was so high. Each egg had been blow and refilled with "three fingers" of the best Canadian Scotch.

The Tribune can't understand why those Egyption archeologists cannot let poor old King Tut-Ankh-Amen alone while we don't know what to do with a lot of old fogy kings we now have with us.

A lot of newspapers throughout the state are criticizing Congressman Harold Knutson for his statement regarding the French invasion of the Ruhr. But the fact still remains that France has no business in Germany.

Samson had the right idea of advertising. He took a couple of columns and soon had everything coming his way.

Our worlds are not alike. We live in the kind that resembles ourselves. There are as many kinds of existence as there are types of people. Our horizon extends as far as our faith. Many people live a restricted life because of unbelief. If they believe in love, they live in a world of love. Faith discovers unknown worlds of sympathy, mercy, and kindness. We live in the world we believe. It may be the deepest desire of our life has been unsatisfied because we have not explored far enough—or in the right direction. The worlds are there. Other men have lived in them. You may. But you must first believe in them.—Chas. Gerlinger.

RECOMMENDS BONDS TO INCREASE GAINS

Highway Commissioner Officially Presents Plan to Afford Public Maximum Returns for Road Funds.

Use—	Without Bonds	With Bonds
Sinking Fund	$1,818,750	$3,537,500
Maintenance	4,034,000	2,744,000
Improvements	6,610,250	7,181,500
Totals	$12,463,000	$13,463,000

Offering advantages briefly reflected in the above figures, proposals for the first issues of state trunk highway bonds have been formally recommended by Charles M. Babcock, state highway commissioner, to the legislature. Prompt introduction of bills in the House and Senate is expected to follow.

"The proposition is concisely presented in the summary," said Mr. Babcock. "The state can go on, as now, setting aside in the sinking fund sufficient to pay county refundments and reimburesment bonds and interest, using excessive sums for endless repairs and the remaining funds for betterments. But I believe the members of the leislature will see where the funds can be better used by putting more into lasting improvements, reducing the maintenance expenses and increasing the sinking fund allowances—the latter meaning provisions for bonds and interest necessary to afford temporary working capital." The commissioner explained that tables of alternate uses are based on the same annual income, and the total in the last column is $1,000,000 larger, only because that amount is added both in the siking fund and improvements items in each of the 20 years covered, representing the proposed $20,000,000 of bonds.

Recommendations for bonds, the commissioner indicated, carry to the legislature responsibility for financing the state hihgway program for the next two years and longer. The same funds under the bond plan, he emphasized, will give highway users more good roads year for year and especially in the next five years than can be afforded without issuing bonds.

The statement accompanying the bond recommendations gives all figures in detail, together with other information relating to highway development.

"The figures show how possible savings on maintenance can be turned into permanent improvements— how earnings of the improvements through reduction of upkeep expenses will pay out under the bond plan," continued the commissioner. "But there are other savings far bigger than the earnings.

"Greatest returns will be those to highway users, including the automobile owners who will pay all direct taxes going into the fund.

"At present auto tax rates, Minnesota will have an average of $12,463,000 a year to use on the trunk highways. The bond plan will give the use of good roads which easily will save car owners an average of $23,750,000 a year—much more than will be possible otherwise. It will divert money from constant repairs to lasting improvements with the result that at the end of the twenty years the highway system will be worth $98,154,000, while without bonds the total will be only $92,604,000."

The foregoing statements, it was expalined, are placed on a conservative premise that with bonds, the highway betterments will cut one-tenth or one cent a mile off the cost of operating motor vehicles. Further, that the number of cars will average 467,000 during the period and each will be driven an average of 5,000 miles per year. Thus the savings would average $23,750,000 a year, against $12,463,000 used on the trunk system. All proposed bond funds and 40 per cent of each years' disbursements going into permanent improvements the cumulative value of betterments will be $98,154,000 under the bond plan, against $92,604,000 without bonds, and all from the same average outlay.

Everybody in Town Takes Part in Picture

Residents of "Jimtown," California, Aid in Filming of New Photoplay.

Most of the residents of Jamestown, Cal., known in fiction as "Jimtown," were employed by Tom Forman, director of "If You Believe It, It's So," when he took Thomas Meighan and a company of Paramount players to that place for location scenes representing a small town.

A good many night shots were made and to properly illuminate these, in addition to the arcs, about a dozen flares, similar to those used on the battle front during the world war, were burned for every shot. The flares last about two minutes and make a brilliant light.

When the first ones were set off, the director found he had more extras than he needed, for everybody in town turned out to see whether the town was on fire. As a result the crowds were greatly augmented and the effect was more realistic than could have been hoped for.

As a matter of fact, practically every inhabitant of "Jimtown" who was not bedridden came out to see the fun. The scenes for the most part were taken around the town hall and at the railroad station. Everybody was most hospitable and helpful and the work of the company was rendered extremely pleasant as a result.

Perley Poore Sheehan wrote the story from which Waldemar Young adapted the picture version. It deals with the reformation of a crook portrayed by Mr. Meighan. "If You Believe It, It's So" will be the feature at the Lyceum theatre next week Wednesday and Thursday, March 21 and 22. Pauline Stark plays opposite the star.

A NEW STORY.

A news story that two Indians and a trapper had been devoured by wolves across the Canadian border was given wide publicity by newspapers in the states a few weeks ago. Those well acquainted with the habits of wolves say such a thing is a very rare occurrence. Canadian papers are supplementing the story by stating that after the Indians had been treed, the wolves left half their number on guard while the balance went to a nearby beaver colony and prevailed on a couple of beavers to come and cut down the tree. While this was going on the wolves sat back licking their chops in anticipation of the Indian steaks which they were shortly to enjoy.—St. Hilaire Spectator.

MEANING OF THE NATIONAL CREDITS ACT

STATEMENT BY THE SECRETARY OF AGRICULTURE

On the last day it was in session, Congress enacted the Agricultural Credits Act. This act is designed to give the farmer the sort of credit he needs to produce efficietnly and market in an orderly way the products of the farm. It is an effort by Congress to meet a need which has been felt for at least fifty years The act may not be perfect. Quite possibly experience will show the need of amendments form time to time. But it furnishes the basic for a system of intermediate credit adapted to farm conditions and farm needs. Also it should bring about a reduction in the interest which farmers must pay for money borrowed.

The act is divided into two parts. In the first, it provides government agenciec for handling agricultural loans. In the second it authorizes the organization of private agencies under government supervision for making loans on livestock security and on farm commodities on the way to the market.

The government loan activities will be carried on in connection with the Federal land banks. At the present time the country is divided into twelve districts, and in each of these districts there is a Federal land bank which makes land mortgage loans, these twelve banks being directed by a central Federal Farm Loan Bureau in Washington. In connection with each of these land banks there is to be established an intermediate credit bank, located in the same city with the land bank and under the supervision of the officers and directors of the land bank. The Federal government supplies each of these intermediate credit banks with a capital of not to exceed $5,000,000. These intermediate credit banks are authorized to discount farmers' notes which have been taken by banks and other financial institutions, and then carry such notes for a term of from six months to three years. The banks may also loan direct to farmers' co-operative associations under conditions set forth in the act.

These intermediate credit banks may issue debentures which will have back of them the farmers' notes which the banks have taken. The idea is that these debentures may be sold to people who wish a safe investment. They are exempt from taxation, just as the bonds issued by the Federal land banks are exempt. The interest charged by the intermediate credit banks may not exceed by more than one per cent the interest paid on the debentures issued, and the farmer who borrows must not be charged an interest rate of more than one and one-half per cent above the interest charged by the intermediate credit bank.

No doubt some time will be required to get this machinery in smooth working order. It will be just like building up a new business. It should not be very long, however, until the benefits will be apparent and the farmer will find that he can borrow needed capital for a period up to three years without having to pay an unduly high interest rate, without having to renew his notes every ninety days or six months, and without being in danger of having to sacrifice his crops or live stock because of a sudden financial flurry.

The second division of the act authorizes the organization, under a Federal charter, of national agricultural credit corporations, these to be organized by private capital. They will be under the supervision of the Comptroller of the Currency, just as other national banking institutions. They must have a capital stock of at least $250,000. They may issue collateral trust debentures up to ten times their capital and surplus. Such corporations will probably be organinzed in the Western states where the livestock industry is important and where now cattle loan companies are in operation.

In addition to the provisions of the act designed to furnish the farmer much needed intermediate credit, certain changes have been made in the law under which the Federal land banks operate and in the Federal Reserve Act. Provision for the establishment of the so-called permanent organization of the twelve Federal land banks is made by providing that three out of the seven directors for each bank are to be elected by the borrowers from the bank and three are to be appointed by the Federal Farm Loan Bureau. The seventh director, who will be the president of the board, will be chosen from three persons who have received the highest nomination vote for this position by the borrowers or stockholders in the bank.

Heretofore the maximum amount which might be loaned to any individual by the Federal land banks has been $10,000. This has been increased to $25,000. Also the purpose for which the mortgage loans may be made has been broadened to include the repayment of existing indebtedness.

The Federal Reserve Act is amended by broadening the definition of what is called agricultural paper, making it include the grading and processing of agricultural products by co-operative marketing associations. In the past the Federal Reserve Banks have not been permitted to discount agricultural paper for a longer period than six months. This period has been increased to nine months.

A large number of state banks are not now members of the Federal Reserve System, some of them because their capital is not large enough to meet the requirements of the law. An amendment to the Federal Reserve Act is carried in this bill designed to encourage small banks to join the system. A bank which has capital equal only to sixty per cent of the capital required of national banks may now be admitted, if within a reasonable time the capital will be increased to correspond with the capital required of national banks.

The life of the War Finance Corporation is extended up to February 29, 1924, the expectation being that by that date the new credit facilities provided for under this agricultural credits act will be sufficient to meet the needs.

This Agricultural Credits Act of 1923 is one of the most important acts passed by the last Congress. It marks an earnest effort to provide the farmer with the sort of credit he must have to carry on efficiently. It is not class legislation. The results will be helpful to business in general, because the effect will be to stabilize agricultural production and marketing.

Minnesota Legionnaires to Have New Weekly Paper

Morlan Bishop returned Monday evening from St. Paul, where he had been in attendance at the meeting of district representatives of the American Legion, held Sunday at the St. Paul hotel in St. Paul.

The state organization has purchased the plant of the Hennepin Legionnaire and it is expected that next week the Minnesota Legionnaire, a state-wide journal decided upon by the Legion convention held last summer at Virginia, Minn., will appear for the first time.

Plans are also under way for the erection of a state memorial to World war veterans, which will probably be erected at the approach to the state capitol building. The memorial will be in the form of a marble column, and in addition to the beautification of the grounds will involve the expenditure of a considerable sum.

Life of Julius Caesar to Be Shown on Lyceum Screen

Famous George Kleine Masterpiece to Appear Next Friday Only Under Auspices of Local Schools.

In point of sheer spectacles this subject has no equal. More than 20,000 persons appear in some of the big scenes. Julius Caesar is portrayed by Anthony Novelli, who bears a striking resemblance to Caesar.

In many respects "Julius Caesar" is the master-piece. Unlike most historical romances, this beautiful subject is correct to the smallest detail. in depicting the customs, dress, art and military science of the times.

The film opens with Caius Julius Caesar at his twentieth birthday, and briefly follows him through his acquaintance with pretty Cornelia, daughter of Lucius Cinna; their secret marriage, which incurs the wrath of Sulla, then Dictator of Rome; the annulment, and Caesar's exile.

The Eternal City does not again hear of him until twenty years later, when he returns at news of Sulla's death and plunges briskly into the campaign for the Consulship. In this he is aided by Calpurnia, daughter of the wealthy Piso. His marriage to Calpurnia, election to the consulship and historic quarrel with Cato, the younger, are vividly told.

The follows his political alliance with Pompey to fortify himself against the attacks of Cato; this developed into the first triumvirate, consisting of Pompey, Crassus and himself. Next, he surrendered the hand of Julia, his daughter by marriage with Cornelia, to Pompey, to further cement that alliance. Here we have glimpses into the intimate social and political life of the day.

From this point on the story deals with the restless political ambitions of the conqueror and his great military triumphs. His campaign in Gaul, waged with characteristic vigor, destroys the formidable tribes headed by Vercingetorix, in a series of the most brilliant battles recorded in history. His triumphant return to Rome follows in true historic order.

The gathering of the Gauls to resist him, their weird religious ceremonies and their peculiar habits of life, are as faithfully pictured as the scant records of this almost unknown race permit.

The film covers the life of Caesar in every detail until he meets death at the hand of Brutus. The spectacular massing of 20,000 Romans in the market-place, swaying with excitement, sweeping onward under the stress of a great emotion, form a fitting setting for the end of the greatest figure in all history.

A special matinee performance will be given at 4 o'clock Friday afternoon.

KRATKA SCHOOLS

(Too late for Rural School Page.)

The past month has been rather stormy so it has been hard to have perfect attendance. However, these have earned perfect attendance certificates: Lars and Martin Barstad, Arthur Newton and Clifford and Willie Helgeland.

The fifth grade pupils are making booklets about Holland and March.

School was closed for a short while this month on account of the illness of the teacher.

The Citizens League held its meeting on March 2. A nice little March program was given, which all enjoyed. This program was prepared by Valeria Reller and Arthur Newton.

Miss Florence Stageberg and Miss Florentine Hance have visited our school for the last two weeks. They are practicing teaching in the rural schools and we all enjoyed their work with us very much. We all wish them a happy and prosperous future in their career.—Mabel C. Shefveland, Teacher.

Luke Reilly Says, "That Rat Died Before Reacing the River."

"Since moving near the river two years ago, we've always used RAT-SNAP. Watched a vicious water rat, nibbling at RAT-SNAP outside the house. About 15 minutes later he darted off for the water, to cool his burning stomach, but he died before reaching it." Three sizes, 35c, 65c, $1.25. Sold and guaranteed by Hall Brothers Co.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

To Freshen Stale Bread—To freshen any kind of stale bread, biscuits, rolls, etc., put in a paper bag, sprinkle bag lightly with water, tie up end of bag and place in a warm oven for from five to ten minutes. The contents will come out as delicious as fresh bread.

Fruit Stains—Fruit stains can be removed from linen by pouring hot water through the stain before using soap. The same applies to coffee stains.

-:-

To Clean Straw Hats—Make thick paste of sulphur and lemon juice, not too thick. Apply on hat with brush, rubbing thoroughly into straw. Then wash off by dashing water on the hat. Don't get too wet.

-:-

-:-

Brushes, mops and dusters should be hung outside to air once in a while. It is a good idea to keep mops and dusters outside all the time.

Thyra Samter Winslow asserts that "marriage is as much a form of slavery today as it ever was.' But we do not see any nation-wide uprising against it on the part of women. The kind of slavery that brings little children around the fireplace is not nearly so galling as a lot of unmarried philisophers believe.

for a series of talks to its patrons, its employes, and the general public concerning transportation problems common to all.

There is an old saying that you cannot hate a man when you are well acquainted with him. Let us get better acquainted and cultivate good will. The entire business activity of the Great Northern's territory is so dependent upon good transportation at low rates that no farmer or business man can afford to be hostile to the Great Northern. Every blow aimed at the railroad, every act of the legislature imposing needless regulations or burdens of expense upon the railroad, damages other business and agriculture as surely as if aimed directly at them. What hurts them, hurts the railroad, and what hurts the railroad hurts them.

If their business is poor, the earnings of the railroad decrease; and if the railroad's business is poor or if its expenses are needlessly increased, that is a double injury to other business: First, it stops the enlargement and improvement of facilities necessary to furnish good railroad service when needed; and second, it makes higher rates necessary, because whatever increases the cost of producing transportation adds ultimately to the expense of other business. In the end, all transportation costs must be paid by the public.

Good feeling is an essential to the success of all partnerships. This one includes not only the railroad and all the people along its lines, but all railroad employes as well. If they will think well and speak well of their employer, realizing that whatever hurts one hurts the other, it will help amazingly to prevent misunderstanding and promote the welfare of both.

It will be our aim in subsequent talks to make these truths clear and plain to everyone.
